DRAFT 4 POINT REPEAL BEHIND CLOSED DOORS

Action Is Protested as Political Coup.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23.—All Republicans and one Democratic opponent of President Roosevelt's neutrality program were excluded from a rump meeting of Democratic members of the senate foreign relations committee, which was called today to consider the draft of a bill repealing the embargo on arms to the warring nations of Europe.

Senator Clark.

This move was denounced immediately by members who were barred from the meeting as an injection of politics into the neutrality issue.

Not Wanted, Says Chairman.

Senator Bennett C. Clark [D., Mo.], outstanding Democratic opponent of the embargo repeal, was one of those left outside the committee room.

Clark had been issued an invitation "by mistake," he was told by Chairman Key Pittman [D., Nev.]. No senator was wanted at the meeting who was not in accord with President Roosevelt's views on neutrality, Senator Pittman opined.

"I understand that this was a meeting to put into effect President Roosevelt's move to adjourn politics," commented Senator Clark with irony.

"It appears that you have to be a Democrat and the right kind of a Democrat to get into these nonpartisan meetings," remarked Senator Gerald P. Nye [R., N. D.] with equal sarcasm.

"I thought politics had been adjourned," said Senator Robert M. La Follette [Rad., Wis.], another member, when advised of the meeting.

Provisions of New Bill.

A tentative draft of the bill by Chairman Pittman and the 13 Democrats who met with him carried the following provisions:

1. Repeal of the arms and munitions embargo.
2. A definite and specific prohibition against the shipment of any American goods to belligerent countries in American flagships.
3. Authorization of the President to proclaim from time to time, as may be necessary, combat areas into which American vessels may not go.
4. Heavy penalties, including fines of $50,000 and imprisonment for five years, for violation of the prohibition against shipment of goods in American ships to belligerents.

Foes Map Strategy.

The senate noninterventionist group went ahead with plans for opposition to the arms embargo repeal. They held a series of strategy conferences. Senators Nye, Clark, Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.], and Henrik Shipstead [F.-L., Minn.] conferred with Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, world war ace and president of Eastern Air Lines. Rickenbacker will deliver a radio speech Tuesday night opposing embargo repeal, it was announced.

Plans for the formation of a national Keep Out of War committee went ahead, with J. C. Hormel, Minnesota packer, joining the movement. Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, Henry Ford, and others have been mentioned as prospective leaders of the campaign. The issue will be carried to the nation in a series of radio broadcasts.

Expect Easy Sailing.

The thirteen Democratic members of the senate foreign relations committee who met with Senator Pittman today were confident they can get full committee approval of the bill they are considering. Pittman said he does not expect the full committee to spend more than three days on the measure.

Senator William E. Borah [R., Idaho], leader of the opposition senators, said he is not disposed to delay a report by the committee on the measure, provided his group is given sufficient time to study the bill and organize its debate prior to floor consideration. He said there will be no filibuster and no discussion of unrelated subjects, but a thorough discussion of the entire subject of neutrality.

Reds Call Us Suckers, Dies Quizzers Told

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23 (AP).—A former soviet agent in this country told the Dies committee today that Russia had "played the American people as a bunch of suckers" to finance its propaganda here.

D. H. Dubrowsky.

D. H. Dubrowsky of New York, a naturalized American who was one of the first soviet representatives in the United States, testified that "Americans swallow and pay for soviet propaganda efforts."

"Front organizations with high-sounding names," Dubrowsky explained, had collected money in the United States for relief of starvation and suffering in Russia, but had used much of the money for communist party purposes.

Confiscate Veterans' Funds.

He also related that the soviet government got the major part of payments the United States makes to dependents in Russia of American war veterans.

Telling how this was done, he said that until 1935 such dependents were allowed to trade at "Torgsin" stores in which American dollars could be spent at nearly their regular value.

In 1935, he said, these stores were abolished and beneficiaries of veterans' payments received rubles at an artificial value which gave them about 4 to 5 cents on the dollar.

"They were darn lucky to get that," he added. "The confiscation was not complete, only 95 per cent."

"Then in effect our taxpayers were contributing to the support of the soviet union?" Chairman Martin Dies [D., Tex.] asked.

"Yes, and they still do," Dubrowsky replied amiably.

Raise Funds with Movies.

The witness said that other means used by the soviet government for raising funds in the United States included the distribution of moving picture films, which are "about nine-tenths propaganda." This activity, he said, was carried on by the "Amkino" corporation and netted about $1,000,000 a year. Also, he testified, the Russian government took most of the proceeds of estates left by Americans for Russian relatives, managing to do this through dollar exchange manipulation.

Dubrowsky returned to New York without completing his testimony, but Chairman Dies said he would be called again in the near future. The committee is scheduled to hear testimony Monday from Gearheart Seger, described by Dies as the editor of a German paper in New York who would "refute" previous testimony by Fritz Kuhn, leader of the German-American bund.

FIVE FREAK ACCIDENTS IN A ROW BRING DEATH TO OKLAHOMA FARMER

Oklahoma City, Okla., Sept. 23 (AP).—R. M. W. Cody, 45 years old, was electrocuted on his farm following this freakish sequence of events:

1. Steering gear of a truck broke on a nilltop in front of the Cody home. Rolling 250 feet down the hill, out of control, the truck crashed into a 4,000 volt highline pole.
2. One of the wires fell on a metal roadside sign 200 feet away.
3. The sign charged a barbed wire fence.
4. The electrified fence set fire to a patch of grass near the Cody home.
5. A pail of water which Cody threw at the blaze hit the fence and conducted the electricity to his body.

JOURNEY TO N. Y. SHOWS ALF CAN RING THE BELL

New York, Sept. 23 [Special].—Ernest Alf, a farmer who lives along Route 1 out in Eau Claire, Wis., a world fair visitor, wanted to mail two post cards to the folks back home. He found a box bolted to a lamp post, and pulled the handle. A patrolman strolled up.

"Why the bells on the mail box?" asked Alf.

As the first fire trucks came howling up, the policeman silently led Alf to a station house.

Magistrate Henry Curran today genially decided it was an honest error, and dismissed the charge of ringing a false fire alarm and advised Alf:

"I hope you like New York—and if you have any mail, just give it to a policeman. He'll be glad to mail it for you."

Keep Neutral! Legionnaires Warn Nation

American neutrality must be preserved! This was the unanimous sentiment expressed yesterday by leaders of the American Legion as the first 100,000 of the 250,000—Legionnaires and their families—who will attend the organization's annual convention, arrived in Chicago. The convention sessions begin tomorrow.

In 1935 and each succeeding year the Legion adopted clearly worded resolutions pledging support to absolute neutrality. It is expected that the foreign relations committee of the convention will recommend a similar policy for 1939. This committee, not yet chosen, will be composed of one member from each state and each of the ten foreign departments. The committee's first meeting will be held tomorrow afternoon.

Divided on Present Act.

On the question of repeal of the present neutrality act there was a difference of opinion. Some leaders, including National Commander Stephen F. Chadwick and Past National Commander Edward A. Hayes, are opposed to any change. The majority sentiment seemed to favor leaving the means of maintaining neutrality to the discretion of congress.

The rank and file of the Legion, whose members are still young enough for rollicking moods, went into impromptu practice for the week's gayety. Drum and bugle corps tried out their instruments and the "40 and 8" paraded their replicas of French box cars.

At the same time efficient committees were making preparation for the entertainment of the throngs. The liaison committee was one of the busiest. It had to arrange a boarding place for a pair of oxen, a home for some pet bears, and find a white horse to match another brought in.

It also planned transportation for disabled veterans who wish to see the parade Tuesday, and helped with the trafic arrangements for the patriotic-religious Legion service to be held in the Grant park band shell at 7 o'clock this evening.

Outposts Fifty Miles Away.

An information service to guide the visitors to their destinations has spread its outposts up to 50 miles from the loop. The liaison group of

ATTACKS ALONG 60 MILE FRONT EYED BY HITLER

Shock Troops Face Enemy Fire.

PARIS, Sept. 23 (AP).—German forces today increased the vigor of their attacks against a 60 mile sector of France's western front positions. French advices said the Germans were operating under the eyes of Adolf Hitler, the German chancellor, and Col. Gen. Walther Von Brauchitsch, commander in chief of the Nazi army.

[A German propaganda ministry spokesman said so far as he knew Hitler still was on the eastern front.]

The Germans are reported to have used battle formation, sending wave after wave of assault troops against the French positions. Charges were made against field guns firing point blank, and against machine guns and automatic rifles. As fast as an assault was broken up, dispatches state, the Nazi shock troops reformed their lines and renewed the attack.

Fight Throughout Night.

The battle began last night, continued through the night and was still raging when tonight's communique was issued by the French general staff. This spoke of "various elements [still] in contact."

Following an ominous calm over most of the front on Friday, the Germans launched their assaults on the front extending from the vicinity of Saarbruecken, industrial center of the Saar basin, south to Bienwald forest, where the French frontier juts farthest into Germany to meet the Rhine.

Attacks Particularly Tenacious.

The heaviest smash was at the wooded highlands in the Blies river valley about 12 miles east of Saarbruecken. It followed heavy artillery fire by the Germans from Saarbruecken to Lauterbourg. French described the attacks here by the waves of shock troops as "particularly tenacious."

All of the German assaults were stopped, the French reported, and counter-attacks gained several strategic positions.

The French general staff's communique tonight said: "Local activity of artillery and various elements in contact."

[The German communique said of the western front: "There was only minor artillery activity at single points in the west. At Saarbruecken one French plane was forced to land by anti-aircraft fire; the crew was captured. One German plane was shot down in an air fight."]

Speculate on Big Drive.

Military observers said it was too early to tell whether the Germans were beginning an expected major offensive, but the increased pressure coincided with the reported arrival of Hitler and his commander in chief at the Siegfried line.

The two German leaders were said to have come from Poland, where the fighting was confined to the siege of Warsaw and mopping up operations in other sections.

German units first assumed the initiative when soviet Russia invaded Poland. They immediately slowed up the French advance into German territory and, in the first few days of this week, sent patrols to raid sector after sector, testing the strength of French positions.

Thrust Over Neutral Feared.

Although Paul Joseph Goebbels, Nazi propaganda minister, declared two days ago that Germany had no intention of violating the neutrality of Belgium, the Netherlands, or Luxemburg, the French general staff did not accept his statement at face value.

[A dispatch to THE TRIBUNE last night stated that Agence Radio had reported in Paris confirmation of dispatches that Belgium and the Netherlands have flooded certain frontier areas for defense. However, the reports were denied in Amsterdam and Brussels.]

France is reported speeding production of mechanized military units for fear the Nazis might strike through neutral nations in an attempt to turn the flanks of France's Maginot line.

GERMANY TELLS HOW 5 ARMIES CRUSHED POLES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

B5RLIN, Sept. 23.—The German army high command, in an official statement announcing that the campaign in Poland is ended, tonight disclosed the strategy which it used in crushing the Polish army of about 4,000,000 men in three weeks' time.

The statement, which neutral military experts called an extraordinary document, revealed the great care down to the most minute detail with which the German campaign had been planned. Five field armies, supported by the air force and the navy, coöperated perfectly in carrying out the campaign, the statement said. It congratulated all branches of the armed forces for their excellent performance. The statement also paid tribute to the bravery of the Polish soldier, but criticized the Polish leadership, which it blamed for the collapse of the army.

Text of Statement.

The text of the statement follows:

"The campaign in Poland is ended.

"In a connected series of destructive battles, of which the greatest and most decisive was in the bend of the Vistula, the Polish army of millions of men has been defeated, captured or routed.

"No single Polish active or reserve division, none of their independent brigades, etc., escaped this fate.

"Only fractions of individual groups were able to avoid immediate destruction by fleeing into the swamps of eastern Poland. They succumbed there to soviet Russian troops.

Isolated Groups Fight On.

"Of the entire Polish army only an insignificant remainder still is fighting at hopeless positions in Warsaw, in Modlin, and on the peninsula of Hela.

"That this still is possible is due exclusively to the willing forbearance of our troops and our consideration for the Polish civil population.

"As signs increased after the spring of 1939 that Poland, relying on the foreign aid guaranteed it, would not avoid assault at arms with the German reich in pursuit of its [Poland's] wide-stretched national interests, an attempt was made through careful examinations to clarify the probable operations and intentions of Poland.

"Impressions obtained from Polish literature and the daily press in connection with military measures of the Polish army leadership, which meantime became known, gave an approximate picture of the intentions of the Polish leadership.

Says Poles Underrated Nazis.

"In a series of conferences between the Fuehrer and the commanders-in-chief of the army, navy, and air force, their general staff chiefs and the chief of the high command of the army, operative suppositions following therefore for the German army were discussed and clarified.

"FIRST—Perusal of general and very scientific literature of Poland already imparted the picture of conceptions which the Polish political state chauvinism had made regarding the future development of the Polish state. The publicized demands of the daily press as well as oratorical outpourings of the Polish military strengthened these impressions.

"The marching up of Polish fighting forces, which appeared in the train of Polish mobilization, passes as final confirmation of these intentions. The Polish army leadership underrated the German army in the belief that it could successfully conduct an offensive war in the east, at least to a certain degree, in consideration of

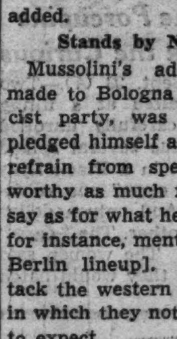
CAUSE FOR WAR ENDED BY POLES' DEFEAT–DUCE

Says British, French Should Quit Now.

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Sept. 23.—Premier Benito Mussolini broke his four months' silence today in a speech in which he outlined three major points of the policy guiding Italy in the present critical state of world affairs.



Benito Mussolini.

These points are: To prepare militarily for any eventuality, to support every possible attempt at peace, and to work vigilantly and in silence.

While Mussolini did not propose any definite program for peace, he said his policy seeks at least to localize Europe's war. He said the allies had abandoned their moral justification for the war by not taking measures against Russia following the soviets' coöperation with the Nazis in the liquidation of Poland. Further conflict can, therefore, be avoided, he added.

Stands by Neutral Course.

Mussolini's address, which was made to Bologna leaders of the Fascist party, was his first since he pledged himself at Cuneo last May to refrain from speaking. It is noteworthy as much for what he did not say as for what he spoke. He did not, for instance, mention the axis [Rome-Berlin lineup]. Neither did he attack the western powers in the style in which they not long ago had cause to expect.

But he did reaffirm the stand taken by the council of ministers in a communique on Sept. 1 which stated that Italy would initiate no military operations. This is "our policy," he said, "and we have no reason to change it." Taken as a whole, the speech seems reassuring to those who hope Italy will remain neutral.

Summary of His Speech.

Following is the official Italian summary of Mussolini's declaration:

"We meet here in a stormy moment which again brings into play not only the map of Europe but perhaps that of continents. It is only natural that these grandiose events and their repercussions in Italy should have caused emotion among us also. There are certain human dregs, very small but extremely miserable, that lived only in the darkest corners, profited by a special and understandable atmosphere.

"These dregs circulated certain rumors, of which many were most ridiculous, about me personally. This phenomenon was destined to exhaust itself. Otherwise I would have doubted with great mortification a thing in which I always believed firmly—that the Italian people is one of the most intelligent on earth. Without dramatizing things, the conclusion that one ought to draw from all of this may be summed up thus:

"Clean out the little corners where the remnants of Masons, Jews, and other anti-Fascists still exist.

Nation's Policy Defined.

"Anti-Fascist lovers of foreigners seek refuge by sometimes resorting to each mimetism [chameleon-like mimicry]. Never will we permit them or others to corrupt the physical or moral health of the Italian people, who know that one must not bother the pilot, especially when he is engaged in stormy navigation, or ask him at every instant news of the journey.

"If and when I should appear on the balcony [of his Palazzo Venezia] and convoke the entire Italian people, it will be, not to outline the situation, but to announce to it—as I did Oct. 2, 1935 [Italy's entrance into Ethiopia] or May 9, 1936 [incorporation of Ethiopia into the new Italian empire]—decisions, I say decisions, of historic importance.

"Now it is not such a case. Our policy was fixed in the declaration of Sept. 1 [neutrality] and there is no reason to modify it. It corres-ponds to our national interests, to our political treaties and pacts and to the desires of all peoples, including the German people. That policy is at least to localize the conflict. Besides, Poland having been liquidated, Europe is not really at war. The masses of armies have not yet met. One can avoid that shock by realizing that to wish to maintain or, worse yet, to wish to restore, positions that history and the natural dynamism of peoples condemn, is a vain illusion.

Pledges Work for Peace.

"Certain of the governments of London and Paris, with the wise purpose of not enlarging the conflict, have not reacted up to the present in the face of the Russian 'accomplished fact.' [The Red army's eastern occupation of Poland.] But from that it follows that they have compromised their moral justification for continuing to attempt to revoke the German 'accomplished fact' [conquest of Poland].

"In a situation like the present, full of many unknowns, the watchword has sprung spontaneously among the masses of authentic Italian people—prepare in a military way to meet any eventuality, support every possible peace effort and work vigilantly in silence. That is the style of Fascism; that must be and is the style of the Italian people."

Mussolini conferred before he spoke with Gen. Ettore Bastico, commander of the new mechanized army of the Po, who told him his army was at the full strength of its efficiency in men and arms.

Creation of a new air squadron with headquarters in Rome was announced.

CHINESE CLAIM ANNIHILATION OF JAPANESE FORCE

SHANGHAI, Sept. 23 (AP).—Chinese officials declared today their troops had recaptured Kaoan, annihilated a Japanese force that occupied the city last Wednesday, and driven back the Japanese fighting machine along the entire Kiangsi province front.

[A Hongkong dispatch quoted Chinese officials as saying resistance had stiffened throughout the central Chinese provinces, and that Japanese had been halted in Kiangsi province, along the Yangtze river valley in Hupeh province, and north of Changsha in Hunan province. Japanese army sources acknowledged there had been raids around Canton.]

At Peiping, the American embassy protested to the Japanese against the bombing of the American Southern Baptist mission at Luichow, in Kwangtung province, Sept. 4.

Outlawed Red Ex-Minister to Bulgaria Dies in France

PARIS, Sept. 23 (AP).—The death at Nice of Feodor Feodorovitch Raskolnikoff, 48 years old, outlawed former soviet Russian minister to Bulgaria, was disclosed today. He had fled to France after his removal from his post at Sofia in April, 1938. The newspaper L'Intransigeant said his associates declared the Hitler-Stalin pact affected him so gravely that he suffered a nervous breakdown. Raskolnikoff, who was outlawed by the soviet supreme court last July 19, sent a letter to the Russian press last summer criticizing Stalin's purges.

Now Comes the Porcupine Egg to Stick the Curious

Interior, S. D., Sept. 23 (AP).—Two women tourists halted at a filling station here and carefully unrolled from wrapping tissue several spiked oval objects bought in a Black Hills town. "Porcupine eggs," one volunteered proudly. "And only a dollar apiece," added the other. The "eggs" were cockle burrs. The women said they had been told they would hatch in a few weeks.

POILUS USE PIGS TO BLAST MINES ON WEST FRONT

They Die for France, but Nazis Get the Meat.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ON LUXEMBURG-GERMAN BORDER, Sept. 23.—A calm that was only occasionally interrupted by the boom of French and German cannons settled over the Luxemburg sector of the western front today. British, French and Germans took advantage of the quiet to improve their fortifications in the region of Wasserbillig and Echternach, Luxemburg.

A visitor to the front has returned with the story that the French are proceeding so cautiously that they drive cattle and pigs ahead of them to test probable mined areas, with the result that German outposts are supplied with an abundance of fresh meat.

The population of Luxemburg is nervous, fearing that when real operations begin the tiny state may revert to its feudal status as a European battleground. The boundary with France is not clearly marked and a stray battalion on the pretense that it has lost its way is sufficient to invite enemy fire, followed by a mutual scramble for strategic positions. The entire Luxemburg army of 200 is inadequate to disarm and intern invaders.

The government has tightened restrictions regarding sightseeing at the front lest either side charge that the observers are belligerent military experts in civilian clothes. All cities are lighted at night so there will be no excuse for violation of Luxemburg's neutrality.

FRENCH REJECT PEACE ON LINES DUCE SUGGESTS

PARIS, Sept. 23 (AP).—An authorized spokesman tonight said France's answer to Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy is "no." Mussolini at Rome today indicated peace could be made on the basis of acceptance of German subjugation of Poland.

The French spokesman summarized the French stand thus:

[1] France appreciated Italian efforts for peace, as demonstrated by her acceptance in principle of Italy's note of Sept. 1 proposing negotiations to avert war; [2] the situation, however, has been "profoundly changed" by the German conquest of Poland, and [3] since then the attitude of the French and British governments has been made clear in statements of their leaders and their accords with Poland.

Premier Daladier in his latest speech said, "We want only one thing: Complete victory."

PRINCES MINGLE WITH PAUPERS IN FLEEING POLAND

Wealthy Bluebloods Skip on Foot and Horseback.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Sept. 23 (AP).—Among the thousands of impoverished refugees in Rumania are many members of Poland's ancient, princely and wealthy families who were forced to flee before the whirlwind German-soviet Russian invasion and partition of the country.

Many bearers of Poland's most famous names are reported to have been killed in the fighting and bombing sweeping their homeland. Some, too, have been reported captured as the invaders advanced from the west and the east, wiping the 20 year old Polish nation off the map.

Some refugees who reached Rumania have funds and property in neutral countries, others managed to escape with only the clothes on their backs and a few personal belongings. Nearly all still are searching for some word of other members of their families scattered by the Nazi and soviet invaders.

American Princess Escapes.

Prince Andrew Sapieha, former finance counselor of the Polish embassy in Washington, D. C., was reported to have been captured by German troops near Przemysl.

Prince Janus Radziwill, the head of one of Poland's four most famous families, was reported to have been seized by soviet troops near Krzmienc. Prince Radziwill, head of the Polish Red Cross, was said to have been captured shortly after he conferred with Anthony J. Drexel Biddle Jr., American ambassador to Poland, concerning the disposition of relief funds sent by the American Red Cross.

The Radziwill family estates, totaling some 225,000 acres, were being divided among the family's former servants and tenants, it was reported.

Cousin of Alfonso Captured.

Prince De Bourbon, a cousin of the exiled king of Spain, who married Princess Cecilia Lubomirski was reported among the princely refugees to have been captured by the Russians near Lublin.

Prince Andrew Lubomirski, son of a former Polish minister to the United States of America and one-time student at the Friends school in Washington, rode out of his estate near Horodenka on horseback as Russian troops came in the rear gate. After seven hours of hard riding, he waded a river to the Rumanian side of the frontier near Vastarnia.

The prince said his brother, Prince Henry Lubomirski, who was educated at Central High school in Washington, D. C., and became a Jesuit priest, was still "somewhere in Poland."

Count Andre Tornowski left Warsaw on foot and hiked with other refugees to Tarnopol, a town named after his family, before he crossed the Rumanian frontier.

Former Envoy in Warsaw.

Stanislaus Patek, former Polish ambassador to Washington, refused to leave Warsaw, and friends here said tonight he was still in the besieged capital.

Former Ambassador Filipowicz escaped across the Dniester river into Rumania just before Russian tanks rolled into Zalescyki.

Victor Podoski, chief of the American division of the Polish foreign office and former secretary of the Polish embassy in Washington, also crossed the border one jump ahead of soviet tanks. He is going to Ottawa, Canada, where he has been assigned as consul general.

Albert Dzieduzyski, nephew of a former minister to Washington, who was educated at Princeton and now is attached to the American embassy at Warsaw, was still in Zalescyki with William Morton of the embassy staff, who was held there by Russian closure of the Rumanian border.

ARMY ORDERED TO STREAMLINE FIVE DIVISIONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23.—The war department announced today that approval had been given for the streamlining of five divisions in the regular army. Three existing divisions are to be reorganized as streamlined units as rapidly as possible, and two new divisions are to be created.

The streamlining of these divisions marks the first step in the army's reorganization program announced a week ago. The plan is to mold these divisions into a hard hitting field force ready for instant dispatch to any threatened point on the mainland, or to outlying posts such as the Panama Canal Zone and Hawaii.

War Strength Is 11,000.

The new divisions will have a peacetime strength of 433 officers and 8,517 enlisted men, according to charts which have been supplied to corps area commanders. This compares to a war strength of about 11,000 officers and men, to which each unit easily can be expanded.

The three units which will be streamlined in the next few weeks are: The 1st division with headquarters at Fort Hamilton, N. Y.; the 2d division with headquarters at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., and the 3d division with headquarters at Fort Lewis, Wash.

The two new divisions to be created are the 5th division, which will have its headquarters at Fort Sheridan, Ill., and the 6th division with headquarters at Fort Lewis, Wash.

5th Division Units Named.

Included in the 5th division will be the 2d infantry regiment which is assigned as follows: 1st battalion at Fort Sheridan; headquarters and 2d battalion at Fort Wayne, Detroit, Mich., and 3d battalion at Fort Brady, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.; the 10th infantry at Fort Thomas, Ky., and Fort Hayes, O.; the 11th infantry at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., and the 19th and 21st field artillery regiments at Fort Knox, Ky.

The new divisions will have three regiments of infantry of peacetime strength, each consisting of 69 officers and 1,670 enlisted men. In each division, also will be two field artillery regiments. One of these will be equipped with 75 mm. guns, and the other will be equipped with 105 and 155 mm. howitzers.

Other units in the streamlined division are as follows: Signal company, attached medical, medical battalion, engineer battalion, quartermaster battalion, division headquarters, and a military police company.

Prepare Corps Organization.

While plans are being made for troop movements and personnel assignments in connection with the reorganization of the divisions, the war department announced, work is already proceeding on the next step—organization of corps units. It was not made known how many divisions will be in each corps, though two to four is the usual composition. Heavy artillery, including 155 mm. guns, usually is assigned to the corps, as well as certain supply elements which the divisions lack.

National Guard divisions are not to be streamlined at this time, the war department said, but the change will be made later so that guard organization will conform to that of the regular army.

200 TO BE RECRUITED.

Brig. Gen. Karl Truesdell, commandant at Fort Sheridan, said last night that officers at the post had guessed one of the army's new streamlined divisions would be based there. The first intimation of it, he said, came five days ago when he received authorization to recruit 158 men for the 5th signal company and 42 men for division headquarters.

Gen. Truesdell said that barracks for an additional 1,500 to 2,000 men will be available in October, since units of the 61st Coast Artillery regiment [antiaircraft] were ordered to Portland, Me. Seven officers and 226 men of the 61st left Fort Sheridan on Sept. 9 for the Panama Canal Zone.

BODY TAKEN FROM RIVER.

The body of an unidentified man, about 50 years old, was taken yesterday from the river, at Division street and Elston avenue. He was 5 feet 8 inches tall and weighed 165 pounds. A belt buckle bore the initial "P." Racine avenue police are investigating.

Russian soldiers are shown as they met men of the German army at Brest-Litovsk, Poland, according to a German caption. At the extreme left a Russian peeks from behind the raised hatch of an armored car.

FRANCE ORDERS RESTRICTIONS ON PETROLEUM USE

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Sept. 23.—A new war decree issued today by the government places strict control over sales of petroleum products. Civilian purchasers will have to obtain tickets, limited according to their special needs.

Another decree announces a cut of 25 per cent in overtime pay beyond 45 hours weekly.

Banks have been instructed to deduct 36 per cent from all payments for interest on foreign securities unless the securities are owned by a nonresident foreigner.

HITLER HONORS SLAIN GENERAL HE ONCE FIRED

Orders State Funeral for Von Fritsch.

Rumors Sweep Berlin

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 23.—The death in Poland of Col. Gen. Baron Werner Von Fritsch unleashed a flood of rumors in Berlin, where the public is clamoring for details. Some insinuated that his death was a mystery and "something must be held back." Officers who have been at the front said this was ridiculous. In this war, they declared, officers of the high command are operating much more closely to the front than they did in the world war. This, they said, is partly due to the influence of Fuehrer Hitler, who makes it a point to be as close to the front lines as his aids will let him go.

BERLIN, Sept. 23 (AP).—The German army tonight mourned for its former commander in chief, Col Gen. Baron Werner von Fritsch, who was killed in action before Warsaw in a rôle far below his former eminence.

Col. Gen. Baron Werner von Fritsch. [A. P. Wirephoto.]

He became the first German general to die in this war when he was struck down yesterday "while carrying out a dangerous reconnoitering operation."

These were the words used by the present commander in chief, Col. Gen. Walther von Brauchitsch, in an announcement declaring that the German army stood "in deep mourning, yet filled with a great pride," at Von Fritsch's bier.

Hitler Orders State Funeral.

On Fuehrer Hitler's orders a state funeral will be given the 59 year old general, who played an outstanding rôle in the revival of the German land forces before his failure to keep in step with the Fuehrer led to his resignation in February, 1938. He had clashed with Hitler over the seizure of Austria, which Von Fritsch opposed.

Before the death announcement most Germans believed Von Fritsch was still in retirement. It was known, however, that he had volunteered to serve at the front. Von Brauchitsch announced that he had joined his regiment "on the first day" of the war.

Von Fritsch at the time of his death still held the rank of colonel-general—one step below field marshal—but he was not in active service in that rank. He was honorary commander of the 12th artillery regiment, but it was not revealed what his duties as honorary commander consisted of.

Commander Pays Tribute.

News of his death had been printed on inside pages of all newspapers, but Von Brauchitsch caused to be published a large death notice heavily bordered in black, in the name of the entire army.

"There fell in Poland, before Warsaw in the foremost line while carrying out a dangerous reconnoitering operation, Col. Gen. Baron von Fritsch, chief of artillery regiment number 2," the notice said.

"Having taken to the field on the side of his artillery regiment on the first day, he who truly lived an exemplary life for his army now also died an exemplary death and gave his all unconditionally. Deeply moved and in deep mourning, yet filled with a great pride, the army stands at the bier of this great soldier."

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Sept. 23.—Bermuda's first "foreign contingent," now en route to Canada, consists of several young men who expect to enlist in the Canadian forces. Other Bermudans also plan to go to Canada to enlist. In the world war many joined the dominion service.

RUMANIA ENDS PURGE; PREMIER'S FUNERAL TODAY

Mass Executions Quiet Iron Guardists.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Sept. 23 (AP).—Rumanians today lauded Premier Armand Calinescu as a martyr to patriotism as they observed national mourning on the eve of an elaborate funeral for the assassinated statesman.

Newspapers published the last decree signed by the premier a few hours before he was slain by his implacable pro-Nazi Iron Guard foes. The decree provided, ironically, for additional ceremonies at government funerals. Calinescu's own last rites will be the first under the decree.

Oxen in Funeral Parade.

After the funeral the body will be taken in a procession to the railway station for the journey to Calinescu's family home at Curtea de Arges, 90 miles northwest of Bucharest.

There, in accordance with Calinescu's wishes, the body will be taken in a peasant cart and drawn by six oxen to the grave.

The cabinet apparently has wiped out the ring charged with the premier's death.

The number of Iron Guardists executed is now placed officially at 320, although usually well informed circles said there were indications the toll was several times greater.

The government said that Iron Guardists in concentration camps were shot "while attempting to revolt."

Assassins Cremated.

The bodies of seven men said to be the premier's assassins as well as two others who committed suicide when they were surrounded, were cremated after their bodies had lain for 48 hours in the same spot where Calinescu was assassinated—on one of Bucharest's main streets.

Army units on the Polish frontier maintained full strength, despite relaxation of tension following Russian occupation of the area across the border.

The government insisted the Iron Guard outbreak had no repercussions in the provinces aside from disorders in concentration camps.

The Inquiring Reporter

The Question.

How can the United States of America keep out of war?

Where Answered.

In the Morrison hotel lobby [by Legionnaires here for their national convention].

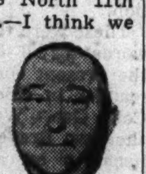
The Answers.

Thomas A. Patrick, North Shore post, 1103 Bryn Mawr avenue, Chicago.—The United States should mind its own business. We can keep out of war by keeping money at home, so we won't have to chase the borrowers. I'm 100 per cent in favor of keeping the neutrality act just as it is.

Evans Ashton, Roxbury post, Roxbury, Mass.—I don't like the neutrality act, and I think it should be amended so we can help England and France. They should carry munitions in their own ships, though. If we help them with arms, maybe we won't need to send soldiers later.

Robert D. Morrow, Jackson post, Jackson, Miss.—I say we ought to have a danged good army and navy and air corps. I like the cash and carry proposition better than the neutrality act. Naturally I'm sympathetic with England and France, but we shouldn't get our ships mixed up in the war.

Jay H. Brown, 6144 Ingleside avenue, Chicago.—I recommend leaving the neutrality act as it stands. If we change it, the side that doesn't have the advantage will feel we're violating our neutrality. If we'd finished the job in 1918, we wouldn't have this trouble now.



Otto C. Koglin, 1018 North 11th street, Sheboygan, Wis.—I think we ought to keep the neutrality act just as it is. We should take care of our own army and navy, and build them so we won't be apt to be attacked. We need all the war implements we can manufacture for our own protection.

BRITISH WARNED THEY MUST STOP TONGUE WAGGING

Telephone Users Must Be Especially Careful.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 23.—Too many tongues are wagging and authorities take a serious view of the freedom with which defense matters are discussed in public and referred to even on the telephone, tonight's newspapers said.

Efforts are being made to impress on all those who are in possession of important government information the need for continual discretion in referring to matters which might be of value to the Germans.

These persons in possession of such information are being warned to exercise care when talking on the telephone. Users of the telephones in army commands at home have been told to remember that their conversations may be overheard and that information which might be of value to the enemy should never be discussed over an open line.

Enemy Agents May Be Loose.

Although many enemy agents were rounded up at the outbreak of the war there may be a number who have not yet been detected. Authorities also are anxious to find out who is starting false rumors of setbacks, such as the sinking of capital ships. Steps are being taken to try to trace stories of this nature.

Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, will present his first war budget in the house of commons on Wednesday. There is intense interest in the financial proposals he then will make.

The problems confronting the chancellor are described as much more difficult than those with which David Lloyd George had to deal in his first war budget of 1914. The British national debt is roughly 10 times what it was then. Further, the British already have borrowed hundreds of millions of pounds for defense apart from a credit of 500,000,000 pounds [$2,000,000,000] which was voted at the outbreak of the war.

Out of Current Taxation.

How is the burden of financing the war to be met? The chancellor is credited with the desire to obtain as large a part of the expenditure as possible out of current taxation. The one side of the financial problem which Simon is giving special attention is the reduction of nonessential expenditure. He may be able to make substantial savings in government grants to local authorities for public works, which now must be suspended.

The house will sit for four days this coming week. Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain will give another survey of the war situation on Tuesday.

In London today roads usually filled with cars were empty. It was the first day of gas rationing and private cars were being left at home.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

2 EDUCATORS AIR CLASHING VIEWS ON ARMS SALES

Debate Before Council on Foreign Relations.

President Roosevelt's proposal to lift the arms embargo and to introduce a cash and carry clause into the American neutrality act would be intervention in the European war and should be debated by congress as such. That was the view expressed by Edwin M. Borchard, professor of international law at Yale university, in a debate on neutrality before the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations in the Palmer house yesterday.

Prof. Borchard's opponent was Dr. Harry D. Gideonse, president of Brooklyn college and former professor of economics at the University of Chicago. Dr. Gideonse, speaking in favor of removing the embargo, urged a return to traditional neutrality, asserting that America stands in acute danger of involvement in the war under the present law. These perils would be minimized if congress approved a neutrality law with a cash and carry provision, Dr. Gideonse aserted.

Urges Organized Support.

Dr. Gideonse said the "minority," meaning those opposed to removal of the arms embargo, was militant and extremely well organized. He warned that, unless the "majority" opinion became organized just as effectively, there was a possibility the President might be defeated on the issue.

"Such a defeat," he said, "would be a moral disaster to the British and French cause. The sympathies of the overwhelming majority of Americans are with Britain and France.

"Under a cash and carry program foreign trade with any and all nations would involve a minimum of political risks for the United States. It would entail much less risk than under the present law."

In reply Prof. Borchard warned, "It is time we began to think about the interests of the United States, instead of those of other countries.

Warns of the Road to War.

"A truly neutral state must not make it its duty to try to equalize differences due to geography or any other causes. The aiding of one side against the other is the road to war.

"Relaxing the neutrality act in favor of one belligerent must certainly be viewed as a hostile act by the other side. Its consequences should be carefully weighed before such a step is taken. No sound reasons have been advanced for lifting the arms embargo. The purpose of this move is obviously to aid France and England."

Prof. Borchard hinted that the President was seeking to influence public opinion in favor of his views by conjuring up submarines off tme American coast. "The President's expression on such a subject at this time ought to be considered as ammunition to help lift the arms embargo," he said.

ALASKA "SUB" REPORT TRACED TO TWO INDIANS

KETCHIKAN, Alaska, Sept. 23 (AP)—Everett Hudson, Metlakatla Indian fisherman, may have provided the information for President Roosevelt's announcement a foreign submarine was sighted off the Alaskan coast.

Everett Hudson.
[A. P. Wirephoto.]

The Ketchikan Chronicle says Hudson did indirectly. Hudson and his son-in-law saw the submarine Tuesday only three-quarters of a mile from their fishing boat and about 15 miles south of here.

The submarine was on the opposite side of Gravina Island from the usual shipping channel. It submerged slowly.

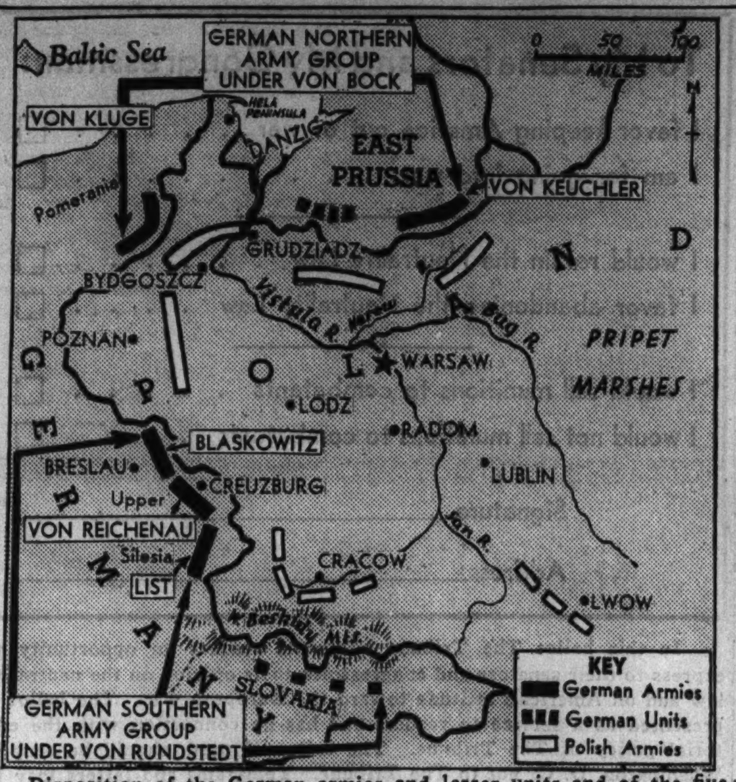
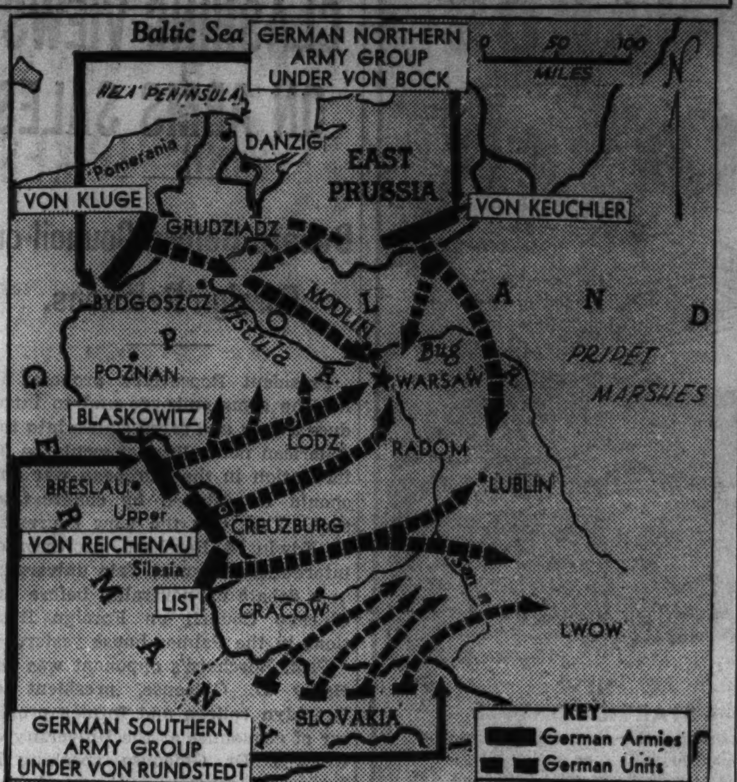
GERMANY TELLS HOW FIVE ARMIES SMASHED POLAND

Strategy Is Revealed by Official Statement.

How Germans Crushed Poles, as Told by Nazi High Command



Disposition of the German armies and lesser units and of the five Polish armies at the beginning of the Nazi campaign on Sept. 1, as described in a communique issued in Berlin yesterday. The northern group of German armies was under command of Col. Gen. von Bock and the southern group under Col. Gen. von Rundstedt. The individual German armies are designated on the map with the names of their commanders. The communique said the southern Polish army was in the region of Cracow and Lwow, but was indefinite as to its exact position.



Arrows show system of pincer movements by which German armies surrounded and defeated the armies of Poland. Although the communique was fairly specific as to the German drives, it did not give details of the movements of the Polish armies.

Charges Conquest Was Aim.

"The dominating thought was immediately to occupy the Free State of Danzig, to attack East Prussia from three sides and to conquer it as an island cut off from the rest of the reich. For this purpose the following concentration of strength took place:

"One Polish army was stationed in the area north of Warsaw, as capable of checking and perhaps threatening a German advance from East Prussia against Warsaw as it was strong enough to carry out its own attack.

"This Polish group was supposed to be flanked on the right by considerable gathering forces which could threaten East Prussia from an eastern direction, on the left wing through a very strong army in the corridor. The assignment of the corridor army was to occupy the Free State of Danzig and then also to be able to launch an offensive against East Prussia from this side.

Strong Army Placed in Rear.

"The order was given for rear coverage to this operation by the far strongest Polish army, which was placed in the region of Poznan. In case of a German attack on the corridor this army, with its superior strength, was to threaten the flank of this attack. It also could be used at any time to help the weaker Polish army marching to the southwards. Through its strength and central position in the vicinity of Poznan this army threatened the far flanks of any German attack from central Upper Silesia or from Pomerania.

"Poland's southern army in the region of Cracow and Lwow was, in the opinion of Polish army leaders, strong enough to protect that important industrial area. It could be used for the further purpose, according to developments of the war, either as an aid to other Polish armies or to attack the important Upper Silesia industrial area.

"SECOND—The object of the German operations was to encircle, attack and destroy the large, strong, Polish army concentrated in a bend of the Vistula river. For this purpose the army commander-in-chief, Gen. von Brauchitsch, created two army groups:

"A southern army group under the command of Col. Gen. von Rundstedt—a northern army group under command of Col. Gen. von Bock.

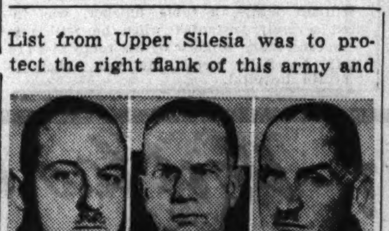
Von Bock. Von Rundstedt. Von Kluge.

"The southern group consisted of three armies:

"The army of Gen. List, the army of Gen. von Reichenau, and the army of Gen. Blaskowitz.

"The northern army group consisted of the army of Gen. von Kluge and the army of Gen. von Keuchler.

"The orders of the southern group were to push in a northeasterly direction toward the Vistula from near Kreuzburg with the center army of Von Reichenau. The army of Gen. List from Upper Silesia was to protect the right flank of this army and from the north side of the west Beskidy mountains to advance in an easterly direction.



List. Von Reichenau. Blaskowitz.

"Its task was to hold the Polish forces there and with units advancing from Slovakia northward encircle the Poles and if possible prevent their retreat eastward.

Trap Set for Flank Maneuvers.

"As a protection for the left wing of Gen. von Feichenau, the army of Gen. Blaskowitz coming from the east of Breslau should advance in the general direction of Warsaw by stages in order to trap and fight off expected flank maneuvers ot the Polish army group in the vicinity of Poznan.

"The task of the northern army group was, with the army of Gen. Von Kluge, to establish a connection with East Prussia as swiftly as possible, cross the Vistula between Bydgoszcz and Grudziadz and with the group advancing toward Grudziadz from East Prussia, attempt to join in a general easterly direction with the north wing of the southern army group.

"The 2d army of Gen. von Bock, under command of Gen. von Keuchler, had the assignment to come from East Prussia over the Narew river and the Bug east of the Vistula and establish connection with the army of Von Reichenau or cut Warsaw off from the east. In the course of further operations an effort was to be made to capture in a further extensive encircling movement behind the San and Bug those Polish forces which might succeed in crossing the Vistula.

All Assignments Carried Out.

"All of the assignments in this plan of operation were mustered in an outstanding manner by the army command and carried out brilliantly by the troops. The first operations, to engage in battle and destroy as strong an enemy force as possible, succeeded to a degree which will go down in history.

"In a connected series of battles it was possible to decide the destiny of the Polish army and with it the entire campaign practically within eight days. Destruction of the Polish corridor army was followed a few days later by encirclement and weakening of Polish troops retreating before the army of Von Reichenau in the vicinity of Radom.

"The forces of Von Reichenau's army, thrown forward to the doors of Warsaw, then prevented retreat across the Vistula of the Polish armies of Poznan and the corridor. Therefore the army of Blaskowitz and the greater part of the army of Von Reichenau hemmed in this strong enemy force.

Attempts to Escape Fail.

"More and more pressed together, the Polish divisions in continued attacks attempted in various places to break the ring that held them. Just as the German divisions earlier had shown themselves of the highest value in offensive power, so now they demonstrated a not less value in their ability to stand firm.

"The result of this series of battles was almost total destruction of the Polish armies west of the Vistula. Prisoners in the total of three surrenders connected with this big operation were more than 300,000. The grand total of captives is now up to more than 450,000. The total guns seized already is about 1,200. Other war materials seized are not yet possible even approximately to calculate.

"Troops of all German extractions, young actives and older classes, participated equally in this enormous success. German infantry renewed its undying fame. Its ability in marching and in bearing up under hardship was no less than its ability in fighting. To its courage in attack was added an unshakably strong ability to stand firm that conquered every imaginable crisis.

"Light and heavy artillery assisted in making possible the biggest successes. Thanks to their efforts and those of the engineers it was possible in the shortest possible time to conquer Polish border fortifications either by storming or going around them in order to destroy the enemy without letup.

GERMANY TELLS HOW FIVE ARMIES CRUSHED POLES

Strategy Is Revealed in Official Statement.

"Armored and motorized units, cavalry, antitank, and reconnaissance units in extraordinary collaboration fulfilled the hopes placed in them. Shoulder to shoulder with them fought SS [élite guards] formations placed under the army's command.

"Upon the command of Field Marshal General Goering two strong air fleets were formed under Gens. Kesselring and Loehr and sent to conduct an air war against Poland. These two air fleets completely smashed the Polish air force and controled the air in a short time. In closest coöperation with army destroyer planes, bombers continually attacked bunkers, batteries, troop concentrations, marching columns, unloading of supplies, etc.

"Through the flyers' disdain for death they saved the army an endless amount of blood and contributed in greatest measure to the total result. Anti-aircraft artillery took the German air under its protection and especially in the beginning of the campaign coöperated in the destruction of the Polish air force.

800 Planes Destroyed.

"In all, approximately 800 planes either were destroyed or fell to the army as booty, the rest were interned after fleeing abroad.

"On sea, units of the German battle fleet under command of Admiral General Albrecht blocked the Danzig inlet from the beginning of hostilities and thereby crippled all trafic to and from Polish seaports. With the exception of a submarine, all the Polish fleet still in the North sea Sept. 1 was destroyed or interned in neutral harbors.

"Here, also, the air force played a glorious rôle. Outstanding accomplishments in the field of communications, especially in the reëstablishment of streets, bridges, and railways, in which the labor service particularly proved its worth, made the task of leadership much easier.

"Border guards who quietly have been fulfilling their duty for years occupied territory behind the army, making it possible for the command to put troops on all fronts. Thus in exemplary coöperation all forces contributed to the final achievement.

Tribute to Polish Soldier.

"It was possible only because the west army and strong units of the air forces confidently and determinedly stood ready to brave every enemy superiority, however great and because the navy guaranteed the security of the German North sea and the German coasts.

"The Polish soldier repeatedly fought bravely. He broke on the inadequacy of his leadership and his organization. Thanks to superior leadership, high degree of training, and the modern armaments of the German army, its achievements were accompanied by losses which must be described as unusually small in comparison to the enormous losses of the enemy. Exact figures will be given in a few days.

"Materials and weapons of the new army have come up to the highest demands. Munitions and fuel consumption of this campaign amounted to only a fraction of the monthly production.

"The German people can again look with pride on its army.

Capture Claimed

Costa Rica May Occupy Cocos Isle to Foil U-Boats

WARSAW BURIES DEAD IN PARKS; TYPHOID STRIKES

Refugees Tell of Narrow Escape from Bombs.

KOENIGSBERG, East Prussia, Sept. 23 (AP).—Foreign refugees from besieged Warsaw asserted today that the people of the Polish capital, suffering from typhoid and a food shortage, were burying their dead in parks and public squares.

Americans said most of the 60 to 70 persons who had taken refuge in the American embassy in Warsaw saw a bomb demolish a building on Napoleon square nearby, killing 50 persons. The dead were buried in the few remaining green spots of the square.

Fifty-five Americans, including seven consular officials, were among the company of almost 1,400 foreigners brought here yesterday from Warsaw with Polish and German help. There were many women and children in the group.

Roads Torn by Shells.

While most of the refugees came in trains and automobiles provided by the Germans, diplomatic officials who had their own cars drove them through the night over 180 miles of war-torn countryside. Roads with gaping shell holes caused many detours.

Some cars were dotted with bullet holes, but their owners declined to reveal how they got there. One Argentine diplomat's machine had three holes in front and two in the rear. It was indicated that most of the bullets struck while the cars were in Warsaw.

The refugees revealed they had less than two hours to prepare for their exit from the city. Hence most of them brought but one suitcase; many women and children had insufficient clothing, but the German Red Cross provided warm garments.

Bombing Is "Last Straw."

The bombing of the building near the American embassy was one of the "last straws" for the taut nerves of the Americans. When Ambassador Anthony J. Drexel Biddle Jr. and his staff left Warsaw on Sept. 5 the consular staff moved in because the embassy's cellar was considered comparatively safe from bombs.

This proved a wise move, for the consulate building later was destroyed, refugees said. Consular officers took turns on watch. When a shell exploded four blocks away, then another three blocks from them, they knew the next one would be closer, so the alarm was given and occupants of the building were herded into the basement.

A Swiss—one of the 178 foreign diplomats who came here—said he was talking on the telephone when a bomb dropped on the building next door. He was blown three feet, he said.

Food supplies were steadily being diminished, the refugees said, and contaminated water caused many cases of typhoid fever.

21 OF AMERICAN NATIONS CONFER ON NEUTRALITY

PANAMA, Panama, Sept. 23 (AP).—President Juan Demostenes Arosemena of Panama, opening a Pan-American conference here to discuss neutrality and commercial problems growing out of the war in Europe, today warned 21 American republics which were represented to guard their neutrality.

The conference was called by agreement of several American countries, including the United States, under an inter-American agreement reached at Buenos Aires in 1936 providing for consultation in case peace is threatened by war.

The chief task of the new world, Arosemena said, "is to maintain our household in condition that we may live in it as reasonable and free human beings." He declared that the American nations not only must preserve their neutrality, "but make it respected" in Europe and Asia.

Formal meetings of the conference will begin Tuesday.

KEEP NEUTRALITY! UNANIMOUS VIEW OF LEGIONNAIRES

Visitors' Way Smoothed by Well Oiled Machine.

200 assigned to the contests committee looks after the brilliantly clad bands, drill teams, drum and bugle corps, and choruses.

Ready for All Emergencies.

"Our men become temporary members of the visiting units," said L. C. Baker, contest committee chairman, "Not only do the visitors want to know where to eat and where to sleep, but such things as where they can get their uniforms cleaned in a hurry. The liaison fellows even dust off the shoes of the contestants when they go onto Soldiers' field."

Preliminaries of the contests will begin at 7 a. m. tomorrow. Liaison men must see that the visitors, unfamiliar with Chicago trafic, get there on time. They are equipped with city maps and street guides, and lengthy mimeographed instructions as to their duties.

Not much levity was seen at the convention headquarters in the Palmer House. There was too much hard work to be done to keep the onrush of convention business from jamming.

A stream of notables continued to arrive. Among those here is Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson, a past national commander of the Legion. He would not discuss news of important issues in Washington.

Just One of the Boys.

The Overseas Graves Decoration Trust fund grew to $200,000 during 1939, it was announced by National Commander Stephen F. Chadwick, chairman of the board of trustees. Under French law a concession fee becomes due on every grave each 15 years. When this first time limit expired following the world war it developed that the bodies of Americans were to be exhumed and burned in lime pits unless the fees were paid.

Commander Chadwick's report said that the American Legion in 1937 obtained a court ruling which permits the trust fund to be used fo meeting this situation. Underground vaults have been built at Neuilly, France, overlooking Paris, for reburials of warld war dead whose grave concession fees had expired.

WAR ACES TAKE TO AIR AGAIN FOR LEGION PARADE

Some of America's distinguished world war veterans, who spent many hours in 1917-'18 circling above the troops of the A. E. F. in France, will be in the air again Tuesday, duplicating, in a sense, their activities of more than two decades ago. Many members of Chicago Aviation post No. 651 of the American Legion will watch the Legion parade from the air, going up in successive flights from noon to 3 p. m.

A description of the parade will be broadcast over W-G-N and the coast-to-coast Mutual Broadcasting System network from 1:30 to 2 p. m., and part of this broadcast will come from the air, too. Announcer Jess Kirkpatrick of W-G-N Mutual will go aloft in one of the United Airlines planes that will carry members of the Aviation post, and will tell his impressions of the parade from the clouds.

Several of the war time flyers will be interviewed by Kirkpatrick from the plane. Among those expected to make the trip are Reed Landis, King Kelly, Frank S. Whiting, Durson Knight, Ray Mooney, and Alan Bonnalie.

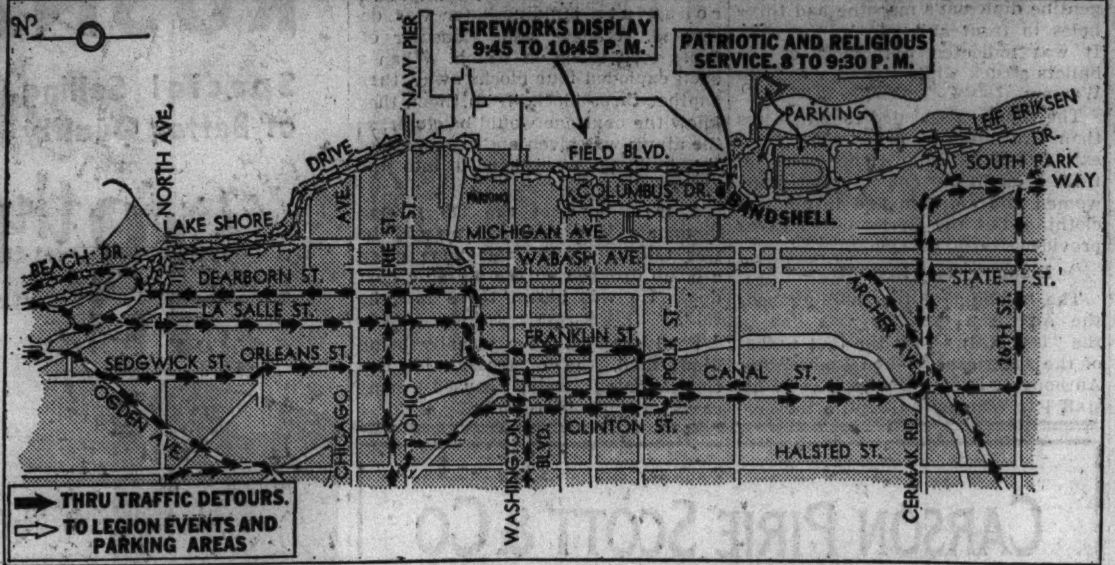
Britain Bans 'Brass Hats' for Its Officers in Army

LONDON, Sept. 23 (AP).—"Brass hats" are done away with under new dress regulations of the British army. Headgear with gold braided peaks, of the type which prompted world war privates to nickname staff officers "brass hats," are replaced by khaki dress caps with plain visors.

Trafic Changes for Legion Convention



Routing of through trafic and of automobiles bearing American Legionnaires and their families in downtown area for veterans' national convention events in Grant park tonight. The scheme was announced by Otto Jelinek, park district trafic engineer.

Officials said that attendance at the patriotic memorial service in Grant park tonight may reach several hundred thousand. A fireworks display will follow the service. The principal speaker will be Bishop James Freeman of Washington, D. C., head of the Episcopal diocese there. There will be music by a large chorus and an orchestra of 40 men.

Distinguished guests, including many world war generals, will be looked after by a committee headed by C. Wayland Brooks and Chester Davis, co-chairmen.

The country must provide jobs and lighten the tax burden if it is to survive as a democracy, Gov. Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts said yesterday. He is a member of that state's delegation to the convention, and spoke before the Chicago Bar association luncheon.

Reunion in Chicago—A giant of a man, with a terrifying beard, rushed up to a smaller one in a Legionnaire group, and boomed, "William!" The smaller man looked up and said calmly, "Frank." The big fellow was Frank S. Leavitt of Georgia, known to wrestling fans as Man Mountain Dean. The little one was William H. Leavitt of New York. Brothers, they had not seen each other in 17 years.

Harry Mauricides came to the convention from Greece, L. S. Rothschild from Hawaii, and R. H. Stock from Alaska. C. L. K. Seaman came only from Williamsport, Pa.—but he came the hard way, hitch hiking. He has never missed a district, state, or national convention.

Chicago Police post announced it would give prizes to visiting policemen Legionnaires who are the tallest, shortest, fattest, or thinnest.

Brig. Gen. Frank M. Andrews of the general staff, war department, Washington, D. C., will represent Secretary of War Woodring at the convention, officials were informed yesterday.

Mark Love, basso who has been heard in many performances of the Chicago City Opera company, will be official soloist for the convention.

Josephus Daniels, wartime secretary of the navy and at present United States ambassador to Mexico, is scheduled to arrive in Chicago today to attend the convention. He left Mexico City last night aboard a Braniff Airways plane. While in the United States he will go to Washington, D. C., and his home at Raleigh, N. C.

HELD FOR MOLESTING WOMAN.

Frank Kolan, 33 years old, was held by the Town Hall police last night for allegedly molesting a young woman near 3431 Elaine place. Kolan lives at 1044 Dickens avenue.

Patriotic Service

Through motor trafic in the loop area will be detoured from regular routes this evening while the American Legion's patriotic and religious service is being held in Grant park. The new routes were announced by Otto Jelinek, trafic engineer of the park district.

Cars northbound will be required to turn west at 26th street or Cermak road to Canal street, on which they must travel north to Harrison street. The remainder of the route is: east to Franklin street, north to Wacker drive, and from Wacker drive into Dearborn street.

Southbound motorists must follow La Salle street or Sedgwick and Orleans streets to Wacker drive, Wacker drive to Randolph street, Randolph to a turn south in Clinton or Canal streets.

Persons going to the service and the fireworks display, if coming from the north, will use Lake Shore drive and Field boulevard. Those from the south will follow Leif Eriksen and South Shore drives. The routes and parking spaces are shown on the map above.

LEGION WOMEN POUR INTO CITY FOR 19TH PARLEY

Women of the American Legion auxiliary poured into Chicago by the thousands yesterday ready and eager for their 19th annual convention.

Some, accompanying their husbands, whose canes bear seals for each national convention they have attended, wore tailored suits and Legionnaire caps. The majority were dressed in civilian clothes and mingled unobtrusively with Chicago women, the little starred emblem on their dresses their only distinguishing mark.

They came so rapidly that at one time the registration desks at the Stevens hotel, where the auxiliary has its headquarters, had three lines of women extending through the north lobby, a lobby strangely barren of the carpets and luxurious chairs which usually adorn it.

The most important event of today is the annual Fidac Fédération Interalliée des Anciens Combattants' breakfast. Into this group, in which the allies of the world war have banded together, are welded 2,000,000 men and women, citizens of each allied country.

FRED GRAPENTINE RITES TODAY.

WARSAW'S FORT IS CUT FROM CITY BY GERMAN DRIVE

Defense Works Built by Napoleon Isolated.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 23.—The fall of Warsaw was brought a step nearer today when German forces pierced the Polish lines linking the fortress of Modlin with the besieged Polish capital, thus cutting the main island of resistance in Poland in two parts. Modlin, about 10 miles northwest of Warsaw, was built by Napoleon in 1807 for the protection of the city. In the world war the capture of Modlin by the Germans was followed ten days later by the fall of Warsaw.

The resistance offered by the Poles in this sector was described in the German war communique as "desperate." Several thousand Poles were captured.

[A dispatch from Hungary said developments in Warsaw were obscured by the "duel of the air waves" which blocked out broadcasts from the Polish capital station. Attempts to send out news of the defense of the city, which had been the only means of communication with the outside world, were lost in the jam of words from a station identified as German.]

Polish General Captured.

The German communique also said troops mopping up in the Bzura river sector west of Warsaw had captured Gen. Botnowski, commander of the Polish army in the Polish corridor.

Nazi leaders tonight told why they greeted Russia's occupation of two-thirds Poland with joy. They explained that the Germans allowed the Russians to occupy the major part of Poland "in order to interest them deeply in the German cause and make it more difficult for England and France to come to terms with Russia should they try to do so behind Germany's back."

Seek to Divert Reds.

There also are strategic reasons for the move. With a strong red army on Polish soil, the Nazis reason, it will be easier for the Germans to withdraw troops from this region and throw them on the western border in case the present "stagnant war" there turns into a more serious conflict.

But the Germans are making a bigger offer to the Russians. The German military mission which was in Moscow this week submitted concrete proposals to Russia on how it would be possible for the bolsheviks to "reach the warm seas instead of the frozen seas they control now."

The Nazis are trying to direct Russia's ambitions towards Iraq, with its rich oil fields, and India, which is comparatively easy to reach from the Caucasus if one has a clear understanding with Iran [Persia]. Both the Russians and the Germans have been cultivating Iran assiduously. Russian agents have been active in India for years.

The Germans are trying to induce Dictator Stalin to turn his eyes to the near east because they are anxious to have him forget his claims in the Baltic and in Bessarabia, Rumania, the loss of which Russia never recognized as legal. The Germans feel that the Baltic states and Rumania should coöperate economically with Germany "instead of giving in to Slavic influence."

WAR REFUGEES OF CHICAGOLAND SAFE IN NEW YORK

Flee Poland, Germany as Nazis March.

New York, Sept. 23 [Special].—Among the 1,357 Americans arriving aboard the Italian liner Conte di Savoia, which brought 2,156 passengers, the largest number to arrive on any ship sailing since the war started in Europe, were two Milwaukeeans, well known in Chicago, and the daughter of one of Chicago's public officials.

Miss Claire McCahey. [Koehne Photo.]

The Milwaukee couple are Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Miller. Mr. Miller is head of the Miller Brewing company of Milwaukee. They were accompanied by their granddaughter, Miss Claire McCahey of Chicago, who is the daughter of James B. McCahey, president of the Chicago board of education.

Welcomed by Parents.

Mr. and Mrs. McCahey were in New York to welcome home Mrs. McCahey's parents, the Millers, and their daughter, Claire, who this spring was graduated from Pine Manor college, Wellesley, Mass., and whose unscheduled exciting experience as a refugee from war was a graduating award packed with unexpected drama.

Miss McCahey preferred not to talk about her experiences at a hotel here tonight, where she went with her parents and grandparents, preparatory to returning to Chicago tomorrow, but her father, while soft pedaling the hectic and dangerous nature of Miss McCahey's and the Millers' vacation finale, did describe their experience of being caught in the middle of a war and trying to get home in a hurry like thousands of other Americans.

Trapped Abroad in 1914.

For Mr. and Mrs. Miller, Mr. McCahey said, it was in many respects history repeating itself. The Millers were trapped in Germany in 1914 when the world war started. They escaped to the Netherlands, where they were forced to remain for two months before sailing for home.

As war came again this month, the Millers, with their granddaughter, Miss McCahey, again were fated to be in Germany. They were in Munich. The Millers and Miss McCahey, the Chicago girl's father said, were assisted by Sigrid Schultz, Chicago Tribune correspondent in Berlin, in reaching Switzerland. Later they went on into Italy, where they obtained passage on the Conte di Savoia. The party had left New York on July 1 and had traveled extensively in Italy and France before going into Germany.

Lake Forest Couple Arrives.

Among other passengers aboard the Italian ship were Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Morse of 45 North Stone Gate Lane, Lake Forest, Ill., and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William S. Covington of Omaha, Neb. They told of their escape from the war on the Polish-Slovak border. Mr. Morse is a retired official of Fairbanks, Morse & Co.

After a visit to Danzig, the Morse party started to Budapest, Hungary. Their train was stopped, however, 30 miles from the Slovak border, a few miles out of Teschen, Poland, and the Morse party, with five other persons, were invited to get out and wait for some other means of transportation.

They finally hired a peasant and his one-horse cart to haul them and their luggage to a village where an automobile was engaged to take them to the Slovak border. They subsequently made their way through Vienna, Salsburg, Munich, and Rome to Naples and boarded the liner.

ENGLAND GRABS HITLER'S COFFEE AS A WAR PRIZE

Seizes Two Tons of It as Contraband.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 23.—The British contraband committee has ordered the seizure for judgment by a prize court of twenty bags of coffee weighing more than two tons consigned from Aden, in Arabia, to Hamburg and addressed: "His excellency, Herr Hitler, president of the republic of greater Germany. Freight paid." This was authoritatively stated tonight.

A bulletin from the ministry of information today said that British naval measures to cut off supplies of goods for Germany do not infringe on international law, as charged by Germany.

Neutrals, the ministry said, have a perfect right to trade with Germany "but equally, Britain, by international law, has the right to intercept contraband goods destined for Germany, even if these pass through neutral countries en route."

"Upheld by Court."

"The right of belligerents to treat foodstuffs as contraband has been upheld by the court," the ministry continued. "Beyond exercizing belligerent rights in this manner, Britain makes no claim to regulate economic relations between neutrals and Germany or to limit the commercial freedom of neutrals."

Further damage to British shipping as the result of the war was revealed today. The Kittiwake, a patrol vessel, struck a mine in the English channel last Wednesday, the admiralty reported. Five of the crew were killed and two injured. The ship returned to harbor for repairs.

The Kittiwake, a vessel of 530 tons, was commissioned at Chatham on April 29, 1937. It carried one four inch gun and eight small guns.

Two Finnish Ships Sunk.

OSLO, Norway, Sept. 23 [U. P.].—German submarines sank two Finnish steamers today. They were the Helsingfors steamer Walma with a crew of eight and the ship Martti Ragnar, with a crew of 44. The Walma was halted nine miles west of the Haalow lighthouse and the crew, three of whom were women, ordered to the boats. Sailors from the submarine then boarded the ship, placed dynamite in the hold and blew it to pieces. The submarine took the crew to a fishing boat which returned them to the mainland

The Martti Ragnar was bound for England with a cargo of woodpulp. It was sunk off the southern coast of Norway.

Mutiny on French Liner; Chile Jails 60 Crewmen

VALPARAISO, Chile, Sept. 23 (AP).—Chilean naval detachments took control of the French liner Winnipeg and placed its 60 crewmen in custody at the captain's request today after the crew refused to sail back to France.

Marshall Field & Company presents here each day observations intended to be of value to those it seeks to serve.

THE HARVEST OF CONFLICT

By CALEB

WHAT an essay Emerson could have penned on the inspiring part that is played in life by the things that oppose us! The adversities, handicaps, obstacles, impediments, frustrations, that seem so evil in themselves, are, in reality, the raw material of Good. Good, as a matter of experience, would have no meaning without these elements of antagonism with which to contrast it, and by which to define it.

The thought is a simple one: may have occurred to us scores of times. Yet it is staggering in its implications. Think what every great idea, every great institution, every great career, owes to the presence of conflict in the world! We at Field's, for example, need step no farther than a review of our past, to realize the business benefactions that have resulted from the resistance of events.

When Marshall Field ventured to Chicago in 1856, it was past mortal power to look ahead and envision the city of 1939. Nothing but the sheerest idealism could have supported such a dream. It is highly probable, therefore, that the youth of twenty-two, in his raw environment of a nineteen-year-old town, wasted little time on such rarefied reveries. He had the New England urge to work, plus the New England attributes of thrift, determination and dependable dealing—these were enough.

Enough, certainly, with which to meet the conflict-challenge of pioneership. For pioneers have never encountered aught else: struggle is inherent in the word and the fact. Twelve years after his Chicago arrival, Field's new six-story-and-basement building at State and Washington Streets stood in full flourish. Three years later, it was smouldering ruin. Nineteen days after that, business was proceeding "as usual" in street car barns at the southwest corner of State and Twentieth. Constancy and confidence—as in the decades since—had worsted the worst...

History, biography, experience—all bear out the affirmation, "No conflict, no conquest." Scant means, plain fare, spiritless surroundings: how much the lives of Morse, Fulton, Franklin, Singer, Westinghouse, Hill, Carnegie, Lincoln, and hundreds of other immortals on the mortal record, were indebted to these as incentives and spurs to achievement, can never be estimated. That they became great by greatly meeting great opposition, however, is incontrovertible.

The harvest of conflict, then, is its own justification. To seek a life of ease is to insure a life of emptiness, said an old Chinese philosopher. Centuries have since come and gone, only to prove the aphorism as right, now, as it was then.

NAZI BESIEGERS RAKE WARSAW IN 3D WEEK OF WAR

Germans and Reds Divide Poland's Territory.

THE TRIBUNE herewith presents a resumé of the third week of the European war.

SATURDAY, SEPT. 16.

Russian troops entered Poland and occupied the Polish Ukraine and White Russia. The avowed purpose was to "protect minorities."

Nazi forces besieging Warsaw delivered a 12 hour ultimatum calling for the city's surrender and warning the civilian population to leave if the city refused to give up. They said all of Warsaw would be regarded as a war area if the Poles did not surrender. President Ignace Moscicki of Poland charged in a cablegram to President Roosevelt that German planes were bombing open towns. Another German column was in the outskirts of Lwow. The capture of Deblin, and Kutno were announced.

The French general staff reported that two German attacks were repulsed on the western front, but 300,000 men were engaged in battle along a 40 mile front centering at Saarbruecken, industrial capital of the Saar basin.

SUNDAY, SEPT. 17.

Soviet troops advanced 50 miles into Poland along a 500 mile front. Scattered Polish resistance was overcome, Turkey moved to conclude a treaty of amity with the soviet. Britain and France, suspecting a Hitler-Stalin deal to partition Poland, debated action.

Most of the Polish government, headed by President Moscicki and Foreign Minister Josef Beck, fled to Rumania. Marshal Edward Smigly-Rydz, Polish army chief, gave up his command and followed the government leaders.

MONDAY, SEPT. 18.

U-boats sank the British aircraft carrier Courageous. Britain pledged itself to fulfill its obligations to Poland notwithstanding Russian intervention and said it would fight the war to a finish.

German leaders met soviet army chiefs at Brest-Litovsk. Moscow advices were that Poland would survive as a buffer state.

In other actions at sea, U-boats sank two more British trawlers. A young British pilot on his first sea patrol bombed and sank a Nazi submarine. On the western front, a French flyer shot down three German planes. The French reported a continued advance.

TUESDAY, SEPT. 19.

Hitler entered Danzig and made a speech offering peace to the western democracies. Canada announced it planned to send two divisions overseas, the first to be composed of flyers.

The French cabinet announced its determination to carry the war to "definite victory" and assured Poland it would be rewarded when the "common victory" was achieved.

Nazis reported the capture of 105,000 Poles north of Lodz. The Polish seaport of Gdynia was occupied. Warsaw entered its 12th day of siege. U-boats sank two more British vessels.

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 20.

Prime Minister Chamberlain said the British would accelerate the pace of their war effort and carry the conflict to a finish.

The Poles continued their resistance at Warsaw and near Lwow as Germany claimed the total of Polish prisoners had mounted to 350,000.

Flyers battled over the western front, where the Germans dropped leaflets reading: "Frenchmen—Do not fire and we will not fire."

THURSDAY, SEPT. 21.

Rumanian Iron Guard assassins killed Premier Armand Calinescu. Eight pro-Nazis described as the slayers were executed in Bucharest. A cabinet composed of army disciplinarians took over.

President Roosevelt in a message to congress asked repeal of the arms embargo provision in the neutrality law.

Ukrainian terrorists were slaughtering Poles and Jews. Warsaw still was holding out. Czechs began organizing an army to oppose Germany in France. The French were massing troops for a thrust on the western front. Nazi submarines sent two more British ships to the bottom.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 22.

Rumania's military government executed 2,000 Iron Guardists for the assassination of Premier Calinescu. By agreement with Germany, Russia was given three-fifths of Poland as its zone of occupation, the Nazis retaining the remainder.

Premier Daladier, Gen. Gustave Gamelin, army chief of staff, and Admiral Jean Darlan, chief of the naval general staff, flew from France to England and conferred with British leaders. Turkey and Russia were on the point of signing a treaty of mutual assistance. While this might close the "back door" to Germany through the Balkans to the western democracies, some indications were seen of an attempt by Turkey to align Russia on the side of France and Britain.

Warsaw still held out. French and Nazi armies moved up their big guns for an expected French push on Saarbruecken. In Washington, congress began to debate President Roosevelt's embargo proposal.

Chicago's Time Changes

Miss Kathleen Bretslaff sets her clock back an hour in a preview of what the whole city was doing last night when Chicago gave up daylight saving for standard time. Chicagoans thus got back the hour they lost last spring. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Back to Standard

Chicago was back on central standard time today after a summer of daylight time. Clocks were officially turned back at 2 a. m., but most Chicagoans set their clocks on retiring before midnight last night. Railroad schedules were adjusted where necessary to meet the change. Business for the most part will conform to the new time tomorrow.

The change from daylight to standard time followed by a few hours the passing of the summer season and the advent of autumn. Autumn officially arrived at 5:50 p. m. yesterday, Chicago daylight time, when the sun crossed the equator on its annual trip into the southern hemisphere. This is known as the autumnal equinox, a period when day and night are most nearly equal over the earth.

LINER AQUITANIA DASHES TO SEA, ITS GUNS READY

New York, Sept. 23 [Special].—Armed and painted gray, the British liner Aquitania departed suddenly from New York today, presumably for England. Official sources refused to divulge her destination or whether she carried passengers.

It was the hope of her officers that the ship, second largest of the Cunard White Star line, would be as successful in outwitting lurking submarines as she was on the trip to this country a week ago.

If their luck and strategy fail, however, they will depend on the two twelve pounders mounted on either side. The afterdeck was cleared for action when the ship sailed away on its hazardous trip.

An American emergency ship, the Acadia, started for Europe today to bring back 672 Americans. Two other vessels, the American Merchant and American Shipper, were to depart tomorrow on the same mission.

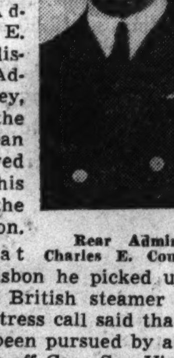
Twelve ships have brought nearly 20,000 Americans home from Europe in the last four weeks.

JAP GOOD WILL PLANE IN PERU.

LIMA, Peru, Sept. 23 (AP).—The Japanese good will plane Nippon arrived here today from Bogota, Colombia, on its round the world flight.

U. S. DESTROYER SAVES SHIP FROM U-BOAT ATTACK

LISBON, Portugal, Sept. 23 [U. P.]—Presence of the U. S. S. Jacob Jones, destroyer attached to the American navy's Mediterranean squadron, saved the British steamer Constant from attack by a German submarine, Rear Admiral Charles E. Courtney disclosed today. Admiral Courtney, commander of the Mediterranean squadron, arrived here aboard his flagship, the cruiser Trenton.



Rear Admiral Charles E. Courtney.

He said that en route to Lisbon he picked up an SOS from the British steamer Constant. The distress call said that the Constant had been pursued by a German submarine off Cape San Vicente.

Upon receipt of the call, Admiral Courtney said, he dispatched the Jacob Jones to provide the exhausted crew of the Constant with water and other supplies. While the provisioning of the Constant was proceeding the U-boat appeared, but vanished when it sighted the Jacob Jones standing by.

ROBBED OF $500 PAY ROLL.

Adelbert Morrison, 4146 Lake Park avenue, a timekeeper, told Racine avenue police yesterday that two armed men took a $500 pay roll from him at Milwaukee avenue and Carpenter street.

MOSCOW PARLEY HOLDS FATE OF BALTIC NATIONS

Estonian Leader Hurries to See Red Chiefs.

MOSCOW, Sept. 23. (AP).—Moscow's attention centered tonight on the soviet union's future relations with the small Baltic states and an economic reorganization of the two-thirds of Poland designated the Russian zone of occupation.

On the diplomatic front, speculation was stirred by the impending arrival of Karl Selter, Estonian foreign minister, for conversations with Russian officials and by the possible effect of these talks on the future of the small Baltic states.

On the Polish front, huge Polish estates were being divided among former tenants and servants even as troops to the west still were advancing and consolidating their occupation.

Borders May Be Revised.

Selter's trip to Moscow was said to be ostensibly for completion of negotiations for a commercial treaty with Russia. Foreign circles, however, said they attached more significance to the visit because of the uncertain position of the Baltic states in light of the German-Russian invasion and partition of Poland.

Speculation has centered especially on possible border revisions of some Baltic states. Before the world war Estonia was part of Russia.

Russia is known to want a Baltic seaport and Estonia is strategically situated on the Gulf of Finland, from which soviet ships go out into the Baltic.

A government order said that in view of the "special external situation" reservists who were called up by special order on Sept. 7 in the Moscow, Kalinin, Leningrad, Kiev, Kharkov, and Orel military areas would remain mobilized until further orders.

Reds Meet Hungarians.

MUNKACS, Hungary [Near the Polish Frontier] Sept. 23 (AP).—Soviet Russian and Hungarian troops established formal contact today in this district high in the Carpathian mountains, ending another phase of the Red army's occupation of a part of Poland.

The soviet's red flag with its hammer and sickle waved in the breeze beside the red, white and green banners of Hungary amid dramatic scenes.

Planting of the Red flag coincided with a renewal of normal diplomatic relations between Hungary and soviet Russia. Russia closed its Budapest legation after Hungary announced last January that it had agreed to sign the German-Italian-Japanese anti-communist pact. Hungary countered by recalling its minister to Moscow, but neither nation formally broke off relations.

Hungary's new minister to Moscow will be Dr. J. Cristoffy, who still holds the post of counselor of the Hungarian legation at Warsaw. The name of the new Russian envoy to Budapest was expected to be announced tomorrow.

Nazis Quit Mountain Passes.

It was reported that German troops had abandoned Beskid and Uzok passes in the Polish-Hungarian Carpathians in preparation for the establishment of a new division line which will give the soviet authority over the entire frontier.

A final group of 8,000 Polish soldiers crossed the frontier shortly before the soviet army officers appeared. Bearded and hungry, the retreating troops said that in climbing the Polish Carpathians they were forced time and again to fight off roving bands of Ukrainians. Many of the wounded died because of lack of medical care, they said.

Fourteen officers who killed themselves in despair, the soldiers reported, were buried in shallow graves with hasty military honors.

Ignace Albert Horecki, a Polish priest, said 40 Roman Catholic theological students at Lwow were executed on Sept. 17 by the Ukrainians. The priest said he escaped on a bicycle.

2 EVANSTON YOUTHS SLEEP RIGHT THROUGH U-BOAT DRAMA AT SEA

Two Evanston youths, who paid for their passage to Europe by playing in a band aboard the German merchant ship Deutschland, arrived in Chicago yesterday after returning from Le Havre aboard the American freighter Schodak.

Edward Doucet [top] and Jack Smothers.

The two, Edward Doucet, 1223 Hull terrace, and Jack Smothers, 1803 Chicago avenue, were graduated last June from the Evanston Township High school. They, with Robert Savage, 4528 North Wolcott avenue, Chicago, a Northwestern university student, and two Ohio youths, obtained jobs on the Deutschland. They were in Paris when word reached them that the Deutschland would remain in Hamburg.

The Schodak was stopped en route to New York by a German U-boat, the youths said, but they were asleep at the time and did not even know about it until later. They said they learned that the submarine commander merely had boarded the Schodak, examined her papers, and then allowed her to proceed.

INVOKE 1917 ACT FOR CONTROL OF FOREIGN AGENTS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23 (AP).—Invoking a provision of the espionage act of world war days, the state department published today new regulations to tighten the net of control over alien and American agents of foreign principals.

The new rules, in effect, extend official registration requirements to any agent of a foreign government, whereas legislation enacted last year, under which the department has been operating, exempted from registration such persons as attorneys and purchasing agents directly representing foreign governments in this country.

Also, the 1917 act provides stricter penalties—a maximum $5,000 fine and imprisonment for five years—for violations.

OVERTAXED
by thousands and thousands of fun-loving Musico players who all but melted down Mr. Bell's favorite telephone lines.

Despite the fact that smart, fast operators handled thousands of incoming calls with maximum efficiency and speed, multitudes—could not reach Musico.

To those people we say a thousand pardons.

And to those people and tens of thousands of others who will play Musico again next Friday, we say—telephone facilities will be greatly increased. Dozens of extra operators will be put on.

GERMANY FACES SHORTAGE OF OIL FOR ARMY NEEDS

Long War Might Mean Victory or Defeat.

An adequate supply of oil and a means of obtaining it are the vital needs facing Germany's vast air force and highly mechanized army. In a war of long duration, these two factors might mean victory or defeat.

A study of world petroleum production figures yesterday revealed that Germany may be unable to obtain sufficient fuel for her armies, even from those countries which could supply the raw product. And if an adequate supply were available, the reich is believed to lack a way to transport it within the German borders.

Blockaded from world sea lanes by English and French navies, Germany would be forced to rely largely on land transport—railroad tank cars—and river barges. Her sources of petroleum supply would be Russia, her partner; Rumania, already under threat of Nazi domination, and Poland, her latest conquest.

Transfer Point Destroyed.

Soviet tank cars, however, are constructed for the widest railroad gauge in Europe, a military measure adopted when imperial Russia first began building railroads. They can not be used on any other European railroads, all of which, except Spain's, are standard gauge.

The Baltic is still a possibility, according to oil men, but this round about method of shipment from the oil fields in the Caucasus remains dubious. Establishment of a new railroad transfer point, using a Russian connection through Warsaw, would take some time, even if feasible. In addition, Russia is known to have a shortage of cars. River barges on the Danube from the Black sea through Rumania is a third possible alternative.

Rumania has between 3,000 and 4,000 tank cars, sufficient to handle its domestic trade. They could be used also in Germany. Poland's supply of tank cars, according to the southeastern European representative of a leading tank car corporation, is between 1,000 and 2,000.

Expect Car Shortage.

For her peacetime needs Germany has 30,000 tank cars, which is considered sufficient. Many are now used also for shipping chemicals. Experts expect that a shortage will develop soon, with wartime demands.

Greater Germany's total consumption of all petroleum products last year was 55,220,000 barrels. This included gasoline consumption of 28,500,000 barrels.

With war, the Nazis face a different problem. A German general estimated, after the world war, that Germany's wartime oil requirements were five times those needed when the country was at peace.

Production Far Below Needs.

On this basis, her gasoline requirements alone would be 142,500,000 barrels. Last year Germany produced 4,350,000 barrels of crude oil, equivalent to about 1,957,500 barrels of gasoline.

In addition, the reich produced much of its gasoline by synthetic processes, notably from coal, an expensive process. Oil men here believe that this production—21,294,000 barrels—represents the peak which may be expected from this process.

There remain 119,248,500 barrels of gasoline—exclusive of all other lubricants—which the reich must obtain for war. Last year Germany imported 32.6 per cent of her petroleum needs from the Netherlands West Indies, 27.2 per cent from this country, 11.1 per cent from Rumania, 5.8 per cent from Venezuela, and the balance from various minor sources of supply, a total of 32,719,000 barrels.

Blockade Cuts Off Oil.

An English-French blockade would bar Germany from the oil in the Indies, the United States, Venezuela, and other overseas producing countries.

Although Poland made strenuous efforts to increase her output, the 1938 yield amounted only to 3,828,000 barrels of crude oil from the Galician fields. Rumania's total production was 48,366,000, exporting 75,000 barrels a day, the bulk of it going to Germany.

Russia, the only other possible source of supply, ranks second to the United States, which produces more than 60 per cent of the world output. Last year Russia's crude oil production amounted to 206,192,000 barrels.

Not Enough Produced.

If every barrel produced in Russia, Rumania, and Poland were converted into gasoline and shipped to Germany, the Nazis would have 116,273,700 barrels. This would still be below the anticipated need of 119,248,500 from import based on the German general's computation of wartime demands.

Russia's 1938 output was an increase of 4 per cent over 1937, but fell 13 per cent below the quotas of the five-year plan. Since 1932 her exports have been negligible, barely 15,000 barrels daily, which last year were largely offset by American imports to her eastern ports.

Unless Russia, Germany's greatest hope, radically changes its plans, the Nazis can expect little oil from this source. Only the meager Polish fields, and the relatively small Rumanian output, which has been steadily declining, would be available.

PRESIDENT PUTS ASIDE QUESTIONS ON 3D TERM PLEA

Rejects Landon's Plea to Confide in Public.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 23.—President Roosevelt today brushed aside the suggestion of former Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, his Republican opponent in the 1936 campaign, that the President best could advance his avowed interest to keep the country out of war by declaring that he is not a candidate for a third term.

The Landon statement was shown to Mr. Roosevelt as he inspected the excavation for the memorial he is building to himself with government funds on the grounds of his boyhood home here. He waved it aside with a broad smile.

Awaits Full Text.

Mr. Roosevelt said the message shown him at an informal press conference beside his open automobile was not Landon's full statement, and that he would have to see the entire statement before he could comment.

The President was back in his family home to celebrate the 85th birthday of his mother, Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt. On her birthday last Thursday, Mrs. Roosevelt told interviewers that she is convinced her son has no desire for a third term.

Mr. Roosevelt followed his refusal to comment on the Landon proposal by urging the reporters to fall back upon the myth of a White House spokesman to do the denying for him.

Cites Previous Remarks.

It was suggested that the reporters write that since Sept. 3. Mr. Roosevelt has pleaded to keep politics out of the problems of American neutrality.

This, it was said, probably is the best answer that could be made to Landon's request for a third term declaration. The reference was to the President's radio speech on the outbreak of the European war and his message to congress on the arms embargo.

DRIFTING CRUISER SMASHES UP ON ROCKS; 3 ESCAPE

Three Chicagoans had a narrow escape last night when their motor cruiser was washed ashore by waves and wrecked on the rocks near 89th street, after they had drifted in the lake for six hours.

The three are William Nolin, 31 years old, 2051 Larrabee street, a building contractor; William Raymond, 19, of 658 Webster avenue, and Ralph Jacobs, 20, of 1938 Sedgwick street. The boat was a 30 foot craft named the Bessie U and owned by Nolin.

Nolin, Raymond, and Jacobs left Michigan City in the boat at 11 a. m. yesterday and headed for the Diversey dock. Their gasoline ran out at 2:30 p. m. The crew of a passing sailboat promised to send aid, and at 5 p. m. coast guard boats from Jackson park and South Chicago started out. They failed to find the Bessie U. At 8:30 p. m. the cruiser cracked up against the rocks near the Carnegie Steel company. Nolin, Raymond, and Jacobs scrambled to safety, and were taken to the steel company hospital. They were suffering from exposure. Jacobs also was cut from the rocks.

OWNER OF TRUCK PILOTED BY DRUNK DRIVER IS SUED

Suit for $87,500 damages was filed in the Lake County Circuit court at Waukegan yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. William Clifford, and Mrs. Clifford's father, James A. Carins, all of Kenosha, Wis. Defendants are the Interstate Motor Freight system, Central Michigan Freight lines, Interstate System, and H. E. Ramsey, owner of an interstate truck involved in an accident in Zion last Aug. 27 with a car driven by Mrs. Clifford.

In the accident, Mrs. Clifford, her small daughter, Joan, and her brother, Dan Carins, 18, were injured. She asks $30,000 for her injuries and $25,000 each for her daughter and brother. Clifford, who was not in the automobile, asks $5,000 for "loss of association with his wife and child" as a result of the crash, and Carins, owner of the automobile, seeks $2,500 for damages to the car. Kenneth Suzor, driver of the truck, was sentenced Thursday to six months in the Vandalia state prison farm for driving while intoxicated.

WRITE PRESIDENT WRITE ANYBODY, AND HERE'S WHY

Write a letter! That's what Uncle Sam wants you to do during National Letter Writing week, Oct. 1 to 7. Postmaster Ernest J. Kruetgen sent out his first appeal for bigger and better letters yesterday. He explained that it doesn't matter who you write to, what you say or how you say it.

"Misspelled words do not bother your friends," he asserted. "It matters little whether the letter is written with pen or pencil.

"Write to your friends. Tell your parents back home about your everyday life. Write to your favorite movie or radio star and express your appreciation. Always remember, a letter needs no excuse."

The postmaster didn't mention it but, of course, you'll need stamps for your letters. If you buy enough stamps you may be able to do something about that annual postal deficit. Last year it was $43,811,556. So, remember—write a letter!

CHICAGO HEIGHTS CRASH FATAL TO INDIANA WOMAN

Mrs. Agnes Doffin, 65 years old, of Cherryville, Ind., died yesterday in St. James hospital, Chicago Heights, of injuries suffered in an automobile collision in the suburb Sept. 16.

Mrs. Mary Weber, 64 years old, 1650 West 51st street, was killed when she was struck by a truck at 50th street and Ashland avenue. Emanuel Ingallinera, of Fennville, Mich., was the driver.

A youth and a girl were killed late Friday night in Route 1, 12 miles south of Chicago Heights in Will county, when an automobile struck the rear of a hayrack on which more than a score of young folk were riding. The dead were Miss Lois Luckey, 17, and Leonard Steiber, 17, both of Crete. Thirteen others in the party were injured. The driver of the car, Lawrence Smith, of Crete, told police there was no tail light on the rack.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday 610 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 472 were killed in Chicago, where 15,765 were injured in the same period.

ACT TO PUSH FIGHT FOR HUGE PARKWAY ALONG MISSISSIPPI

La Crosse, Wis., Sept. 23 (AP).—The Mississippi river parkway planning committee today proposed concerted action by citizens throughout the Mississippi valley to demand from congress a scenic highway and park extending from Lake Itasca, Minn., to the Gulf of Mexico.

Representatives of Minnesota, Illinois, Missouri, Nebraska, and Wisconsin participated in the conference.

A bill now before congress, introduced by Representative Rene de Rouen of Louisiana, would authorize a parkway survey by the federal government.

Four states have acts authorizing state coöperation in development of such a parkway. These are Wisconsin, Illinois, Missouri, and Arkansas. Minnesota and Iowa have pledged coöperation by legislative resolution.

THO, ALTHO, THRU, THORO.

A few weeks ago readers of THE TRIBUNE were asked whether they would approve the spellings, thru, altho, and tho. By an oversight, thoro was not mentioned.

A good many letters were received and almost all of them were favorable to the changes. Accordingly, we propose to adopt the simplified forms, including thoro, beginning Oct. 15, and we shall carry the new spelling into derived words like thoroly and into compound words like thorobred, thorogoing, and thruout.

It is now five years since THE TRIBUNE adopted eighty simplified spellings. The experiment has been instructive. Certain changes appear to have been welcome. Decalog, dialog, and kindred spellings have been widely adopted. Others, like tarif and sherif, have been resisted. As Mr. James O'Donnell Bennett showed, when he prepared the list of simplifications, the double f in these words has no warant [bear up for just a few moments] in etymology or common sense. In spite of our excellent example, people have continued to write sheriff and tariff or sherrif and tarrif and seem determined to go on with this nonsense indefinitly [hold everything]. They will have no trafic [steady, men!] with the improved forms. They regard the insanities of English spelling as their bailiwic [whoops!] and, in a word, they stand agast.

Last April we decided to abandon some of the simplified forms, including aile, bailif, bazar, crum, lether, staf and twenty-seven others, not because we didn't like them but because they weren't being accepted by others. We said then that we would reëxamine the list from time to time. Accordingly, we have decided to adopt tho, altho, thru, thoro and thoroly. At the same time we are abandoning agast, bailiwic, definitly, indefinitly, sherif, trafic, tarif, and warant. Though we are saying farewell to definitly we are keeping genuinly as a ewe lamb.

BACK PAY FOR JOB SEEKERS.

Any one who has had the impression that the National Labor Relations board has changed its ways and become an impartial body will see his mistake when he reads a decision handed down this week. In the case of Waumec Mills, Inc., the board ordered a New Hampshire rayon manufacturer to "reinstate" and pay two years' back pay to two officials of the Textile Workers' union who had never been on the firm's pay roll.

The two men had applied for jobs in June, 1937, when the company began to manufacture rayon fabrics in one of the units of the old Amoskeag mills at Manchester, which had been idle for two years. The men were experienced rayon workers, aged 46 and 50. In interviewing the two union officers the employer asked about their union affiliation. They said they had been union officers, but had resigned. The employer told them he was glad they had told him about it because he wanted no trouble makers in his plant.

There were several applicants for every job with the new firm, and so there was room for the exercise of considerable discretion in selecting a working force. When the two men failed to get the jobs, they appealed to the National Labor Relations board, although they were working in another rayon mill at the time.

Testifying before the NLRB examiner, the employer said he had not hired the two men because he had learned that they were trouble makers. He also said there were other reasons for not hiring them—their age for one thing. The board held that the employer had no right in selecting a working force for a new factory to pass by an applicant because he had a record in a labor controversy with a previous employer. It has previously been held that an employé cannot be fired because of union affiliation. The board has now held that even in advance of the formation of any employer-employé relationship, an employer has not the freedom to select new employés, if union activity is given any weight.

If this decision stands up, any union man who is an unsuccessful applicant for a vacant job will claim that he was discriminated against because of his affiliation and will be able to claim pay from the date he is turned down. The cautious employer will now refuse to interview job-seekers because the NLRB may find that wages are due equally to those who are hired and to those who are not. Congress should deal with the NLRB without waiting any longer.

THE DEFENSE OF WARSAW.

Polish defenders of Warsaw present an example of dogged heroism that is thrilling the world. Moscicki and Smigly-Ridz and Beck had the gold reserve of Poland in their baggage train when they skipped over the Rumanian border, but not the spirit of the Polish nation. They left that behind, at the barricades of their capital city.

In Warsaw lies the heart of Poland. The head of the nation bowed before disaster and fled. The body, shattered by Germany and stabbed in the back by communist treachery, is being dismembered. The heart beats on, bleeding, but unyielding.

The statesmen who accepted the gage of battle have fled to safety. With them south of the border are the generals who failed to meet the ultimate test of battle. Only the people remain. Their leader is a civilian, the stout mayor of Warsaw.

For more than two weeks the city has been smashed by bomb and shell, ravaged by fire. Its civilians have died by the thousands. Its babies are crying for milk. But the rank and file of the Polish army holds the trenches, outnumbered and ill armed, washing the Germans' assaults back in their own blood.

Warsaw will fall. It has no hope of rescue and its resources are limited. The Germans say they will waste no more troops in assaults but will let starvation do its work. The German generals, who like all generals, kill their men only when there is a military profit in sight, no doubt view the defense of the city as useless as well as hopeless.

So also was the stand at Thermopylae useless. So was the defense of the Alamo. But Leonidas and his three hundred inspired the repulse of the Persian host on the plains of Greece. Bowie and Crockett and Travis were present in spirit when Texas was freed at San Jacinto. The hopeless valor of the Warsaw barricades is the seed of the new Poland.

ENGLAND IN PEACE AND WAR.

A British subject who signs himself Colonial writes the London Spectator from Zomba, Nyasaland, to say that he had returned from a holiday in England, where his experiences led him to believe that the English were individually charming and collectively incomprehensible. They might seem particularly so to one acquainted with the survivals of primitive logical life in Africa.

As exhibits of his bewilderment Colonial said that on one occasion wanting cooked food for a supper in his rooms he obtained everything desired at a delicatessen counter except milk. Milk bottles were on the counter, but they were not for sale. "After hours" was the explanation. Beer could be had in a shop a few yards away, but no milk. On another occasion, of a Sunday, bread was needed. The shops were open. They had bread, but none for sale. They could sell cake, but not bread.

Colonial tried to understand this. A friend explained that the restrictions were intended to benefit shop assistants by reducing their working hours and increasing their leisure. In pursuit of further understanding the inquirer asked if the girl in the shop, as a purveyor of milk, was supposed to be at the cinema while as a seller of pork pies she was behind the counter. The explanation then became longer and more involved and drifted into the statement that things didn't turn out always as they were meant to.

The concluding remark would do justice to many strange consequences of the search for the more abundant life in other countries than England. In England apparently if things do not turn out the way they were meant to they at least turn out the way they were expected to. Mr. Chamberlain in answering minor criticism in parliament the other day appealed to the country to indulge the government with the usual understanding of the incomprehensible.

CONGRESSMEN WHO WORK.

Two of Illinois' Republican congressmen, Everett M. Dirksen and Ralph E. Church, have recently given voters of the state renewed reason to appreciate their qualities.

Withdrawing from the race for his party's nomination for governor, Congressman Dirksen explained that he felt that in the present crisis in national affairs he would be failing in his duty as a member of congress if he absented himself from the sessions at Washington to campaign in Illinois.

His self-denial will not be forgotten. The services he has rendered in congress have increased in value with his experience and seniority in that body. By remaining in congress Mr. Dirksen will give this state a leader in that body, something it has failed to get from any of the Democratic yes-men it has sent to Washington in recent years.

Mr. Church was in a hospital, recovering from an operation, when the special session was called. He went to the capitol on a stretcher and heard the President's message from a wheel chair. He thus kept intact a five year record of not having missed a session of the house—a record which bespeaks his devotion to duty.

THE FORGOTTEN AUTHOR OF THE U. S. CONSTITUTION

BY G. W. MINGUS.

Every one who attends the New York World's Fair knows it is being held to commemorate the 150th anniversary of our first President, George Washington, who was inaugurated on the balcony of the old city hall, Wall and Broad streets, New York [where the subtreasury building now stands], on April 30, 1789. The stone slab on which he stood is inside that building in a glass case.

While we still celebrate Constitution day in September, very few of us know who was the first author of the constitution. He was a successful business man of Philadelphia—Pelatiah Webster, who was the most prolific writer of his time on all government and financial matters and a great patriot.

Dr. Hannis Taylor, a lawyer and writer on constitutional law, appeared twice before the United States senate in Washington, the first time in 1908 and again in 1914, urging the senators to erect a memorial tablet in Washington in honor of Pelatiah Webster, "the author of the constitution," but nothing has ever been done and Dr. Taylor says that after a study of 30 years the achievement of Webster has been definitly fixed for all time as being the real author of our constitution and that among the nation's builders he stands second to George Washington alone. Thus far he has been greatly neglected by his countrymen.

The facts involved in Pelatiah Webster's patriotic work were unknown until 1908 when Dr. Taylor made his first appearance before the senate. Webster's plan, as outlined in his dissertation on the "Political Union and Constitution of the United States," which he published in Philadelphia on Feb. 16, 1783, or four years before the constitutional congress meetings were held there, provided a definite scheme for our government that ripened into a reality—the constitution of the United States. He was asked to become one of the delegates to the convention, but could not spare the time away from his business, although he frequently entertained the various members in his home during the evenings of the days the convention was in session, and was glad to give them the benefit of his advice and suggestions.

In criticizing the old federal constitution [confederation] of 1781 Webster said: "This body—congress—consists of but one house without any check on its resolutions," and he proposed "that congress shall consist of two chambers, an upper and a lower house, or senate and commons, with the concurrence of both necessary to every act, and that every state send one or more delegates to each house. This will subject every act to two discussions before two distinct chambers of men equally qualified for the debate and equally masters of the subject."

Never before had any one heard of a federal assembly being composed of two chambers instead of one and yet our congress has never thus far recognized the existence of its author—Pelatiah Webster. He offered many suggestions in his dissertation which were included in the perfected constitution, although worded differently.

After the constitution was ratified in Philadelphia on Sept. 17, 1787, there were many hard fights in several of the states before they finally ratified it, including Virginia, New York, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, and Rhode Island. The three plans of Hamilton, Madison, and Pinckney which they submitted on the first day of the convention meeting, May 25, if compared with the original plan of Webster of 1783, will clearly show that these three young statesmen secured their information from the same source after reflecting for four years on Webster's plan.

Not one of them ever claimed to be the author of the constitution, nor have any of their biographers. They have all been rewarded and honored except the first creator and author, Pelatiah Webster, who made everything possible for them all, and his only reward is a neglected grave in Mount Vernon cemetery, Philadelphia. He was born in Lebanon, Conn., Nov. 24, 1726, was graduated at Yale in 1744, and died in Philadelphia in 1795.

Under the old federal constitution of 1781 our people were the servants of government and politicians, but after we adopted the new constitution of 1787 that status was changed and politicians and government were made the servants of the people and we called it liberty. Change that status if you will by shearing the Supreme court's protection over our people, which we have now, and you have the power to do so, but when you do you will engage in your last act as free men and become the servants of the politicians again just as our ancestors were 150 years ago before they rebelled and threw out the old federal plan for our present constitution. Pelatiah Webster was not only the author of it but he was the first to suggest dividing our congress into an upper and a lower house, and he was the first to suggest having a United States Supreme court, as well as the first to suggest that our government be divided into three departments—executive, judicial, and legislative.

He was also the first to suggest having a President, or a President surrounded by a cabinet, as such a thing was unheard of then until Webster's plan as outlined in his dissertation of 1783, which is just as authentic as the constitution itself. A copy of it will be found in the New York public library and also in the Congressional library at Washington, and two editions have been published by congress.

Webster should by all means have a memorial tablet in his honor in Washington and also one in or near Independence hall, Philadelphia, where he lived so many years and where he published his immortal writings which played such an important part in molding the constitution of the United States. He was a grandson of Gov. John Webster, one of the founders of Hartford, Conn. [1636]. Noah Webster, who compiled Webster's Dictionary, is another descendant and one of the great scholars and most learned men of his day.

Editorials of the Day

LINDBERGH'S PLEA.

[Grand Rapids Press.]

Col. Lindbergh presented in a few words one of the most concise summaries of the causes of this war that has been given. The treaty of Versailles, he pointed out, either had to be revised or England and France had to keep Germany weak by force. Neither policy was followed and as a result the current conflict broke out. And it is neither a conflict of our making nor one of our concern. We repudiated the peace treaty because we knew it was insane and war-breeding in its many selfish errors.

In attempting to explode the myth that America's frontiers are in Europe Col. Lindbergh does double service in his bid for peace. No more pernicious doctrine has been spread than that which holds that America must fight in foreign lands to protect its own borders. On the question of national defense he ranks as an expert at least as competent as those spokesmen who advocate this ridiculous doctrine. He knows that no nation or combination of nations can offer an effective threat across the oceans if our own arms are strong.

In the confidence which this belief inspires, this air pioneer sees in the preservation of peace in this land the preservation also of the culture, the art and the very civilization which is likely to be lost in the European cataclysm. Every American citizen believing in preservation of democracy should heed this farsighted warning. War means the destroying of democracy, not its safekeeping.

ENGLAND'S AMERICANS.

[An excerpt from "Our Sentimentalists" by George Pattullo in the Saturday Evening Post of Oct. 31, 1936.]

Now, the average American has plenty of physical courage. There is no man in the world with a superior fighting spirit, but his dread of being thought ungenerous makes him an easy victim. Just as an Englishman would rather be caught poisoning his elderly maiden aunt than to be thought guilty of "bad form," we, too, have our especially tender spots. Most of us touch boiling point at the popular continental libel that American men are all money grubbers and the American people lack sympathy for other nations in distress. We simply can't stand that one at all. So we turn out our pockets just to prove what sort of liars they are. This lovable trait greatly simplifies the job of our foreign friends.

In this connection I want to give warning that English expectations of us in the trouble now brewing are quite extraordinary. The confident way in which every Englishman talks today about American support in the next war would indicate that they have completely forgotten our admixture of racial strains, and look upon the United States somewhat in the light of a British commonwealth. How they get that way nobody knows, but it is an attitude we will have to guard against soon. Friendship and all possible coöperation are desirable for a host of reasons, but there is no reason at all why we should allow ourselves to be exploited as an instrument of empire.

How to Keep Well By Dr. Irving S. Cutter

BONFIRES: KEEP YOUR DISTANCE.

With autumn coming on apace, the air soon will be filled with the odor of burning leaves. We will be engaged in destroying nature's best protection for shrubs and lawns. This means bonfires aplenty, with youngsters gathered about to watch the display and to bring more baskets of fuel. Our little tots particularly must be watched with the greatest care. It is so much fun to leap through a smoking pile. At any moment a breeze may carry some flaming leaves to the clothing of the spectators. Nearly half of all our fatalities from this cause are among those who are six years of age and younger. Not a single death need occur if we will only exercise some supervision, and parents must accept the responsibility.

All burns are serious—not alone because a certain amount of skin has been destroyed, but because toxins are absorbed so rapidly from the scorched surfaces that the defense forces of the body may be overwhelmed.

Fortunately, we have a very simple and easily utilized measure. It consists in covering the parts with a solution of tannic acid—usually 5 per cent. A small box of the dry powder may be a valuable item in the home medicine kit. The preparation should be freshly made and applied directly to the charred region. If this substance is not available a strong infusion of tea as well as the leaves may be used. The effect is to form a clot. The usual practice is to spray on the tannic acid, repeating the maneuver every half hour or so until a thick crust has been produced.

Many burns are superficial, varying from redness to enough damage to raise a blister. These blebs need not be punctured, as this may invite infection. Should the lesion be extensive, however—that is, as large as one's hand—we must regard the situation as important. Here the blisters may be opened in a sterile manner, followed by the application of the spray. Severe episodes of this character require hospital management for safety as it may become necessary to combat shock and to supply fluids.

But all patients do not react alike. While some will exhibit but little interference with systemic functions, the lives of others will be in jeopardy. Much depends, however, upon the quantity of skin that has been destroyed. It is far wiser in such circumstances to make no attempt to treat the injury until the period of shock has passed. This means the preservation of warmth and the administration of generous quotas of liquids. A victim may be encased in warm blankets or immersed in a tub filled with tepid water. This latter measure may be most grateful as pain is allayed and many a patient will fall asleep. Care must be taken to support the head with a soft rubber cushion, although a thick Turkish towel folded will suffice. The water may be allowed to flow gently in and out of the bath. This device restores the temperature and aids in dilating capillaries.

The least we can do is to observe every possible safeguard against contact with flame, scalding water, or hot objects. Every child of three or older can be instructed in what to do should trouble arise. With the garments ignited—racing for home is just the wrong thing to do. The chances are that the fire will be smothered quickly if the patient can be wrapped in a heavy coat. Lying down and rolling over and over is a useful procedure.

Every Boy and Girl Scout has some knowledge of how to meet these emergencies. Just the other day I learned of a boy 8 years old who saved the life of his younger sister. Although standing at what she thought to be a safe distance from a beach fire, a sudden shift in the wind covered her with a shower of sparks and soon her thin play suit was ablaze. Screaming at the top of her voice, she started to run. Luckily, her brother was able to overtake her, throw her to the ground, and beat out the flames.

COMMUNITY PROBLEM.

M. M. writes: Why is it that all contagious diseases—except whooping cough, which may have such serious consequences—are quarantined? Those with this disease are allowed to roam everywhere so that healthy children have no chance to defend themselves against it. Isn't it possible to make some strict rule to keep these sick youngsters away from others?

REPLY.

This is a local or community problem. Some health departments require children with whooping cough to remain on their own premises. Others insist on having the patient wear an arm band to signify that the wearer has the disease. Parents should insist that some action be taken such as will keep infectious cases isolated—out of contact with those who are well. With our present methods of immunization, whooping cough should be wiped out or held sharply in check.

PROBABLY RINGWORM.

J. A. R. writes: Some blisters have appeared on the sides and bottom of my feet. They are white and hard. The surrounding skin is dead looking. What causes this condition and what is the remedy?

REPLY.

Among several possibilities, ringworm [athlete's foot] is the most likely. We have a leaflet on this disorder, giving various forms of treatment. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for these suggestions.

BUILDING RED BLOOD.

C. C. writes: What foods build red blood cells and make for a ruddy complexion?

REPLY.

A well balanced diet has all the necessary minerals, vitamins, etc. Not even beets will give a ruddy complexion. Liver, fresh fruits, and edibles rich in iron are helpful in combating anemia. At the same time, means should be taken to build up one's resistance. Avoid infections, get plenty of rest, etc.

Are you a hypochondriac? What may be the meaning of that cough you have? What are the early symptoms of pyorrhea? These and scores of other questions about health and hygiene are answered by Dr. Irving S. Cutter, Tribune health editor, in his 84 page book, "How to Keep Well." On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 S. Dearborn street, and at Tribune Tower, 435 N. Michigan avenue. Price 25c. By postpaid mail, 28c.

CALLS ON VETERANS TO ACT.

Hammond, Ind., Sept. 21.—May I be privileged to address you as a veteran speaking to another ex-member of the A. E. F.

We who have experienced war are best able to realize the enormity of the crime to which the Roosevelt crew is seeking to commit our country.

Having interviewed a large number of ex-service men, I find them practically a unit against war or any change in the neutrality act, which would be the first step toward war. It is further obvious that we oppose war, since we are the fathers of those unfortunate young men who must make the supreme sacrifice in event of conflict.

Undoubtedly the Washington administration will make use of all its vast power and influence to prevent the national convention of the Legion from resolving against their war program.

The veterans must have an opportunity to make an unmistakable expression of their position to the nation. Therefore, may I presume to appeal you to make use of the great prestige of THE TRIBUNE to suggest and advocate a giant mass-meeting of veterans to be held in some large Chicago assembling place before or during the Legion convention? Should such a gathering be held and addressed by Bennett Champ Clark or Senator Burke it would be possible to force action by the convention and would also wield a potent influence over congress.

RALPH M. DUNN.

BULLITT'S NOTE TO WILSON.

Chicago, Sept. 19.—News item: A chambermaid in Paris was sentenced to serve eight months and pay a $22 fine for saying Danzig should be given to Hitler. Here's what Ambassador Bullitt said in his resignation from the American peace commission, 1919, to President Woodrow Wilson:

"Unjust decisions of the conference in regard to Shantung, the Tyrol, Thrace, Hungary, East Prussia, Danzig, the Saar Valley, and the abandonment of the principle of the freedom of the seas make new international conflicts certain. . . . That you personally opposed most of the unjust settlements and that you accepted them only under great pressure is well known. Nevertheless, it is my conviction that if you had made your fight in the open instead of behind closed doors you would have carried with you the public opinion of the world, which was yours; you would have been able to resist the pressure and might have established the 'new international order based upon broad and universal principles of right and justice' of which you used to speak. I am sorry you did not fight our fight to the finish and that you had so little faith in the millions of men, like myself, in every nation who had faith in you."

FOR LINDBERGH FOR PRESIDENT.

Chicago, Sept. 20.—What about Lindbergh for President? In his speech he clearly demonstrated not only his forceful thinking, but his effective personality and his superiority to small partisan issues viewed in relation to the big problems at stake.

ELIZABETH B. WELLS.

HE WANTS TO KNOW.

St. Joseph, Mich., Sept. 22.—Mr. Roosevelt says, "I have seen war!" An ex-service man asks, "Where?"

S. M. PURDUE.

COULD MAKE CITY AN EDEN.

Chicago, Sept. 16.—Speaking of Illinois in 1818 a man said, "It was a Garden of Eden." Illinois? This centralized state which houses great Chicago and so much history of the less romantic sort?

This morning I took a walk. Where? Down our alley and back again. Two and three story flats line the alley, each with a little back lawn. Every lot has a tree or two. The crickets are chirruping and the birds are singing. A few insects buzz around. This is the heart of the city, and the light haze gives an ethereal atmosphere to the early mornings.

From the boulevard comes the quiet burr of trafic, and an occasional voice is heard. School occupies the young children once more, and adults go serenely about their work. An occasional neighborly call goes from a passerby, but most of the women work alone, though they enjoy sociability at the P.-T. A., or in shopping centers.

I looked at the alley. Asphalt covers the pavement in splotches, and bare tall fences line the way. Two landlords painted their apartments a light cream color, and that made the other complacent gray buildings look so undeservingly dirty that the other landlords had to follow suit. But there they stand, clean and bleak, backs of houses, garages, and bare tall fences. And I thought: We could change all this!

We could plant hedges in place of those bleak fences, put in a composition road lined with white pebbles, such as I saw in a suburb recently. We could replace these frame garages, none large enough for the newer streamlined cars, with longer, gracefully slung stone structures, topped with interesting roofs. Little by little those houses could be made into something architecturally pleasing.

I drew a deep breath. The tangy smell of autumn fills the air. Not an objectionable odor is in this portion of a crowded city. Why, we have everything right here. We don't have to dream of estates or wait for homes in the suburbs. Some of us will live in crowded cities all our lives. The surge of city life is in us. The importance of its great appointments is our meat. This can be our paradise, if we will only make it.

NON WHEATONITES BEWARE!

Palatine, Ill., Sept. 17.—Last evening we took a drive to cool off and ended up in Wheaton. On our way home, coming down Front street, turning north on Main, we encountered a gang of about 500 boys and were pelted from all sides with rotten melons, oranges, and tomatoes. Before our windows could be raised we were all splattered and you can imagine how our car looked. Seeing no policemen, we drove to police headquarters to report the incident, whereupon the officer in charge told us, "We can do nothing; it's you outsiders who have caused it."

WANTS TO HEAR ANNE LINDBERGH.

Chicago, Sept. 19.—It is appalling to discover how many women there are who have fed upon moral indignation until they are now ready to lay down some one else's life.

Could we not have Anne Lindbergh of the shining courage and the gentle voice on the radio to speak for and to the mothers of America? Could not THE TRIBUNE or its readers bring this about and earn the intense gratitude of those of us who believe in the cause of life itself and are not straining our eyes across an ocean to seek some distant cause?

ONE MOTHER.

A CRIPPLE HAD TO STAND.

Chicago, Sept. 16.—Is it not customary for nonpaying passengers, such as firemen, mailmen, policemen, and street car men to give up their seats to paid passengers, especially cripples?

While riding on south bound car on Halsted on Wednesday such an incident happened. A crippled girl boarded the car at 26th street. She remained standing to 47th street, while city employés [free passengers], remained seated.

THE WORLD WAR 25 YEARS AGO

Turn to today's Graphic Section for a continuance of this world war summary for the dates Aug. 19 to Sept. 24, 1914. Tomorrow, Sept. 25, the summary of events 25 years ago will be resumed in this column, coinciding date for date with the daily reports of the war now in progress in Europe.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

The volume of Legal Friend mail necessitates printed statements on common questions. No copies or records of the letters or answers are kept. Hence follow-up letters should be complete in themselves. If questions are based on some previously printed problem a clipping of the article should accompany. Most of the replies are mailed. Letters bearing no name and address are disregarded. A self-addressed envelope will expedite handling.

EXECUTOR'S FEES.

Chicago, Sept. 14 [Legal Friend of the People].—A relative living in Indiana died and left a will, making some special bequests and the residue to be divided among four direct heirs. This estate has been unsettled for five years.

1. What is the legal rate in Indiana regarding fees an executor and his attorney can collect?

2. Can executor in Indiana collect 5 per cent rental fees, also 3 per cent real estate commissions, besides his regular fees as executor?

3. What are the usual court charges in Indiana for settling estates?

4. When should heirs file objections to the court in regard to excess fees?

A. B.

1. The allowance is largely discretionary with the probate judge. Ordinarily higher fees are allowed in large cities than in small towns.

2. The executor does not necessarily have anything to do with the real estate. If the beneficiaries have chosen to put the management of the real estate in his hands, rights would depend on the agreement.

3. See preceding answers.

4. At the time of the filing of the final account claiming excessive fees.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

"NO PEDDLERS."

Chicago, Sept. 12 [Friend of the People].—This 47th ward district is zoned for no peddlers. We have more peddlers than ever howling from 8 a. m. to 9 p. m. Why is the ordinance not enforced? One has a closed auto. Says he has no peddler's license. He is very noisy and persistent.

J. S.

Officers assigned report that they spent considerable time in the vicinity complained of and arrested three peddlers for peddling in a restricted zone.

The vicinity will be given special attention and an effort made to stop these complaints. Members of the command traveling through said vicinity have been instructed to give the location special attention as to said violations.

DISEASE TAKES HEAVIEST TOLL OF BATTLE DEAD

New Epidemics Feared in War Abroad.

When man seeks to destroy himself nature stands cynically ready to assist him. That is the warning expressed in an editorial on "Epidemics After Wars" in the current Journal of the American Medical association.

Another pandemic of influenza, similar to that which swept the world during the world war, may well be expected in association with the present war, the editorial says. It quotes Dr. Thomas M. Rivers of the Rockefeller institute. Dr. Rivers told the recent Congress on Microbiology that scientists suspected that a return of the influenza epidemic might occur 25 to 30 years following the 1918 outbreak.

If a long war ensues more than a quarter of a century will have elapsed.

No Effective Remedy.

Dr. Rivers said that no effective weapon either for the prevention or treatment of influenza has been found.

The movement of great masses of men across wide areas where they come in contact with other peoples invariably means the spread of disease, the article asserts. In practically every war for which records are available disease has caused more deaths than military engagements. Typhus, plague, cholera, typhoid, dysentery and pneumonia do more damage than torpedoes, guns and poison gas.

During the world war, the Journal says, American losses totaled 50,385 killed or died of battle wounds; 58,119 dead from disease. In the Spanish American war 379 were killed in battle; 4,795 died of disease.

Disease Takes Heavier Toll.

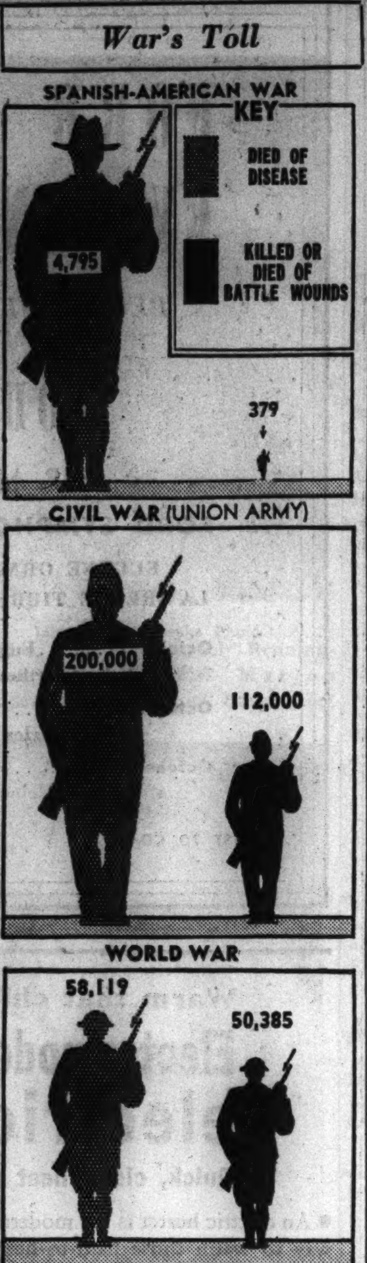
In the civil war the Union army lost more than 200,000 men by disease and approximately 112,000 from battle wounds.

The editorial reports that since the world war there has been a great advance in the development of antiseptics and of the surgery of injuries.

"In 1918 the problems of tetanus and of gas gangrene were serious," the editorial states. "Much was learned relative to the proper treatment of war wounds.

"New drugs like sulfanilamide and sulfapyridine give possibility of control over various types of infection which formerly were invariably fatal."

Pneumonia, gas gangrene, trench fever and trench mouth are more amenable to modern therapy than in 1918, it is stated.



Sizes of uniformed figures illustrate relationship of disease and guns as killers of American soldiers in the civil war, Spanish-American war, and world war. In each case the number killed by disease was larger. In the case of the Spanish-American war it was much larger.

MUNDELEIN WILL MARK 25TH YEAR AS ARCHBISHOP

Cardinal Mundelein yesterday decreed a year of jubilee in which the twenty-fifth anniversary of his appointment as archbishop of Chicago will be celebrated by a mission in each of the more than 400 churches of the archdiocese. He was appointed by Pope Pius X. to succeed the late Archbishop James E. Quigley on Nov. 30, 1915.

The Diocesan Mission band, a group of priests established as mission preachers when Cardinal Mundelein celebrated his silver anniversary as a bishop on Nov. 20, 1934, will conduct the missions for the jubilee year of 1939 and 1940. Thus far they have been scheduled to aid in more than sixty churches.

The thirtieth anniversary of Cardinal Mundelein's elevation to the episcopate as auxiliary bishop of Brooklyn was observed Thursday in Holy Name cathedral.

Boost Illinois CCC Quota by 4,212 During October

The war department notified the Illinois Emergency Relief commission yesterday that 4,212 Illinois youths may be assigned to the Civilian Conservation corps next month. Carl H. Martini, IERC certification officer, said this quota will be filled. Notices of honorable discharges of boys who have found private employment reached the 200 mark last week, Martini said.

SUES RAILROAD EQUIPMENT HEIR TO VOID DIVORCE

Ex-Wife's Letter to Other Man Bared by Defense.

Mrs. Cecile Garvy Potts looked yesterday at a letter to a married man named Frank—and told Judge Oscar Nelson she wrote it before she divorced William Fernandes Potts on Aug. 2.

Mrs. Potts, who is 30 years old, was under cross-examination in her suit to set the divorce aside. She is the daughter of Dr. Andrew Cosmas Garvy, a surgeon. Potts, who is 31, is the heir to a railroad equipment manufacturing fortune.

In her suit Mrs. Potts asserts her husband threatened her to make her agree to the divorce. She also states that she was ignorant of the extent of his wealth.

Asked If She Loved Husband.

Robert E. Cantwell Jr., attorney for Potts, asked her yesterday:

"Were you in love with your husband?"

The plaintiff, a slender brunette, said she wasn't sure.

"Maybe this will refresh your memory," said Cantwell, offering the letter in evidence. He asked her if she wrote it. She nodded. The letter, written at Lakeside, Mich., on Sept. 12, 1938, read, in part:

"I have taken a cottage over here for the month of September, and I have the kids and the help with me. I wish you would write me, honey, and if possible, come over for a few days.

"You are a darling, Frank, and I get so much pleasure out of being alone like this and just living over my memories. Bill will not be up again, as things are going very badly. It was imperative I leave as I was very sick after you left.

Tells Plans for Divorce.

"And already I feel fine again. I expect to get a divorce the first of March. My dearest love, always."

Resuming questioning, Cantwell asked if she knew Frank was married. She said she did. Frequently while she testified she burst into tears.

Q.—Did you say you were going to marry Frank when he got his divorce? A.—No.

Q.—Did you say "I'm going to feather my nest before I get rid of Bill?" A.—No.

Mrs. Potts lives at 3920 Marine drive with her three children, William, 6 years old; Peter, 4, and Patricia, 1½. When she divorced Potts on a cruelty charge, it was agreed that he and she have custody of the children for alternate six months periods. He gave her $7,500 in lieu of alimony, and agreed to provide a home and $400 a month for the children until the youngest is 14 years old. In her bill Mrs. Potts says she thought she was getting separate maintenance when she agreed to these terms.

The next hearing will be held on Oct. 7.

HEWITT ASKS WPA TO PAINT ALL 'L' PILLARS IN LOOP

Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works, yesterday asked the Works Project administration to paint the pillars of the elevated structure in the downtown district as a WPA project. His petition was prompted by a request from the downtown council of business men and property owners.

In a letter to H. K. Seltzer, Chicago WPA administrator, Hewitt said the work would be a safety measure for the benefit of pedestrians and vehicles by brightening up dark hazards.

Hewitt suggested that the project be made part of an existing WPA project under which railway underpasses throughout the city have been painted.

Uninvited Guest Robs Bride of Rings and Watch

An uninvited guest yesterday attended the wedding reception for the former Miss Mary Lou Janke and James Daniels at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Janke, in Lake Marie, Lake county. He took two rings and a wrist watch, valued at more than $900, from the bride, and another wrist watch and two purses from members of the bride's and bridegroom's families. Mrs. Janke's father is an executive of the Commonwealth Edison company. Daniels' home is at 4829 North Paulina street.

Mrs. F. Haven Clark Wed to Commander L. J. Wiltsie

Nahant, Mass., Sept. 23 [U. P.].—In sharp contrast to the elaborate weddings of two of her daughters, Mrs. F. Haven Clark, 46 years old, mother-in-law of John Roosevelt, was married to Commander Lloyd Jerome Wiltse, U. S. N., of Washington, D. C., today without wedding attendants. The simple ceremony was performed by Dr. James D. Cummins, the rector, at the Church of the Holy Name [Episcopal]. Among the few guests were the bride's three daughters, Mrs. Anne Clark Roosevelt, Mrs. Sally Clark McLanahan of New York and Miss Joan Clark. Mrs. Clark's first husband, a Boston investment counselor, died in 1936. Wiltse, 48, was a bachelor.

WORKER BEATEN BY PICKETS IN UTILITY STRIKE

Michigan Calls Meetings with Both Sides.

Lansing, Mich., Sept. 23 [Special].—First violence in Michigan's spreading C. I. O. public utility strike broke out here tonight not long after Gov. Luren D. Dickinson called conferences for Monday morning with union and company representatives.

A gang of five or six pickets attacked William Diamond, an electric crew foreman for the strike bound Consumers' Power company, and beat him severely, fleeing before police arrived.

Separate Conferences.

Representatives of the Utility Workers Organizing Committee, the striking union, will meet the governor at 10 o'clock, Leslie B. Butler, executive secretary, said, while a company delegation is scheduled for a conference at 10:30.

Commissioner Oscar G. Olander of the state police, working under the governor's orders, stands ready to assist any local authorities in preventing interruption of vital service. Severe gas shortages in cities not served with natural gas by the company might be expected by Monday. Only the fact that factories were closed today prevented a serious shortage in Flint, since that city's normal daily consumption of 5,000,000 cubic feet would quickly exhaust the 8,000,000 cubic feet stored.

Walkout Spreading.

No important developments in the strike situation are expected over the week-end, Butler said, although reports indicated a gradual spread of the walkout to many of the 1,000 communities served with electricity and gas by Consumers throughout the southern part of the state.

The strike is due to a dispute between the C. I. O. affiliate and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, an A. F. of L. union, over exclusive bargaining rights with the Consumers company. The strike does not involve the A. F. of L. unionists.

Lily Lake Farmer Wins Big Rock Plowing Contest

Orvis Schroyer of Lily Lake won the 45th annual plowing contest at Big Rock, near Aurora, yesterday. He barely defeated last year's champion, Paul Stiefboldt of Naperville. Both men used tractors. There was only one entrant in the horse drawn division. He was Homer Lapp of Wheatland. He received a prize.

TOLL OF QUAKES IN TURKEY RISES; COUNT 200 DEAD

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Sept. 23 (AP).—Rescue crews and Red Cross workers searched today the wreckage of 1,000 buildings leveled by an earthquake yesterday in the Smyrna region.

At least 200 persons were reported dead and the toll mounted as the search of débris continued. The government placed funds in the hands of Smyrna authorities to care for more than 5,000 homeless in the Aegean seaport area.

The tremors were felt in Ankara and Istanbul but no property damage was reported there.

THE STEEL MILLS ROAR: COME GET YOUR JOBS BACK

Calumet Area Booms, but Relief Still Problem.

Something akin to prosperity has come to the Great Calumet region. Its steel mills are operating at 85 per cent of capacity. The number of workers had increased to 60,000, or 7,500 more than were on the payrolls a month ago. Another 3,000 may be called to labor in the mills in the next 30 days.

All this activity—and the plants are employing about as many men as they did in the peak period of 1937—leaves relief officials uncertain whether the burden of public spending for the support of the poor will be greatly lessened.

Too Early to Form Opinion.

Hammond, East Chicago, Whiting, and Gary are all within the Calumet region. In Gary the township trustee, Mrs. Frankie Helman, who handles direct relief, said yesterday it was not yet possible to determine the effect of the steel upturn on the relief rolls. Her investigators are busy classifying new applications for help, occasioned in part by the layoff of WPA workers who have been employed more than 18 months on government projects. A few of the applicants, who have found jobs, have been weeded out.

The WPA still supports 3,500 workers in the steel area, according to Supervisor E. E. Anderson. A year ago, at the peak just before election, there were 10,000 on the rolls. But there is still a long waiting list and local governments are going ahead planning projects to employ the applicants.

Fewer Seek Relief Now.

The office of John Mehan, trustee of North Township, reported encouraging prospects. It was said that the number of new relief applicants, which usually increases in autumn, was smaller than it was a year ago, and that there were many withdrawals from the lists in East Chicago, Hammond, and Whiting.

The unemployment office in Gary reported that state unemployment checks decreased from 2,200 a month ago to 1,000 last week. The general opinion is that the total of government supported persons is less, although the local communities have been forced to take over many cases because of dismissals by WPA.

Last to feel the effects of prosperity will be the local agencies. Their custom is to keep a client on relief until he gets his first pay check from the mills two weeks after he begins work.

Public Dole to Remain.

Relief officials do not believe the mills can absorb enough workers to eliminate the need for public spending, although the amount of spending may be reduced. They said that in the 1937 period, when mills were running 85 per cent of capacity, equivalent to present conditions, at least 5,000 persons were dependent on WPA and local taxing bodies.

Business in all the towns has been pepped up by the steel boomlet, which has been gathering momentum since Labor day. Telegrams instructing workers to report at the mills are being sent out daily. Some of them have not worked since the 1937 peak period, which ended in midyear, and had to be summoned from distant points. Labor union leaders said the companies apparently were following seniority rules in the recall.

The standard work week is five days of eight hours each and the average plant employé's wage is $33 a week. At the Inland Steel company plant in Gary, it was reported, a shortage of skilled workers had developed.

50 Nationalities on Job.

Most of the steel workers—and they represent 50 nationalities—spend freely when they have it. They are steady buyers, on the instalment plan, of automobiles and household utilities. A reasonable proportion of their earnigs goes to taverns.

Food and clothing merchants report their trade rising. Even the real estate market is expanding and rents are being boosted in the steel cities.

HIGHLAND PARK WIFE WINS SUIT FOR A DIVORCE

Mrs. Kathryn Stafford, 360 Park avenue, Highland Park, was granted a divorce by Judge Ralph Dady in Waukegan yesterday from Webster N. Stafford, an insurance broker residing at the Lake Shore Athletic club. Mrs. Stafford charged her husband deserted her in December, 1937. She was awarded custody of two children, Raymond, 14 years old, and Ann, 11, and $125 a month for their support. Her attorneys, Sidney H. Block and Erskine Edwards, announced an out of court property settlement had been made. Mrs. Stafford operates a gift shop in Highland Park. She is the daughter of the late Raymond W. Stevens, former president of the Illinois Life Insurance company.

Autumn Brides

Mrs. Edward Daniel Benninghoven, formerly Miss Marion Frances Fairweather of Barrington.

[Koehne Photo.]
Mrs. James Grierson Shennan, who was Miss Bette Rich until her marriage yesterday afternoon in Winnetka.

BY JUDITH CASS.

In a pretty ceremony in the living room of Mrs. R. Joseph Rich's Winnetka home at 4:30 p. m. yesterday her elder daughter, Miss Bette Rich, became the bride of James G. Shennan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice G. Shennan of Hazelton, Pa. The bride, tall and statuesque, wore a simple but stunning gown of white satin and carried a lace trimmed handkerchief that belonged to her great-grandmother.

The maid and matron of honor, Miss Peggy Rich and Mrs. Joseph E. Rich, wore green, and the six bridesmaids were in autumn bronze. All wore small feather hats to match their frocks. They carried chrysanthemums. After a month's wedding trip Mr. Shennan and his bride will be at home in St. Charles.

At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the Methodist Episcopal church in Barrington, Miss Marian Frances Fairweather, daughter of the George O. Fairweathers, was married to Edward Daniel Benninghoven, son of the Daniel Benninghovens. The bride wore a slipper satin princess style dress and carried white gladioli and lilies of the valley. Her attendants wore hyacinth blue net frocks over paler blue slips and carried gladioli in an American beauty shade. Their little feather hats matched their dresses. After a reception at the Barrington Hills Country club, Mr. Benninghoven and his bride left on a motor trip east. They will live on the north side.

NEW CHARGES HURLED IN WILL COUNTY INQUIRY

Conrad J. Wirth of Joliet, former county treasurer of Will county, who is accused of being $104,966 short in his accounts while treasurer, asserted yesterday that he not only doesn't owe Will county a cent, but that the county in all probability owes him money.

He made this assertion in a legalistic letter to his successor, County Treasurer James C. Bell. Wirth wrote that if all bad checks tendered in payment for taxes, all I. O. U.'s given by employés for advances on their pay, and other like items were placed on the credit side of his accounts, it would be shown he was not really short.

These items, he declared, amounted to $20,417 and included a single item of $8,921 which he alleged was money taken by Albert E. Kinson, his chief deputy and assistant county treasurer. Kinson was reached in Cleveland, O., last night and branded Wirth's statement as "a big lie." Kinson said Wirth had owed him $4,500 in salary, and he finally obtained it by giving receipts, but not I. O. U.'s.

Wirth's case, it is understood, will be presented to the grand jury this week. A civil suit may also be started and his surety had been given to Sept. 22 to make good the alleged shortage.

ASK CANCELATION OF TAX CLAIMS AGAINST 2 FIRMS

Petitions were filed yesterday before the United States board of tax appeals in Washington asking cancelation of $2,090,273 in extra assessments against two former Chicago concerns for income taxes, excess profits taxes, and penalties for 1933 and 1934. The concerns are the General News Bureau, Inc., dissolved in 1936, and Radio Guide, Inc., dissolved in 1935.

The assessment against the General News bureau is $1,876,323, which includes $625,435 in penalties. The company paid $361,894 in taxes for the two years, the records show, and its attorneys contend the government is barred from a further assessment by the statute of limitations. The claim against Radio Guide is for $213,950.

Moses L. Annenberg, Philadelphia publisher and New Deal critic, who was indicted here last month on charges of income tax evasion, was president of Radio Guide. A. W. Kruse, indicted with Annenberg, was president of the General News Bureau. Kruse is now serving as an official of the Cecelia company, an Annenberg concern.

Radio Tower Completed for Morton Grove Police

Workmen yesterday put the finishing touches on the 270 foot transmitter tower for the two way radio system of the Morton Grove county highway police. The tower, which cost $11,000, will be placed in operation next weekend. Ten squad cars equipped both to send and receive messages will greatly increase the efficiency of the police force, Chief Lester Laird said. Homewood and Willow Springs stations are to be similarly equipped early next year, Chief Laird said.

Fight Tank Car Blaze 4 Hours; Spreads to Prairie

For four hours yesterday firemen fought a blaze that swept over nine empty oil tank cars in the Hegewisch plant of the Pressed Steel company, 136th street and Brandon avenue, near Burnham. Prairie grass near by caught fire and at one time the blaze covered an area a mile square.

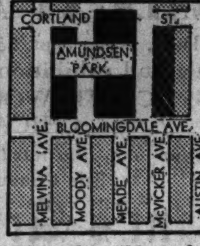
New Building Firm Outlines Home Program

PLANS 66 UNITS; TEN ARE UNDER CONSTRUCTION

Will Build 25 in North Austin Area.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

A new Chicago building organization, Carrothers & Braun, yesterday announced a home building program calling for 66 residential units. Twenty-five of these are to be built in the north Austin area and 41 are contemplated for North Riverside. Ten units are under construction on the east side of McVicker avenue, north of Bloomingdale avenue, and on the north side of Bloomingdale, between McVicker and Austin avenues.



Diagonal markings show location of new houses.

The 41 residential units planned for North Riverside have been approved by the Federal Housing administration and work is expected to start shortly.

Homes Near Forest Preserve.

They will be built in the block bounded on the north by West 29th street, on the west by Lincoln avenue, on the south by West 30th street, and by Des Plaines avenue on the east. This block is just south of forest preserve property and one block east of another forest preserve area.

The North Riverside houses will comprise 20 duplexes and one single family residence. They will occupy 60 foot lots and will sell at from $6,500 to $7,000, it was said.

The 25 residential units in the North Austin property will consist of 12 duplex buildings and 1 single family dwelling.

The 5 buildings under construction contain 10 units of 5 and 6 rooms each and will sell from $6,400 up to $7,700. These prices, it was said, include all costs—land, landscaping, and financing.

Example of Costs.

As an example of costs, the figures for a 5 room unit were broken down by Martin Braun, architect. The complete cost was given as $6,500, of which amount $1,000 was for the 50 by 172 foot lot. The down payment was $700; the 20 year FHA insured mortgage was $5,800. The monthly payments on this loan will be approximately $49.10, it was said.

According to Braun, as soon as the 10 units now under way in North Austin are completed, work will be started on 15 more in the same block. The latter will be divided into seven 2 family or duplex residences, and 1 single family house. All units have attached garages.

New Building Firm.

The firm of Carrothers & Braun is composed of Earl Carrothers and Martin H. Braun. Carrothers has been with W. H. Wright & Co. for the last 20 years and continues with that organization. For a time he was with the FHA and also in the county assessor's office.

Braun, as architect, designed and built more than 400 houses for the Fred J. Walsh company. He recently resigned from the Walsh organization.

Insurance Company Sells Twelve Flats for $22,000

The Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance company yesterday sold to the Lelock Building corporation the twelve flat building at the southeast corner of Champlain avenue and East 62d street for a reported $22,000. Bisno & Bisno and Baird & Warner were brokers.

Brokers' Notes

Marvin E. Ellinwood, formerly of the Ellinwood Realty company; John J. Halper, of the Wakefield Realty company, and John O. Wilson, formerly of Carroll, Wilson & Fox, and also with Lockwood & Strickland, have formed the realty firm of Ellinwood, Halper & Wilson, Inc., with offices at 349 East 75th street.

Pierre G. Beach, former president of the Evanston-North Shore Real Estate board, is now a member of the sales staff of Baird & Warner, Inc. He will operate from the Evanston office of that firm.

Floyd G. Dana & Co. have appointed Herbert W. Thompson manager of their Beverly Hills office, at 1767 West 95th street.

UNDERTAKER BUILDS CHAPEL.

Contracts have been let and work has been started on modernizing the building at 6935 Stony Island avenue into a chapel for Sam S. Piser, undertaker. A. Epstein designed the rebuilding.

Build Duplex Homes on West Side

(Story in adjoining column.)

Above are some of the houses under construction by the new building firm of Carrothers & Braun at the northeast intersection of McVicker and Bloomingdale avenues. These are all duplex or two family dwellings, although from the exterior they look like single family residences. They were designed by Martin H. Braun. All have five rooms and sell for $6,400 to $6,700. All will be financed with 20 year FHA insured mortgages. When these are completed fifteen more units in the same block will be built, it was said.

M'KEY & POAGUE REPORTS STEADY GAIN IN SALES

Frank J. O'Brien, vice president of McKey & Poague, Inc., yesterday reported that his company's sales for 1939 are still on an upward trend compared with last year. Despite the interference of vacations, August sales, he said, were well over $300,000. A majority of the deals are of the single family dwelling type, but increasing numbers of income properties are being sold, O'Brien said.

Frank J. O'Brien.

Among properties sold were one tract of vacant, sixteen bungalows, and houses, 10 two flat buildings, three three apartments, one six, two nines, one twelve, and one thirty apartment building.

"Buyers assert it is becoming increasingly difficult to select rentable units to satisfy their need and therefore are buying homes to suit their requirements," O'Brien said. "In many cases they are buying properties that will serve as homes and supplement their income."

PLANS 12 MORE RESIDENCES IN NORWOOD PARK

E. A. Fagerstrom & Co. of 6205 Milwaukee avenue announced yesterday that they intended to build twelve more homes in their subdivision, a block west of Milwaukee and Devon avenues, in the Norwood Park area. They recently completed and sold a six room brick residence at 6339 North Neenah avenue and a five room brick bungalow at 6521 Palatine avenue. Both of these homes will be open for inspection today.

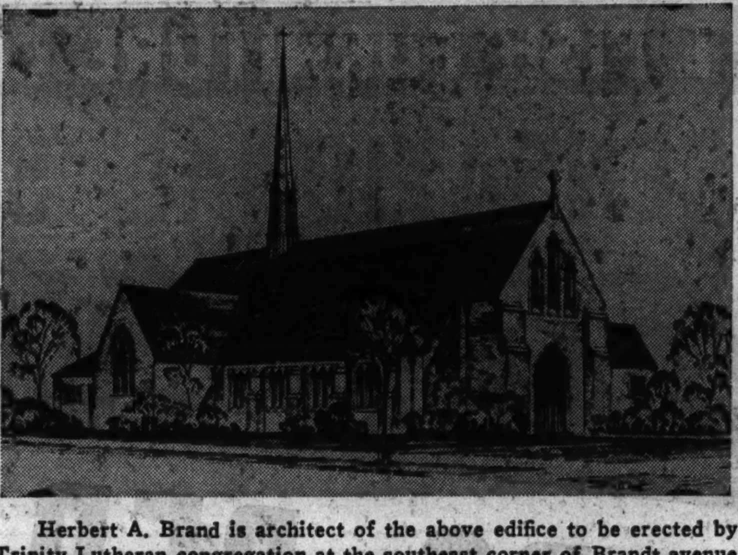
Realty Miscellany

Philip Dodd, formerly publicity director for the Chicago Real Estate board, is now directing publicity for the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross.

Mrs. W. H. Wright, former business manager of the Illinois Association of Real Estate Boards, and head of the real estate firm of W. H. Wright & Co., Oak Park, will speak next Wednesday evening before the Columbus Real Estate board, Columbus, O. She also will speak at the Iowa state realty convention, in Des Moines, Ia., on Nov. 10.

Two evening real estate courses covering real estate practice and appraisals, will be conducted by Percy E. Wagner, zone rental manager of the Illinois Federal Housing administration, in the fall semester at Central Y. M. C. A. college, 19 South La Salle street. Both classes will meet on Thursday evenings. The course started on Sept. 21.

New Suburban Church



Herbert A. Brand is architect of the above edifice to be erected by Trinity Lutheran congregation at the southeast corner of Brandt avenue and 97th street, Oak Lawn. It will have an auditorium seating 325. The church was organized in 1874. The present building, erected in 1881, is at 5002 West 95th street. The Rev. J. H. Prange is pastor.

HAS 42 HOUSES NOW BUILDING IN LINCOLNWOOD

The Fred J. Walsh company has forty-two houses under construction in its new Lincolnwood Estates development at the northeast corner of Cicero and Pratt avenues, in Lincolnwood. Seven already have been completed and are occupied. Sixteen more have been contracted for and will be built for May 1, 1940 delivery. This makes a total of sixty-five houses sold to date.

The Walsh company does no speculative building in this area. All homes are built to order. The development is floodlighted at night. Martin H. Braun designed all of the homes thus far built.

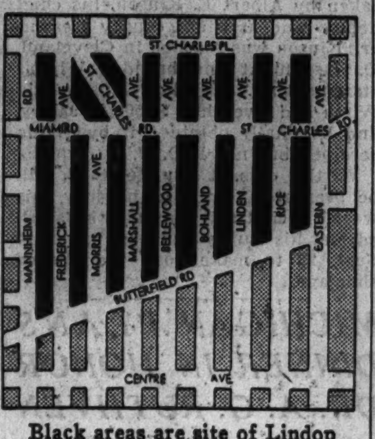
News of the Architects

The "grand final golf tournament" of the Architect's Club of Chicago will be held next Wednesday, Sept. 27, at the Elmhurst Country club. It originally was scheduled for Sept. 28 but has been moved ahead one day.

LINDOP PLANS 100 NEW HOMES FOR BELLWOOD

Four Sold; Two Finished; Two Under Way.

The John Cummings Lindop Real Estate corporation yesterday announced a building program of 100 homes for its Miami Park development in Bellwood. As a preliminary step four residences have been sold. Two are under construction, and two have been completed. Two of these are on Bohland avenue, north of St. Charles road, and two are on Bellwood avenue, south of St. Charles road.



Black areas are site of Lindop development.

The Miami Park subdivision, comprising eighty acres, was opened in 1926. Sixty homes were built prior to the beginning of the depression in 1929.

The development is bounded on the north by St. Charles place, by Mannheim [La Grange] road on the west, by Butterfield road on the south, and by Eastern avenue on the east. It is bisected by St. Charles road.

According to Lindop, there are still 300 lots, 40x134 feet, available for new homes. The residences being built sold from $6,000 to $6,500 and have five and six rooms. All are of brick, with full basements, and were financed with 25 year FHA insured mortgages.

Lindop said the success of his two Broadview home developments on Roosevelt road, at 12th and 20th avenues, encouraged him to undertake the Bellwood building program. Forty-three homes have been sold in the two Broadview projects.

Sixteen Houses Under Way in Hugo Pick Subdivision

Hugo Pick of Winnetka yesterday reported that 24 one-acre tracts have been sold since he opened the second part of his Fairhope farms subdivision on Higgins road, between Wolf and Elmhurst roads, comprising 40 acres. There have been built or are under construction 16 homes ranging in cost from $1,200 to $6,000.

ZONING BOARD WORKS ON COOK COUNTY PROGRAM

Plans Public Hearings During Winter.

Robert Kingery.

Cook county's zoning program is nearing completion, according to Robert Kingery, chairman of the Cook county zoning board. He announced yesterday that the mapping of the 500 square miles of unincorporated area of Cook county would be completed and field checked by the commission by the end of November. Public hearings will be held in each of the townships of the county during the winter months.

The zoning ordinance, covering all land outside of Chicago and other incorporated communities in Cook county, will be ready for presentation to the board of county commissioners in February or March, 1940, it was predicted.

Lake Zurich to Be Zoned.

The Cook county zoning commission, besides Kingery, has the following members: Joseph K. Brittain, Andrew J. Dallstream, Harold F. Egan, August Geweke, Walter P. Saunders, and William L. Voss. Ex-officio members are: Thomas Corcoran, county map department; George Quinlan, county highway department, and H. Gordon Bollman, county assessor's office. Howard K. Olson is secretary. Chairman Kingery is general manager of the Chicago Regional Planning association.

One of the results of county zoning in Illinois is being shown in Lake Zurich. Following the zoning of all of Lake county outside of town areas the unzoned town of Lake Zurich decided it must zone itself to prevent its property being used for undesirable and unregulated purposes.

Names Zoning Commission.

William A. White, president of the village, has appointed the following zoning commission: A. J. Crawford, chairman; Henry Branding, William F. Buhr, C. J. Erickson, J. D. Fink, Ferguson Harkness, Oscar Richter, Fred C. Seip, James Snetsinger, and Edward F. Young.

Lake Zurich is changing from a community of summer residents to an all-year town and it is to meet this situation that the village is being zoned.

"We realize that conservation of property values in the village is now largely dependent on adoption and administration of a reasonable zoning regulation," said Chairman Crawford.

Du Page county was the pioneer Illinois county to adopt county zoning for the area outside of towns. Since December, 1935, when it was zoned, building permits in the unincorporated area have totaled more than $2,725,000.

Kane county adopted a zoning ordinance in December, 1937, and Lake county took similar action in April, 1939. Will county has had a county zoning commission which completed and presented an ordinance to the board of supervisors in December, 1938. The matter still is pending before that board.

Books

"Principles of Urban Real Estate," by Arthur M. Weimer and Homer Hoyt. [Ronald Press, $4.]

Homer Hoyt.

Whenever a parcel or urban real estate is bought, sold, rented, improved, mortgaged, appraised, or taxed, a number of important questions arise, the authors point out in their preface.

Some of these are: "What is the property worth?" "Why is it worth so much or so little?" "Will it be worth more or less ten years from now than it is today?" "Why?" "What is its 'highest and best' use?" "What kind of financing plan will fit its needs?" "What are best methods of selling or renting it?"

The book attempts to present a summary statement of the economic principles and business practices which help to answer these questions and others related to them.

Weimer is professor of real estate and land economics at Indiana university. Hoyt, a former Chicagoan, is now principal housing economist for the Federal Housing administration at Washington. He is author of "One Hundred Years of Land Values in Chicago," published by the University of Chicago Press in 1933.

"The Property Service Index—a National Directory of Foremost Real Estate Brokers and Appraisers." [Bar List Publishing company, 323 South Dearborn street, Chicago. $5.]

This is the first annual edition of a directory of brokers and appraisers throughout the country chosen, according to the publishers, with particular regard to experience and reliability. It also contains a list of corporations which operate throughout extensive territory and own or lease properties for branch plants, warehouses, stores, oil service stations, etc. and financial institutions concerned with real estate loans. It has law digests and statutory forms of various states. The book was edited by R. W. Martindale.

"Sullivan's Chicago Law Directory," compiled by Robert B. and Frank H. Sullivan. [Sullivan's Chicago Law Directory, 33 South Market street, Chicago. $3.]

The 63d edition of Sullivan's Chicago Law Directory, published annually, was issued recently. It has been enlarged to 758 pages. As usual, in addition to a list of all members of the Chicago bar, it contains much general information, including rules of practice in the federal and state courts, and the personnel of local bank and corporation law departments.

The Stacy map publishers of Rockford, Ill., have completed a new farm plat book of McHenry county. It shows an increase in larger estates, according to Roy Stacy.

Modernized apartments in Streeterville.

Many of the suites have been rented prior to completion, which is set for Oct. 1, it was said.

The building is owned by Mrs. H. B. Harvey, of New York, and Mrs. Caroline Delteil and Miss Katharine Dudley, of France, all daughters of the late Dr. Emelius C. Dudley, who erected it.

In addition to remodeling the interior the exterior walls have been painted. The former red brick has been colored black and the stone work, iron grilles and window frames are white.

The building was erected 50 years ago. It was sold by Joseph L. Duplissis to J. H. Wylie of Saginaw, Mich., in 1925.

The new owners will modernize the property and rent the 60 apartments furnished. The property is 190 by 100 feet.

Today is the best time in more than 30 years to buy a farm!

YOU CAN GET startling values in farms today—prices are low...carrying costs are lower...and terms are far easier.

The farm that cost $5,000 in 1920 may now be bought for about $2,500. After a small down payment, the unpaid balance can be carried for only $4.50 a year per hundred dollars, compared to the $6 per hundred that 1920 prices cost.

Modern equipment now lets one man farm many more acres than he used to. Modern methods mean a higher acre-yield...and better crops! Good roads and efficient motor trucks mean lower costs, too, in marketing farm products.

But best of all... NOW you can buy a farm that's in first-class shape before you buy it! These farms—called Opportunity Farms—offer you today's low prices and easy terms PLUS improved condition.

Write—today—for full information. Take advantage of low land prices and excellent operating conditions. Get yourself set for life on an Opportunity Farm.

Every farm, to be listed as an Opportunity Farm, must have adequate, sound, weather-tight buildings, well-painted; improved soil, with good drainage; and expertly planned crop rotation. Every Opportunity Farm is a going concern.

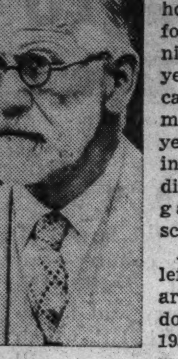
SIGMUND FREUD, WHO TRACED ALL TO SEX, IS DEAD

Succumbs in London at 83; Exiled by Nazis.

LONDON, Sept. 23 (AP).—Prof. Sigmund Freud, famed originator of psychoanalysis, died at his Hampstead, London home shortly before midnight tonight. He was 83 years old. He became ill several months ago and yesterday lapsed into coma and died without regaining consciousness.



Sigmund Freud.

A Jew, Freud left Vienna and arrived in London on June 6, 1938, after German annexation of Austria in March of that year. He made the trip on funds raised by American doctors and scientists, the Nazis having confiscated his money and property.

Freud left Vienna, where he had lived for 78 years, to the accompaniment of scornful attacks upon his theories in the government controled press. The newspapers suppressed mention of his name in telling of his departure and denounced his International Institute of Psychoanalysis.

Called Theories Godless.

It was not the first time that Freud and his works had been the subjects of sneers. Through the years, there was a considerable public element on both sides of the Atlantic who scoffed at him or considered his theories essentially Godless. He had but scanty followings in Latin countries, found comparatively few adherents in his native Austria and, after Hitler gained power in Germany, was on the proscribed list of the Nazis. Great Britain and the United States were his chief strongholds.

It was Freud who first broadcast the theory that all the mental ills of humankind could be traced directly to civilization's restraints upon sexual impulses. People generally were slow to take to this idea but in the years following the world war his adherents became numerous and constituted a vertible cult. Freudians began to talk about their "complexes," became conscious of "repressions" and chatted glibly about "inhibitions." As the cult spread thousands set themselves up as psychoanalysts and probed into the thoughts and even the dreams of patients.

Called Dreams Outlet for Idea.

Freud held that dreams were an attempted outlet for ideas and impulses, held back in the subsconscious mind by inhibitions. By persuading his patients to confess their dreams, he said he gained confirmation of many of his theories and, meanwhile, brought relief to troubled minds.

Freud's personal life was virtually devoid of the abnormal. He was born May 6, 1856, at Freiburg. When he was four the family moved to Vienna, and there he remained until 1938. He studied medicine at the University of Vienna, was a prize pupli in physiology and anatomy and won his doctorate in 1881. Freud married in 1886 and became the father of three sons and three daughters. Mrs. Freud kept his household moving peacefully. They lived in one apartment 45 years and she accompanied her aged husband into his London exile. One of the sons, Martin, handled most of his father's business affairs and a daughter, Anna, became his chief assistant and was regarded by him as his probable successor in the field of psychoanalysis.

Theories Shock Many.

In lectures and writings Freud resurrected Oedipus from the language of the dead and offered the "Oedipus complex" for the consideration of the scientific world. By this he meant that invariably—although perhaps unconsciously—boys fell in love with their mothers and girls with their fathers, and that each category became jealous of the parent in the other classification for affection bestowed upon the object of its love.

The medical world and most other elements of society, were shocked by Freud's insistence upon reducing all mental phenomena to terms of sexuality. He was ridiculed widely for this "pansexualism" and won few converts to his tenets.

Rites for Lucius Johnson to Be Held in Mt. Vernon

Mount Vernon, Ill., Sept. 23 [Special].—Funeral services will be held here tomorrow for Lucius Johnson, 76 years old, nationally known Colorado newspaper man who wrote under the by-line of Lute Johnson. He died Wednesday in Denver after an illness of six weeks. Johnson spent his youth here but left for Colorado in 1884 during the mining boom days. He combined his news writing with grub-staking miners. Throughout his life he evinced a keen interest in the development of the west.

Cyrus W. Lichty, Drummer Boy in Civil War, Is Dead

Cedar Falls, Ia., Sept. 23 [Special].—Cyrus W. Lichty, 87, last remaining civil war veteran here, died at his home late yesterday. He was one of the youngest veterans, having enlisted as a drummer boy at Dubuque, Ia., recruiting office when 12 years old. His widow and one daughter survive.

BRIDE AT 14, WED A YEAR, HAS KEY TO A HAPPY HOME

On $44 a Month, They Buy Home and a Pig.

Knoxville, Tenn., Sept. 23 [Special].—Just a year ago Dorothy Anne Belle, 14 years old, and Harry Joe Bowden, a mill worker in the nearby village of Monterey, defied Tennessee's newly made law against child marriages.

Today, on their first wedding anniversary, they are being held up by their friends and neighbors as examples of how to make a happy home.

They now look back on their first year of marriage—traditionally the most hazardous—with satisfaction. Despite Bowden's small wage of $44 a month, they saved enough money to buy a plot of ground and to build a cozy one room house.

"We're going to add to the house when we have the money," Bowden explained. "We have the house and lot paid for and we don't want to get into debt."

In a pen in the back yard is a pig being fattened to supply meat and lard for the winter. Dorothy, who feeds the pig, has made a pet of it. A garden supplies much of their food.

"We have a home of our own and enough to eat," said the young housewife. "Harry has a steady job and we get along well. What more could a young couple ask?"

Workmen at once began dismantling La Fortaleza for reconstruction, with WPA and insular funds, to preserve it as a Spanish colonial building and the oldest official residence under the American flag. La Fortaleza's two fortress towers, which face the harbor entrance, were completed in 1539.

CLINIC CAPTURES ORAL ZEPHYRS AND SNIFFS THEM

It Isn't What You Eat, but How Often.

It's not as much what you eat as it is the fact that you don't eat often enough that makes your best friends turn away from you in that quiet, pained manner.

Some people complain about onion breath. Well, onions do give you a breath that's a little strong perhaps. But if you go too long without eating anything, the Northwestern university dental clinic has learned, your p0 value shoots up.

p0 Is a Symbol.

p0 is the symbol used at the clinic to describe our indelicate social evil. It means odor concentration, and in two years' research five scientists at the halitosis clinic have sought to discover its causes and its cure.

The p0 is measured on a scale of from 0 to 6. If your p0 is 0 you are welcome anywhore. If it is 2 you still are safe, as that is the average rating. But anything above 2 may make your close presence unpleasant.

Clinic Gives It a Name.

The clinic first gave p0 a name, and then proceeded to measure it. This is done by catching exhaled breath, freezing its organic compounds, and measuring it. Now the scientists are trying to find what effects mouth conditions have on p0.

For three hours after eating, they found, your p0 is gone. Then it begins a deadly, sure rise. Five hours after mealtime it reaches its peak, and the only thing that abates it is another meal or the use of a toothbrush. That reduces it about 50 per cent, but for only an hour.

Present Every Morning.

Every one has early morning p0, and the only way to end it is by eating breakfast. If you drink only black coffee, then you'd better hurry and have lunch. You may think not, but the clinic knows.

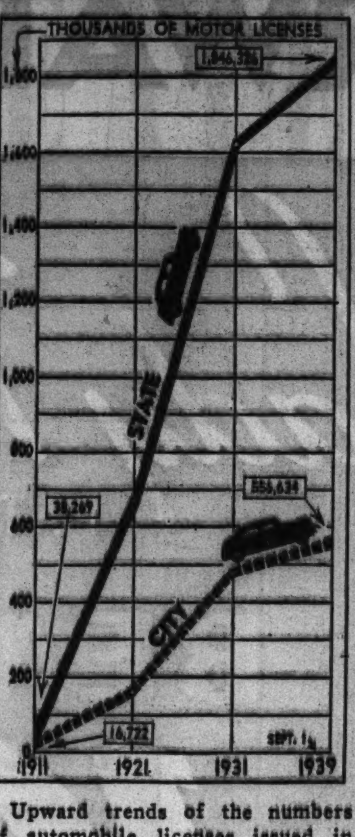
Few young people under 20 have p0; if so, its value is well below 2, but it increases with age. Its difference in men and women is negligible, the men's being a fraction higher.

As far as mouth conditions go, disorders such as gingivitis [inflamed or swollen gums] and pyorrhea are the worst offenders in causing it. And chewing gum really does help end it. It stimulates the flow of saliva.

ELECTRIC BURNS ARE FATAL.

John Schroeder, 43 years old, 1225 Greenwood avenue, a camera repair man, died yesterday in St. Mary's hospital of burns suffered last Dec. 22 when he came in contact with a high tension wire.

Auto License Peak



Upward trends of the numbers of automobile licenses issued in Chicago and in Illinois since 1911.

Chicagoans contribute almost one-third of the motor vehicle license collections in Illinois. During the first eight months of this year the state reached an all time high of 1,846,326 licenses, 556,634 of which were issued here, a record for Chicago.

The figures are included in a report made yesterday by Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works, to the city council finance committee, which is studying vehicle license collections. Hewitt said the percentage of Chicago vehicle licenses to state licenses has increased markedly during the last four years. He attributed an improvement in local license collections to activity by the city administration.

Accountant, Wife Robbed of $3,126 Cash and Gems

Charles J. Barkdull, an accountant, and his wife, Frances, were held up late last night by two armed bandits and robbed of $3,000 in jewelry and $126 in cash. The robbery took place in the drive way of the Barkdull home at 2440 Asbury avenue, Evanston. From Mrs. Barkdull the robbers took two rings, totally valued at $3,000.

BANDIT IS SLAIN, TWO MEN SHOT IN HOLDUP BATTLE

Calumet City Beer Store Scene of Gun Fight.

One bandit was shot and killed and another outlaw, a police lieutenant and a citizen were critically wounded late last night in a furious gun fight in a Calumet City beer store. A third bandit acted as lookout.

Those wounded were Lieut. Gene Iattoni of the Calumet City police department; John Fusner, 512 Lears street, Hammond, the citizen, and John Fryilich, 13431 Avenue N, one of the bandits. All were taken to St. Margaret's hospital, Hammond, suffering from serious body wounds.

The scene of the gun battle was the Charles H. Mayer beverage company store at 556 State Line street, in the suburb. Fifteen customers were in the place, and one, Fusner, was making a purchase from George Faist, 507 Freeland street, Calumet City, when two robbers entered. The third waited outside.

Police Interrupt Holdup.

"Hands up, everybody, this is a stickup," announced one of the bandits. He and his companion waved guns at the customers and the clerk. One of the robbers started to empty the till, getting about $15.

Just then Lieut. Iattoni and Policeman Benjamin Kulczyk, cruising by in a squad car, noticed the lookout, who was masked, in front of the place. They jumped out of their car. At the same time two other bandits emerged from the store and saw the policemen.

Lieut. Iattoni and Kulczyk opened fire and the bandits returned it. Iattoni dropped one of the robbers, but fell himself from a bullet wound in the abdomen. Kulczyk downed the second bandit with several bullets and then went after the masked lookout, who was running toward a parked car, which he reached and escaped.

Fire at Fleeing Bandit.

The third bandit, standing near by as lookout, started running away, and Kulczyk shot at him. He fell, but clambered into an automobile a short distance away and escaped.

Lieut. Iattoni, Fusner, and the two bandits were taken to the hospital, where one of the robbers, shot two or three times, was pronounced dead. He was tentatively identified as Frank Hussar, about 32 years old. Fryilich, the other wounded robber, is about 18. Fryilich was shot three or four times in the body and legs, and is expected to die.

The lieutenant's condition was so serious that a call for blood donors was sent out early today. Iattoni is 33.

Early today Anton Kaufman, 13537 Avenue M, was seized as the alleged lookout in the holdup. He was arrested by Policemen Joseph Speller and Stanley Scymanski of the East Side station.

MAN WINS $675 IN DICE GAME; SHOT AND ROBBED OF IT

Joseph Manaster, 32 years old, a poultry merchant, was shot in the head early today by one of two bandits who had followed him from a gambling house.

Manaster, who lives at 6741 Sheridan road, had won $675 at the dice tables in the Dev-Lin inn, Devon and Lincoln avenues, in Lincolnwood, an alleged Johnson-Skidmore house. He started home with his winnings in the company of a friend, H. J. Harris, 1120 Pratt boulevard.

At Sheridan road and North Shore avenue the robbers forced Manaster's car to the curb after firing one shot. The bullet grazed the top of his head. The bandits asked him how much money he had, and when he replied, "About $500," they corrected him, saying, "We know you have more than $600." He then surrendered all his winnings. The bandits drove away without trying to rob Harris. Manaster was taken to the Edgewater hospital.

CHICAGOAN DIES IN PRISON.

Ollie Marshall, 37 years old, colored, who was sentenced to a one year to life term for manslaughter from Cook county in 1922, died of natural causes in his cell at the Stateville penitentiary early today.

ACCUSED ASSAILANT OF PARKED COUPLE HELD IN $5,000 BOND

Alfred Brophy.

Alfred Brophy, an elevator operator of 630 North Kensington avenue, La Grange Park, was being held last night by Willow Springs county highway police under $5,000 bond, charged with assault with intent to kill. Brophy was identified by Leo Jess, 3619 Drake avenue, as the assailant who shot him Friday night and threatened his woman companion, Mrs. Lillian Paul, 37, of Batavia, while they were parked on a La Grange Park road. Jess was treated at Berwyn hospital for his wound.

FINE DICE GAME CRASHER—AND KEEP PET DICE!

Earl West, 49 years old, crashed a dice game in the locker room of the Illinois Country club Sept. 15 during the club's annual Kenilworth day celebration. Since another stranger had taken $300 out of the game a short time before, the players objected to West's presence. They also objected to the dice he had thoughtfully brought along. West was arrested. Yesterday Police Magistrate Floyd Eldret fined West $75 and $5 costs on a charge of disorderly conduct. John McElhatton, manager of the club, testified West had no business there. West said nothing until after he had paid his fine. Then he asked for his dice back. But he didn't get them.

LEAD ST. LOUIS 3½ GAMES, WITH EIGHT TO PLAY

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 23 (AP).—The Cincinnati Reds battered the Pittsburgh Pirates today for their second straight double victory with a show of championship caliber batting before 20,954 fans. The Reds thus stretched their lead to 3½ games games over the second place St. Louis Cardinals and ran their winning streak to six. The Cardinals and Reds each have eight more games on their schedules.

Bucky Walters, the National league's ace pitcher, spotted the Pirates a 5 to 2 lead in the first three innings of the opening game, then hit a triple and double for his sixth straight and his 27th victory of the year, 6 to 5. Walters has lost ten.

Grissom Yields 5 Hits.

Then Lefty Lee Grissom held the Pirates to five hits in the second game, which ended, 6 to 1.

Bill Werber, Reds' third baseman, hit his fourth homer of the year in the first game and his fifth in the second. Wally Berger drove out his 14th homer in the second game.

The Pirates got their first game lead and all their runs on a walk, Bob Elliott's double and Maurice Van Robays' single in the first, and a homer by Wilbur Brubaker with two on in the third. The Reds argued Walters had Brubaker fanned, but Umpire Bick Campbell called a ball and the batter hit the next ball over the left field fence.

Craft's Triple Clinches It.

Werber's homer, Walters' triple and a sacrifice fly kept the Reds in the game in the first and second innings. In the fourth, Bucky followed Wally Berger's double with one of his own and scored on Lonnie Frey's single. The Reds tied it up in the fifth on singles by Buck McCormick, and Ernie Lombardi and Berger's second double. They clinched it in the seventh on Harry Craft's triple and Berger's sacrifice fly. Craft fell coming in but was unhurt.

—If—

The Cincinnati Reds, thriving on the St. Louis Cardinals' relentless pressure, enjoy a three and a half game lead in the National league race as it goes into its final week. Each has eight games remaining, four of which are against each other. All the Reds' games are at home, while seven of the Cards' contests are on the road.

By winning one of their remaining four games with the Pirates, then splitting the series with St. Louis, the Reds would win the pennant even though the Cards took their remaining four from the Cubs. The standing then would be:

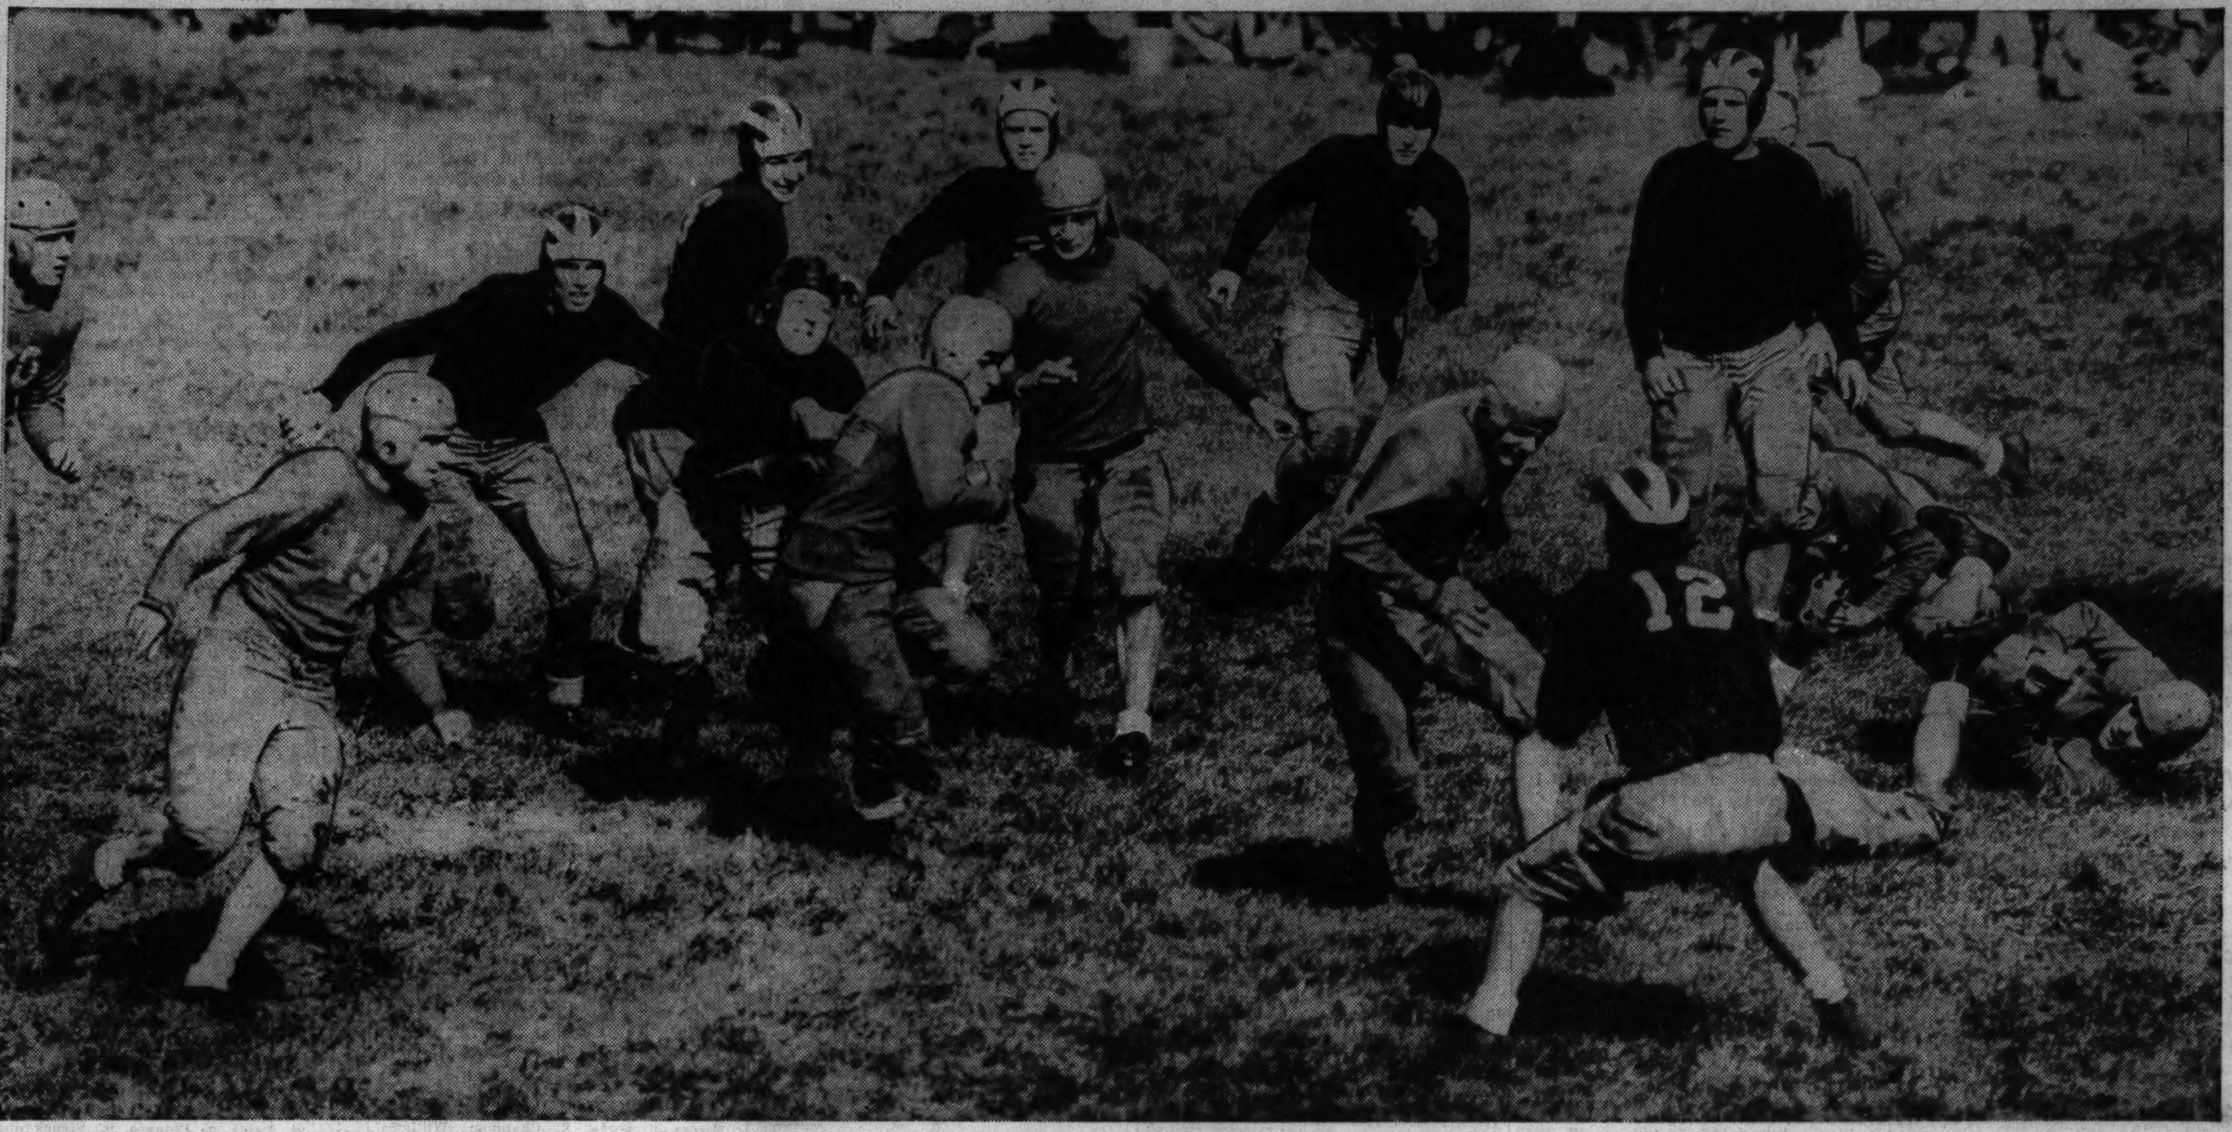
	W.	L.	Pct.
Cincinnati	95	59	.617
St. Louis	94	59	.614

If the Reds win three out of four from the Pirates they would need to win only one of their four games with the Cardinals even though the latter takes four straight from the Cubs. In a situation like this the Cardinals' one cancelled game [with New York], again would work out a hardship, as the final standing would be:

Cincinnati	96	58	.623
St. Louis	95	58	.621

The Cards and Reds have divided eighteen games against each other this season.

A COUPLE OF YOUNG FELLOWS ON THE TRAIL OF TOUCHDOWNS



The high school football season gathered further momentum yesterday with a series of games on Chicagoland gridirons. In one of these Harper defeated Kelly, 7 to 0, in a stubborn battle on the St. Rita field. The only touchdown of the game came on this play in the second quarter, Ben Apoto of Harper, apparently trapped here, getting through for fifteen yards and six points. The play climaxed a fifty-five yard march by the Harper eleven. Adolph Cooper kicked the extra point.

OHIO STATE PUTS SAD FOOTBALL PAST BEHIND IT

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Columbus, O., Sept. 23.—After the 1934 football season, the year in which L. W. St. John, director of athletics, brought Francis Schmidt and the lateral pass to Ohio State the local Down Town Coaches' association, possibly the parent organization of its kind, held nightly meetings from June to September.

In the second year of the Schmidt régime, when the Buckeyes had won four consecutive games, the D. T. C. A. made the tactical mistake of celebrating Ohio State's victory over Notre Dame on Friday, thus leaving open the Saturday night date when the Irish celebrated Notre Dame's victory over Ohio State. The latter celebration was official, 18 to 13.

Buckeyes' Spirit High.

It is unfair to open the wounds, particularly since Ohio State tied Minnesota for the Western conference championship in 1935, but some predict that they never have healed and that before the patient recovers there must be an amputation.

We started out to say, however, that the Ohio State football boys whom we saw scrimmaging this morning seem to have more enthusiasm and personal liking for their chores than others who have worn the scarlet since 1935. What we have said, at least indirectly, is that Ohio State's spirit never quite recovered from the fourth period Notre Dame rally for three touchdowns and a story book finish. The Buckeyes were further depressed by the three defeats in 1936, and unless the current squad finds means of assuaging memory of last year's setbacks, football will cease to be a topic for polite conversation.

Fans Saner, Smarter.

Although several hundred gathered this morning to see four teams scrimmage—so many fans, in fact, that the third and fourth quarters were played on a more distant gridiron—we didn't hear the rabid, unreasoning arguments for Ohio State superiority to which we have become accustomed.

There is more interest in Cincinnati's bid for the National league baseball championship than in Northwestern's invasion for the opening conference game Oct. 14. Columbus has had a heat wave, it's true, and university classes do not begin until Oct. 3 [Lynn Waldorf please note the extra amount of practice for Ohio State], but the fundamental reason for quiet on the Ohio State front is that these players must prove themselves before they receive a cheer.

Andrako Talks It Up.

To this extent the pressure is off. And Ohio State seems to have about the same material as last year when the boys played creditably in all games except perhaps against Michigan. If the Buckeyes find adequate tackles they may easily be a factor in the Big Ten race. But, for that matter, Ohio State needed tackles last year. Weight alone never made an athlete, barring, of course, Tony Galento.

The effort to revive Buckeye spirit

Frisch Will Return in '40 as Manager

Boston, Mass., Sept. 23 (AP).—Frankie Frisch will be back again in the big leagues next year as a manager. The former St. Louis Cardinals' manager, who has been broadcasting accounts of the home games of the Boston Bees and Boston Red Sox this year, said today he had a job for next year, but declined to name the club.

"It is not for me to make the announcement. I haven't signed yet, but it looks as if I will have a team next year," he said.

The Colonial network, which paid Frisch nearly $20,000 to broadcast the Boston games, announced earlier today Frisch had not been reëngaged for 1940 because "to the best of our knowledge he has been committed to manage one of the major league clubs."

Frisch was deposed as manager of the Cardinals at the conclusion of the 1938 season, and Ray Blades was given his post. A major leaguer since his college days, he was an outstanding second baseman for both the New York Giants and the Cardinals.

NOT SIGNED BY CUBS.

Persistent rumors starting in midseason have nominated Frankie Frisch as the next manager of the Cubs, but a query at the Cub office yesterday drew the following reply from Charles Drake, assistant to Owner Phil Wrigley:

"Communique 846 still stands. We aren't hiring him."

TO GIANTS OR PIRATES?

New York, Sept. 23 [Special].—Speculation over announcement in Boston today that Frankie Frisch had signed to manage a major league team next summer centered around the New York Giants and the Pittsburgh Pirates. On Broadway it has been no secret that Horace Stoneham, president of the Giants, has been anxious to hire Frisch and that Manager Bill Terry has been eager to relinquish active handling of the team to accept a position as business manager.

Pie Traynor's failure to bring the Pirates through last year when they led up to the final stages of the race and their poor showing this year gives Pittsburgh prominence in the speculation.

CHIEF ONAWAY IS FIRST BY HEAD IN $2,500 HANDICAP

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Lawrence Barker's Chief Onaway won the $2,500 Hawthorne handicap yesterday, proving there was no fluke about his splendid effort against Challedon on the preceding Saturday. In the course of a stretch drive that brought the crowd of 18,000 up cheering, he overtook the pace setter, Rude Awakening, and then withstood the powerful challenge of the Superior farm's Bob's Boys to win by a head.

Mrs. Emil Denemark's Some Count came from last place to finish third, while the Valdina farm's Viscounty, which had been established as the favorite by a narrow margin over Chief Onaway, could do no better than fourth after racing wide and weakening in the drive.

Marfeu Wins Other Feature.

Mrs. George Spaeth's Marfeu scored at 9 to 1 in the John Schank Memorial handicap, the other $2,500 stake on the program. His performance was equally spectacular. After breaking from the No. 9 post position and racing wide in this six furlong dash, he got up in the last fifty yards and drew clear to win by more than a length, while the Shadybrook farm's Grass Cutter was beating Mrs. John Marsch's Lightspur by a nose for second place.

Chief Onaway, which had proved his courage by refusing to let Challedon draw away in the closing stages of the Hawthorne Gold Cup race, was held at 5 to 2 odds in yesterday's mile and a sixteenth gallop. Viscounty also was quoted at 5 to 2, though there was about a thousand dollars more bet on him. Bob's Boys, Rude Awakening, Arab's Arrow, Some Count, Sir Jim James, and Chance Ray were fancied by the crowd in that order, ranging from 5 to 1 to 14 to 1.

Opens Big Lead.

Georgie South took Rude Awakening out on top as they headed for the clubhouse turn and quickly opened up a lead which grew to five lengths as they galloped down the back stretch. Arab's Arrow tried to keep up for a while, but gave up when

Harper High's football team is ready for its campaign in the south division of the Public School league. The south siders ended preparations yesterday for the season opener against Parker Saturday in the 124th Field Artillery armory by defeating Kelly of the central division, 7 to 0, at St. Rita field.

Harper scored its touchdown in the second quarter, marching fifty-five yards to the Kelly 15 yard line. Ben Apoto, right half back, then cut off right tackle to cross the goal line. Adolph Cooper, right guard, added the point after touchdown with a perfect kick between the uprights.

Kelly Threatens Again.

Kelly threatened to score in the final minutes of the game, reaching the Harper 4 yard line, but the central division eleven was penalized five yards as the contest ended. Sam Mustaccio, Harper left half back, contributed the longest run of the game, running forty yards to the Kelly 25 yard line in the third quarter.

The Public School league suffered another defeat at the hands of a Catholic league eleven when De Paul academy routed Phillips, 20 to 0, in De Paul field. Loyola academy, also of the north section of the Catholic league, started the victory march against the City leaguers when it defeated Senn, 14 to 13, last week.

Win Practice Games.

Oak Park and New Trier of the Suburban league were victors in a pair of practice games. Oak Park overwhelmed York of the West Suburban conference, 59 to 0, in Oak Park stadium, and New Trier triumphed over Amundsen of the Public School league, 8 to 6, in Winnetka.

Oak Park scored in every period against York, putting over two touchdowns in the first period, one in the second, one in the third and piling up 32 points in the final quarter. A safety in the third quarter and a touchdown in the last period gave New Trier its victory over Amundsen.

WHITE SOX TURN ON BROWNS FOR DOUBLE VICTORY

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The White Sox, back in the soothing environment which is their own magnificent Comiskey park, yesterday flattened the eager but unskilled St. Louis Browns in both ends of a double-header, 6 to 2, in the first game, and 9 to 4, in the second affair, which was halted by darkness after three pitches in the home eighth.

The double success, while Cleveland was losing a single game, enabled the Sox to gain a game and a half on the third place Indians. The Sox now are one game out of third.

Rigney Gets No. 15.

Edgar Smith, though he underwent considerable anguish prior to the seventh inning, was the conqueror in the second game.

There was home run swatting in each game. Larry Rosenthal knocked one in the first game and Joe Kuhel lifted the Sox out of a 3 to 1 deficit by socking his 15th with two out and one on in the fifth inning of the second game.

Chet Laabs got the Browns off to a good start in the first inning of the second game by smacking his tenth home run with one on.

FIRST GAME

Rigney, though his 15th victory was assured early, in the first two innings had no reason to suspect the bruising surprise his associates had in store for him. The first six Sox were retired without getting the ball out of the infield.

Then came the big third inning, which made things just too easy for the big River Forest boy who is going to open the city series.

Larry Rosenthal, who had a perfect day at bat with two singles, a walk and his ninth homer, opened the victory doings with a single to center. Mike Tresh beat out an infield single, and the runners advanced on a sacrifice by Rigney. Ollie Bejma singled to left, scoring Rosenthal and Tresh. Ollie got home on a double by Joe Kuhel, who stole third before scoring on a double by Mike Kreevich. Luke Appling was thrown out, but Eric McNair singled to center, scoring Kreevich. Gee Walker was thrown out. That was all the Sox scoring, except for Rosenthal's homer, which opened the sixth inning.

John Is Stingy.

Rigney yielded a single in the fourth, a single and a run in the fifth, a single and a run in the seventh and a pinch single with two out in the ninth.

He struck out eight and walked four. Two of the gents who walked, Sam Harshany and Sig Gryska, produced the two St. Louis runs.

SECOND GAME

The Sox had to wait till the seventh inning of the second game to go ahead of the Browns. In the seventh they scored five runs on one single to break a 4 to 4 tie. They

CHICAGO ROUTS WARNEKE; THEN LEE LOSES LEAD

Dodgers Only Game Back of Champions.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 23.—The Cubs, no longer concerned about the National league pennant, but worried over a possible eviction from third place, were beaten again today by the Cardinals, 7 to 3, leaving the Chicagoans only one game ahead of the fourth place Dodgers. But the Cards, despite their triumph, also met up with a disappointment. The double triumph of the leading Reds put the Gas Housers three and one-half games in arrears and time is growing short.

Lee Takes 15th Beating.

In their effort to keep away from fourth place the Cubs did only one thing of consequence. With Hank Leiber's twenty-third homer in the second inning and three singles, one by the same Leiber in the third, they knocked out Lon Warneke and assumed a 3 to 2 lead. That was their act and they couldn't repeat it, principally because Bill McGee went to the aid of his bruised mate and held the 1938 champions to six harmless hits in the last six innings.

Bill Lee made his second futile bid for his 19th victory of the year, but was forced to accept his 15th beating. Two runs skipped across the plate in the first inning as the result of a homer by Enos Slaughter. The Cubs erased that handicap, but Lee, hindered by a fumble by Bill Nicholson, fell behind again in the fourth, was nicked in the fifth and after a close squeak in the sixth was recalled. What happened in the seventh can be charged to a brief but hectic appearance by Earl Whitehill.

Slaughter Runs Out a Homer.

The Cubs failed to disturb Warneke's calm in the first inning, but the Cards were less considerate of Lee. Brown opened the St. Louis attack with a single into left, and Lee settled long enough to fan Gutteridge, but Slaughter bounced the ball off the wall in left center. It was recovered by Leiber, who threw to Herman, who threw to Mancuso. But Slaughter arrived ahead of the ball and was credited with a home run.

One pitch by Warneke in the second inning was enough to give the Cubs their first tally. Leiber slammed it into the bleacher in left. That remained the Cubs' lone hit until Mancuso singled to start the third. He was forced by Hack for the second out. Herman then singled to left and Galan singled to right, Hack scoring the tying run. Leiber smacked a single into left, putting Herman across the plate and Warneke in the bathhouse.

Cards Put On Pressure.

The Cubs almost had another run in the fourth, which G. Russell opened with a double off McGee. But when Mattick singled to right G. Russell was cut down at the plate.

One was out in the fourth when Medwick doubled to left, and after Mize had been suppressed on strikes Padgett singled to right, Medwick scoring and Padgett taking second on Nicholson's fumble. The error hurt because Moore followed with a single on which Padgett registered. The Cards made it 5 to 3 in the sixth on a bunt beaten out by Brown and Gutteridge's double to center.

Whitehill Hits Two.

As soon as Whitehill went to work in the seventh he plunked Guteridge with a pitched ball. Slaughter accomplished nothing, but Medwick tripled to right center, Gutteridge scoring. Whitehill also used Mize's ribs for a target. Pepper Martin strolled forth to bat for Padgett, and after White-

DODGERS SWELL AVERAGES; BEAT PHILS, 22-4, 8-0

Lavagetto Gets Six Hits in First Game.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 23 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers put on a hitting and pitching show today to sweep a double-header from the Phillies, 22 to 4 and 8 to 0, moving within one game of third place in the National league. Led by Harry [Cookie] Lavagetto, who made six consecutive hits to tie a modern major league mark, the Dodgers pounded three Philadelphia pitchers for 27 hits and 46 total bases in the first game.

Lavagetto came to bat in the ninth with a chance to equal the record of seven straight hits set by the late Wilbert Robinson with the Baltimore Orioles June 10, 1892, but drew a base on balls.

Carl Doyle, a rookie right hander from Memphis, making his first start in the National league, yielded three hits for the second game shutout.

hill had pitched one ball he was relieved by Jack Russell. The one time Wild Horse of the Osage fanned. But Moore singled to right and Medwick scored the last run.

McGee, who had yielded only two hits since the fourth, got the first two men out in the ninth, whereupon Mancuso singled and Reynolds, batting for J. Russell, doubled. McGee was yanked for Lefty Shoun. Hartnett batted for Hack, but grounded to S. Martin, and that was the finish.

PASSEAU FACES CARDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 23.—Claude Passeau, having had two days of rest, will do the Cubs' pitching tomorrow in the final of the series and also the Cardinals' last home game of the season. Either Max Lanier or Curt Davis will be the Gas House gang's nominee.

The Cubs have nothing but leisure on their Monday's schedule, but nevertheless will have to hurry tomorrow evening to catch a 6 o'clock train for Pittsburgh. They open a two game series with the Pirates on Tuesday.

When Diz Dean arrived here he popped off about the Cubs going to knock the Cards out of the pennant race without undue delay. After the Cards had taken the first two of the series Dean decided he had nothing more to say.

Lee and Knott Face Browns in Two Games

Thornton Lee, who has yielded a grand total of seven hits in his last two games, will pitch the first game of this afternoon's White Sox-Browns double header. Jack Knott is scheduled to pitch the second game. Bob Harris and Howard Mills were announced as the St. Louis pitchers.

Vice President Harry Grabiner yesterday announced Tuesday's scheduled afternoon game with the Cleveland Indians has been moved back to Wednesday as part of an afternoon-night double header.

Fans may go to both games, Wednesday at 3:30 o'clock and 8:15 o'clock, for one admission.

The Browns and Sox will play a single game tomorrow, the final 1939 appearance of the tailenders in Chicago. The teams will meet in a three game series in St. Louis next Saturday and Sunday.

WHITE SOX TURN ON BROWNS FOR DOUBLE VICTORY

Win, 6-2, 9-4 to Cut Down Cleveland's Margin.

held the 9 to 4 score when the game was called in the home eighth.

The Browns made three runs before the Sox made their first hit. With two out in the first inning, McQuinn walked, then Laabs banged a homer into the right field stands. Then Berardino fanned. After Gallagher had fanned at the start of the second and Glenn had flied to Rosenthal, Neighbors caromed a single off Smith's bare hand. Trotter walked. Lucadello lined into left field, whereupon Walker charged in as though to make a diving shoestring catch. Gee seemed nonplused when the ball sailed high over his head for a double, Neighbors scoring.

The Sox broke into the scoring column in the second inning, after Appling and McNair had flied to Laabs. Walker singled to center and reached third on Rosenthal's single. Tresh also singled, Walker scoring.

Joe's Homer Ties It.

Kuhel's homer tied the score in the fifth after a depressing double play. Tresh and Smith singled to get the inning under way. Bejma hit into a double play, Berardino to Lucadello to McQuinn, Tresh reaching third. Kuhel then drove his homer, a shot high into the upper right field stand, scoring behind Tresh.

The Browns resumed the lead with two out in the sixth. Laabs walked and Berardino flied to Rosenthal. Gallagher forced Laabs and scored when Glenn doubled over Walker's head.

Appling opened the home sixth with a single to center, stole second, took third on McNair's infield out and scored the tying run on Walker's third single.

Then the Big Parade.

Kuhel walked at the start of the home seventh and advanced on Kreevich's sacrifice. Appling was given an intentional pass. McNair's double play grounder went between Neighbors' heels into left center, Kuhel scoring. Gallagher's throw headed off Appling at third, but in the ensuing rundown Berardino interfered with Appling on the base line, Luke reaching third and McNair second. Walker walked, loading the bases, and Rosenthal walked, forcing Appling across the plate.

Though he had not yielded a hit in the inning, Trotter was replaced by Ed Cole. Tresh's grounder forced Rosenthal, McNair scoring. Lucadello, in trying to complete a double play, threw into the Browns' dugout, Walker scoring and Tresh reaching second. Smith walked and then Bejma dropped a single in front of Laabs for the only hit of the inning, Tresh scoring.

DE CORREVONT IS ONE OF WILDCAT STARS IN DRILL

Hahnenstein Also Reels Off Long Runs.

Sophomores crowded veterans for honors in a lengthy intra-squad scrimmage which terminated the second week of practice at Northwestern yesterday. Four teams were used interchangeably during the workout.

The first score came in the second quarter when Bill De Correvont, sophomore half back, circled end for five yards and a touchdown. The former Austin High school star set up the touchdown with a twenty yard run to the 15 yard line. George McGurn, senior full back, smashed center for ten yards from which point Bill carried it over. Later, De Correvont returned a kickoff forty yards and completed a pass to Iggy Mesec for twenty yards.

Hahnenstein Scores.

Although handicapped by a hand injury, Red Hahnenstein, veteran half back, unreeled successive runs of twenty, fifteen, and ten yards to score the second touchdown. Hahnenstein operated with a back field consisting of Jack Ryan, quarter back, and sophomores Floyd Chambers, half back, and George Benson, full back. The latter pair turned in some sparkling ball carrying performances.

One of the smoothest working back field units consisted of Paul Soper and Ike Kepford, half backs, Don Clawson, full back, and Nick Conteas, quarter back. In the final quarter Soper and Kepford, who hail from Muskegon, Mich., led an assault which carried to the 5 yard line where Clawson plunged over.

Line Positions Open.

The game revealed that several line positions remain unsettled. Paul Hiemenz, center, and Joe Lokanc, guard, replaced John Haman and Don Guritz on the first team. With both Bob Daly and Ted Grefe out with injuries, the end positions were taken over by Jim Smith and Al Butherus. The rest of the line consisted of Nick Cutlich and Corne Aarts, tackles, and Sonny Method, guard.

The varsity will make its bow to the public next Saturday in the annual game with the freshmen. A squad of 45 freshmen has been working out for the last three days. This number is expected to be increased by 20 when school begins Monday.

CRISLER PUZZLED.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 23 [Special].—Coach Fritz Crisler didn't know whether to be elated or worried after today's scrimmage. On the credit side, the Michigan offense clicked at a faster pace than heretofore, but the gloom fell when Horace Tinker, second string center, suffered a dislocated elbow, complicating the reserve problem. Tinker last year filled the gap when the regular pivot, Archie Kodros, was injured and it was hoped he would again be ready to relieve the Michigan captain. Now it is feared that he will be lost for six weeks.

Although admitting that the defense still is weak, Crisler was pleased with power shown by the attack of Harmon, Kromer, and company. Each of the touchdown twins scored on the opposition and Ed Fruitig, varsity end, counted twice.

FROSH WORRY BADGERS.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 23 [Special].—Wisconsin's first and second string elevens were fortunate this afternoon they had nothing at stake during a two hour scrimmage with the freshmen, who have been out for practice only three days.

The regulars finally scored three touchdowns and the second team pushed over two, but, on the whole, the team which opens the season against Marquette next Saturday looked anything but effective against the yearlings.

AMERICAN AND CANADIAN BOATS TIED IN GOLD CUP

Washington, D. C., Sept. 23.—(AP)—The first day's fight for the famed Gold Cup—feature of the President's Cup regatta—turned into an international match today as Canada tied the United States. The winner will be decided tomorrow.

The Canadian entry, Miss Canada, piloted by Harold Wilson, a Toronto university junior, captured the second heat from Notre Dame, owned by Herbert Mendelson of Detroit, Mich., after the Michigan boat had won the first heat. At the conclusion of today's heats Mendelson and Wilson each had 700 points and L. J. Fageol of Los Angeles, Cal., 225. Notre Dame was piloted by Dan Arena of Oakland, Cal.

Three other boats competed for the President's Cup—L. J. Fageol's So-Long, from Los Angeles; Why Worry, owned by W. E. Cantrell of Louisville, Ky., and Z. G. Simmons, My Sin, of Greenwich, Conn.—winner of the recent gold cup race in Detroit, but they all had trouble.

Compared with the 70.866 miles an hour speed of Count Theo Rossi of Italy in winning last year's President's Cup neither Wilson nor Arena was particularly fast. The best speed today was Notre Dame's 67.18 miles an hour and Miss Canada's was 67.06.

Fort Sheridan, Oak Brook Will Meet in Polo

The Fort Sheridan and Oak Brook polo teams will meet this afternoon on the Oak Brook stadium field at York road and 22d street.

The game, starting at 4 o'clock, will mark Fort Sheridan's first appearance of the season at Oak Brook.

Fort Sheridan yesterday selected Capt. Cary B. Hutchinson, Maj. Paul H. Morris, team captain; Capt. Harry S. Jernigan, and Capt. J. K. Baker as its lineup.

THEY'LL MANAGE TO SPEND BUSY AFTERNOON!

emanates from Capt. Steve Andrako and the players. Andrako is a fine center; a good leader, for responsibility has added to his stature. We heard that the players have pledged to train diligently and that they meet socially on Sunday evenings. If this fraternization is real Ohio State may surprise its major rivals, Northwestern, Minnesota and Michigan. The Buckeyes could have used a bit of the old college try last fall, against Southern California, for instance.

Frank Clair and Esco Sarkkinen are holdover ends who divided duties last year with Keith Bliss and Wendell Lohr. Ross Bartschy, another veteran, fractured a thumb and may be out for a month. Return of Johnny Rabb gives Ohio State two good full backs. The other is Jim Langhurst, voted the most valuable player on the squad last season.

Varsity Scores Twice.

In the opening quarter of the games this morning, the varsity scored twice. Langhurst went through the line, lateralled to Jim Strausbaugh, who completed the 35 yard gain for the touchdown. Don Scott, quarter back, missed the place kick for the point, but he was successful later after Langhurst had gone around left end five yards for a touchdown.

Langhurst and Strausbaugh appeared to advantage although Coach Schmidt is using more double wing back formations this year to give Frank Zadworney, right half, an opportunity to carry the ball. The lineup for the first game was:

VARSITY.		BLUES.
Esco Sarkkinen	L. E.	Sam Fox
Jim Daniell	L. T.	Jerome Grundies
Vic Marion	L. G.	Amel Tucci
Steve Andrako	C.	Bill Bell
William Nosker	R. G.	Ed Bruckner
Charles Maag	R. T.	Jack Stephenson
Frank Clair	R. E.	John Santschi
Don Scott	Q. B.	Jim Sexton
Jim Strausbaugh	L. H.	Eino Sarkkinen
Frank Zadworney	R. H.	Ward Perry
Jim Langhurst	F. B.	William Cover

Ohio State has practiced twice a day since Sept. 11, but with the exception of three scrimmages, emphasis has been on learning signals. There has been a minimum of individual work.

Notre Dame Varsity Routs Freshmen, 39-0; Zontini Stars

Notre Dame, Ind., Sept. 23 [Special].—Notre Dame's varsity used long runs to defeat the freshmen, 39 to 0, in today's annual game. The frosh suffered from stage fright at the start and gave up 20 points in the first quarter and 19 in the second. The varsity opposed a reserve team in a scoreless third period. The yearlings then returned to action and held the second and third varsity teams in check.

Lou Zontini, No. 1 right half back, opened scoring with a 60 yard run around his left end on the fifth play of the game.

Joe Thesing Hurt.

Joe Thesing, full back who was later removed from the game with a face injury, went over from the one-foot mark to culminate a 54 yard march in which Bob Saggu passed to Zontini for 15 yards. Johnny Kelleher, quarter back, added the placement.

Zontini made the third touchdown on a one-yard plunge to end a 67 yard hike. He had gained 53 yards on a pass from Harry Stevenson, Stevenson also whipped an eight yard toss to Bud Kerr, left end, to place the ball on the 1-yard line. Kelleher again made the placement.

McGannon, Sheridan Star.

Bill McGannon, junior left half, made runs of 35 and nine yards to score for the second team in the second quarter. Ben Sheridan, his alternate, went off his right tackle from punt formation for 28 yards and the final touchdown. His placement for extra point was good.

Bob Leonard, full back, was removed from the game with a leg injury. Steve Sitko, quarter back; Joe De Franco, left guard, and John Gubanich, right guard, were unable to play because of injuries. The Irish open their season against Purdue here next Saturday.

IT'S UP TO BYELENE.

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 23 [Special].—Mike Byelene, diminutive climax runner who starred while pinch hitting for Lou Brock at right half back last fall, in all probability will be called upon to carry practically Purdue's entire offensive burden against Notre Dame next week, it was indicated today by Coach Mal Elward. Brock's puzzling ankle injury, suffered in a softball game a few days before practice started, has failed to respond to treatment. With the exception of a brief appearance in scrimmage in midweek, he has had practically no opportunity to round into form.

PITCHER MOORE LOSES CONTROL; LANDS IN CELL

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 23 (AP).—At a crucial moment in the Cincinnati Reds' pennant drive, Lloyd [Whitey] Moore, young right handed pitcher, got himself into the dog house today.

The 25 year old hurler, who has won 13 and lost 11 for the Reds this year, faced disciplinary action of an undisclosed nature from the club and police charges of drunken and reckless driving.

Police Lieutenant John Kleemeier reported that Moore's automobile left a trail of minor crashes, including a sidewiped street car loading platform, before winding up, wrecked, on a railroad track 200 feet from a crossing.

Moore was uninjured and after medical treatment was released from jail on $700 bond for appearance in Trafic court Tuesday, when the Reds play an important double-header with the second place St. Louis Cardinals.

Moore appeared with the team in uniform at today's game.

Dawson Wins Harvest Home Golf with 144

The Riverside Golf club held its annual harvest home party yesterday, 200 members and guests competing. A few were unable to finish, because of the sudden change in the weather and darkness. George Dawson of Glen Oak won low gross prize, with 69—75—144. ILLINI VARSITY USES PASSES TO BEAT FROSH, 12-0

Tosses by Ehni and Smith Bring Victory.

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 23 [Special].—The University of Illinois varsity football team defeated the freshmen, 12 to 0, today as the passing of Ralph Ehni and Jimmy Smith brought results when the varsity running attack failed.

The first touchdown drive was set in motion as Bob O'Neill, junior end, recovered Dick Good's fumble on the freshman 39 yard line. The varsity then was penalized to its own 49 yard line for holding, but on the next play Smith threw to O'Neill, who caught the ball in the clear on the 32 yard marker and scored.

The freshmen held until three minutes were left to play. Then three successive varsity pass completions took the ball to the 3 yard line, from where Bob Falkstein scored on an end run. The first downs were seven for the varsity, six for the freshmen. Lineups:

GOPHERS' DRILL SECRET.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 23 [Special].—The final dress rehearsal preliminary to the opening of the Minnesota season was held behind closed gates today.

The Gophers took things lightly in the morning, but in the afternoon a full game scrimmage occupied the squad. From the scrimmage is expected to come the Gophers' starting lineup against Arizona here next Saturday, as well as the training table squad.

HOOSIERS LOSE BACK.

Bloomington, Ind., Sept. 23 [Special].—Harry [Tuffy] Brooks, punting and pass throwing half back on the Indiana squad, was in the hospital today with an infection of the right foot, but may be ready for the Hoosiers' opening game here next Saturday against Nebraska. In a scrimmage this afternoon, the forward passing of Harold Hursh, Tim Bringle, and Mickey McGuire and pass reception of Eddie Herbert and Red Zimmer were outstanding.

MAROONS TACKLE DEFENSE.

With a passing and running offense in fair shape for the opening game against Beloit next Saturday, Coach Shaughnessy will direct attention in the University of Chicago football camp this week on defensive play. In contrast with last year's 29 yard per punt kickers, Chicago has an ample punting power this year. But both line and secondary defensive play has lacked smoothness. Tackling efficiency probable will be increased because of a three hour scrimmage yesterday. Players definitly advanced in blocking during the workout.

SATCHEL PAIGE STARS PLAY TWO AGAINST MILLS

Semi-pro baseball's largest crowds of the season are expected to watch Satchel Paige, noted colored pitcher, and his All-Star team and the House of David nine oppose Chicago teams this afternoon.

The All-Stars will play the Mills in a double-header in Mills stadium, Lake street and Kilpatrick avenue, and the House of David will oppose the Spencer Coals in two games in Spencer field, 4200 North Central avenue.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Green Bay, Wis., Sept. 23.—Battle lines were drawn today for one of the most important National Football league engagements of the year as the Bears arrived from Chicago to meet the Packers tomorrow before a record crowd.

The victor in this game will get off to a running start in the race for the western division championship, held last year by the Packers. Both teams have won one game, the Bears over Cleveland and the Packers over the Cardinals. Pre-season predictions rate the Bears and Packers as the outstanding teams of the league.

Game Creates High Interest.

Throwing them together so early has brought interest in football to the boiling point in this northland hot bed and arrangements have been made to handle 26,000, the largest crowd in Green Bay history. Among the crowd will be the largest delegation of fans ever to go out of Chicago on a professional football excusion.

Coach Curley Lambeau, who has been dissuaded from attempting to use a 7-3-2-1 defense by the arrival of the 1939 rule book, plans no innovations in the Packers' attack. It will be Arnie Herber or Cecil Isbell to Don Hutson and Carl Mulleneaux in the air and Clarke Hinkle on the ground. This system brought a division championship last year and similar tactics have earned the Packers four world championships.

Up to Mental Attitude.

Its success tomorrow depends entirely up on the individual brilliance and readiness of men in the principal rôles. Physically all are prepared for a severe test, leaving the outcome as far as the Packers are concerned, up to their own mental attitude.

Cards Invade Pittsburgh.

Green Bay will concentrate on offense on the theory that the Bears can be beaten only by outscoring them. There appears, according to Green Bay scouts, to be no way to prevent the Bears from getting some points.

The Cardinals, nosed out in their two league starts, take their high priced All-Star, Marshall Goldberg, back home to Pittsburgh today where Mad Marshall will make his first appearance as a professional against the Pirates. Down in Philadelphia, the New York Giants open defense of their league championship by tackling Davey O'Brien and the Eagles. The first inter-division game of the year brings Brooklyn west to meet the Lions in Detroit.

COE THREATENS, BUT IOWA STATE TRIUMPHS, 19 TO 0

Ames, Ia., Sept. 23 [U. P.].—Iowa State college's football team rolled over the Coe college eleven, 19 to 0, today with sophomores leading the attack.

Iowa State scored its first touchdown in the second quarter when Graves recovered Kinch's punt from behind the goal line. Bob Seaburg, sophomore back, passed to Lindsay Vinsel for the second score. Jack Wallace tossed a pass to John Bower for the third score, and Wallace place kicked for the extra point.

Coe loosed a strong attack toward the end of the game and was on the Cyclone 1 yard line when the gun sounded.

A bad punt by Woods of Kalamazoo put the ball on its own 40 yard line and a series of plunges by Hein, Lake Forest full back, took it to the 9 yard line. A pass from Gates to Yarwood scored. Petersen kicked the extra point. Lineups:

WHEATON 0, ST. NORBERT 0

Green Bay, Wis., Sept. 23 [Special]. —Wheaton College of Illinois and St. Norbert elevens battled to an 0 to 0 tie this afternoon.

Wheaton threatened several times, but was unable to push over a touchdown. A high wind prevented passing effectiveness. Patterson, Wheaton half back, bore the brunt of the ball carrying for the Illinois squad, taking it on three out of four plays.

Fumbles were costly to both teams, St. Norbert committing seven and recovering two and Wheaton dropping the ball six times, recovering it each time. Twice Wheaton was within the 5 yard line, only to lose the ball on fumbles. A third time Wheaton drove to the St. Norbert goal, but the half ended with the ball on the 9 yard line.

St. Norbert made eight first downs to three for its opponents, but made only one serious advance when it penetrated to the Wheaton 2 yard line. Lineups:

Monmouth had scored late in the second period on a pass, Sapp to Scappechi. Grinnell's touchdowns came as a result of poor kicks which gave it the ball deep in Monmouth territory. Lineups:

NORMAL WINS, 20-0

Bloomington, Ill., Sept. 23 [Special]. —After scoring a touchdown in the second minute of play, Illinois State Normal university crossed the enemy goal line twice in the last half to open its season with a 20 to 0 victory over Culver-Stockton of Canton, Mo., today.

On the fourth play of the contest Luke Gleason passed to Joe Vucich who took the ball on Culver-Stockton's 30 and ran the remaining twenty yards for the touchdown. A pass from Gleason to Floyd Covill, full back, gave Normal a 7 to 0 lead.

Gleason opened the third period by returning the kickoff forty yards to the Culver-Stockton 45. Vucich picked up three yards and then took another pass from Gleason for a twenty-six yard gain to the enemy 16 yard line. Covill cracked the line for eleven yards in three plays and Vucich drove over center for Normal's second touchdown from the 5 yard line. Frank Schreiber, freshman quarter back, place kicked the extra point. Late in the final quarter Culver-Stockton tried four successive incomplete passes, losing the ball on downs on its own 23 yard line. Covill moved to a first down on the five. An offside penalty shoved Normal back to the 10, but Vucich made seven yards and Covill went over from the 3 yard line for the Redbirds third touchdown.

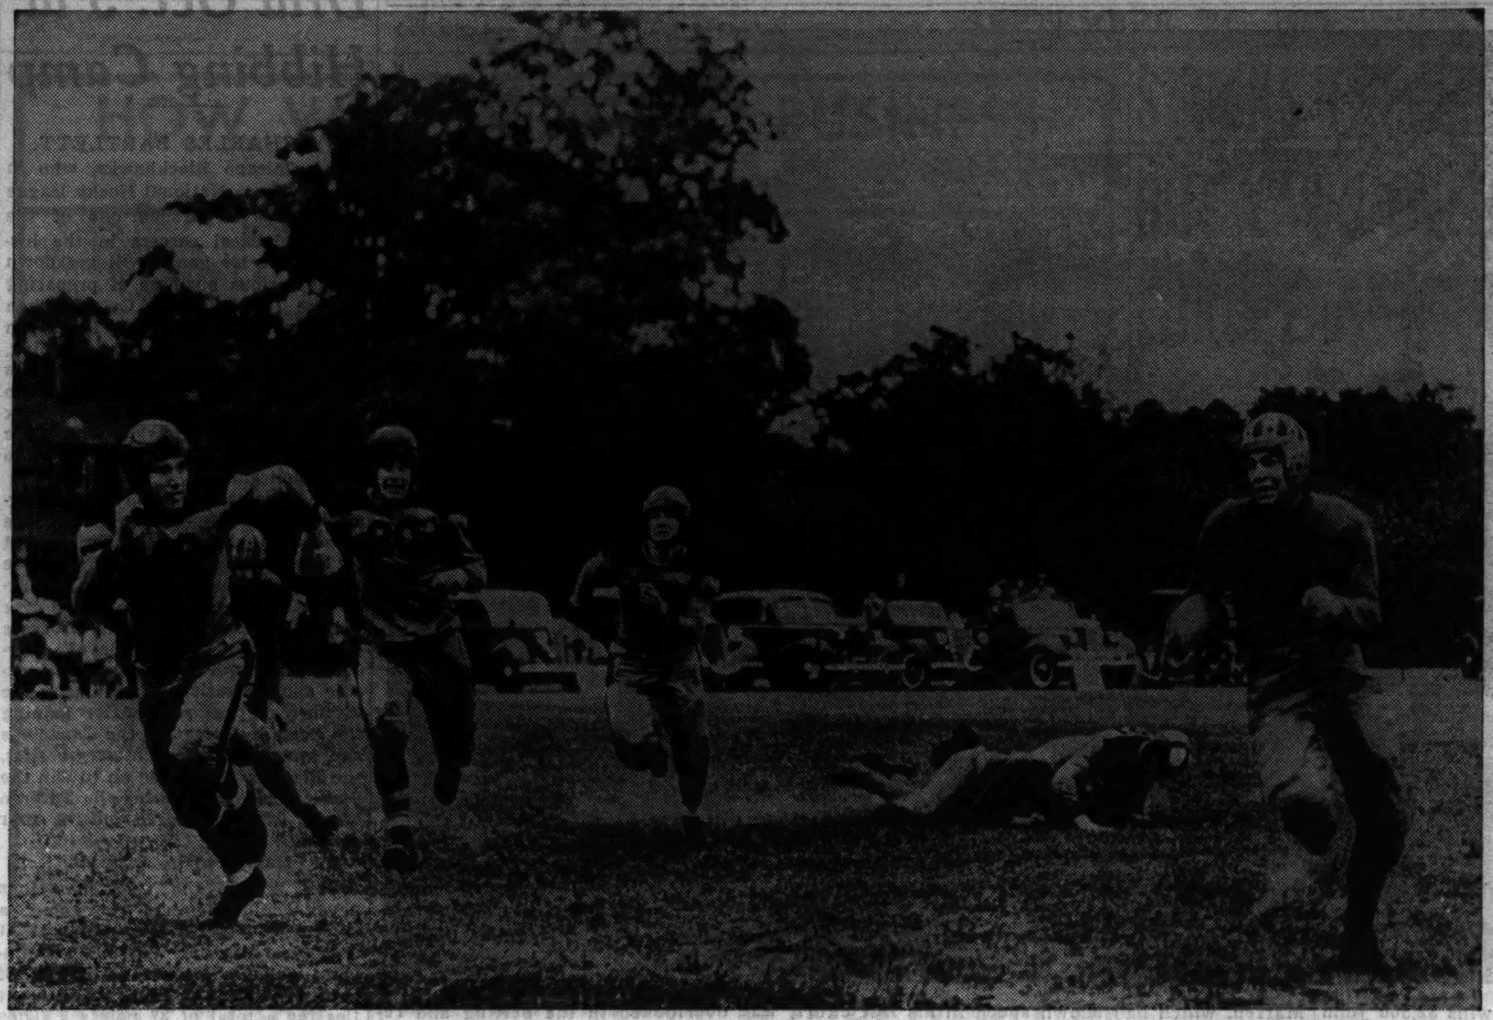
Normal collected 12 first downs, three each quarter.

ROSS TO DIRECT ALL-STAR TEAM IN BENEFIT GAME

Boston, Mass., Sept. 23 (AP).—Manager Art Ross of the championship Boston Bruins announced today he had been delegated to direct the play of the National Hockey league all-star team that will meet Les Canadiens in the benefit game for the family of the late Babe Siebert in Montreal Oct. 29.

Ross said he and President Frank Calder of the National Hockey league would select the all-star squad, and that they would follow the selections made by United States and Canadian hockey writers last spring. Ross was voted the all-star manager.

A LAKE FOREST HALF BACK PICKS UP 10 YARDS



Bill Harlan of Lake Forest gets away for a short gain against Kalamazoo college in the opening game of the football season in Lake Forest yesterday. Lake Forest won the game, 7 to 0, but for a minute it appeared as if Harlan was going to make the margin more decisive. The three Kalamazoo men at the left soon overtook him, however. HUNTERS GET READY SALUTE FOR WATERFOWL

BY BOB BECKER.

One more week and the northern Illinois coot hunters will take their first shots at these birds. This year, for the first time, the boys who like to hunt mudhens [or coots] get a "special dispensation," for the fall hunting regulations specify a mudhen hunting season which comes earlier than that for ducks and geese.

This season starts Oct. 1, whereas regular duck hunting is not permitted in Illinois and other states in the central zone until the morning of Oct. 22. Oct. 1 also is the big day for Wisconsin waterfowl hunters. Being in the northern zone, Wisconsin is able to open up on all waterfowl starting next Sunday.

Boys Getting Ready.

Although it will be about one month before the Illinois river resounds to the boom of shotguns, the boys downstate already are getting ready for the big opening day of the duck season.

We have been in correspondence with many of the day shooting places along the Illinois for several weeks. Information received from the boys who have blinds to rent indicates that the cost of a day's shoot along the Illinois will be just about the same as it was last season.

For example, an old established day shooting place near Browning, Ill., writes that there will be no change in the rates for blinds and decoys. Last year the charge was $7.50 per day per man for a blind, including transportation to and from the marsh. The hunter pays $3 per day in addition for board and lodging.

Ranges Between $5-$12.50.

Near Henry, which is in the upper Illinois river not far from Chicago, another day hunting spot [around Sawmill lake] advises us that the charge this year will run from $5 to $12.50 per man for duck hunting privileges. A pusher or guide costs an extra $4 per day.

At Lacon, Ill., where there are a couple of good marshes for day shooters, the cost of hunting facilities ranges from $5 up to $10 per day. The $5 blinds are on the river where one may get some bluebill shooting. The more expensive blinds are in the marshes where one gets mallards, pintails and other marsh ducks.

The residents who lease hunting privileges to day shooters already have their marshes lined up and are taking reservations for opening day.

Midget Mexico, Milt Aron Will Meet in 10 Rounds

Midget Mexico, welterweight slugger of Dallas, Tex., will make his Chicago debut in a 10 round bout against Milt Aron in Marigold Gardens tomorrow. Mexico, who is 23 years old and not a midget despite his misleading nickname, has been fighting professionally for nine years. He has had approximately 300 contests, winning more than 200. In his last appearance he scored a six round decision over Speedy Wallace in Minneapolis Sept. 15.

Mexico never has seen Aron perform, a fact which may be to his disadvantage. In his last start the aggressive Aron stopped Eddie Meleski in three rounds in the same arena Aug. 7. It was the Chicago fighter's fifty-third victory in 66 matches, eight of which he lost, four of which ended in draws, and one of which was an exhibition.

Aron expects to weigh 148 pounds; Mexico 146.

Johnny Barbara, former South Bend sectional Golden Gloves welterweight winner, will meet Tommy Pallatin, 1936 National A. A. U. lightweight champion, in an eight round semifinal. Barbara knocked out Tito Taylor last Monday. Matches of four rounds involve Frankie Agnes and Kid Leva, Jimmy Denver and Harry Fredricksen, and Andy Canal and Joe Ojida. F. M.

CONN, BETTINA END TRAINING FOR TITLE BOUT

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 23 (AP).—Billy Conn and Southpaw Mello Bettina went through unusually lengthy sparring sessions today to wind up the training grind for their 15 round light-heavyweight championship fight in Forbes field Monday.

At the end of the sessions in the rival camps, the betting fraternity installed Conn a 1 to 2 favorite to retain the crown he won from this same Beacon [N. Y.] Italian last July. The chances were these odds would lengthen before the two climbed into the ring and that Conn might even be 1 to 3 by fight time.

Neither Looks Impressive.

Neither looked too impressive today, Conn going through a nine round drill with four mates and Bettina tossing punches for seven. The fight has caught on in the last few days. Promoter Mike Jacobs is confident 35,000 fans will turn out and will contribute to a gross gate of between $80,000 and $100,000.

Conn Warms Up Slowly.

Conn warmed up slowly in his lengthy drill but finally hit his stride against his fourth punch absorber, Casey Rhodes, a southpaw.

Conn belted Rhodes around considerably, indicating he wouldn't have too much trouble with Bettina's left hand style. Bettina, on the other hand, went through his usual tactics of crowding his sparmates and tossing right hand shots at the body.

Six Thoroughbreds Die in Kentucky Farm Fire

Paris, Ky., Sept. 23 (AP).—Fire destroyed six thoroughbred yearlings in a barn on Tollie Young's Creekview farm near here today. Young estimated his loss at $14,000. The yearlings included fillies by Brilliant, Whichone, Saxon, and Psyche.

Yankee Wins Chicago Yacht Club Feature

The fastest and roughest day's racing in five years was experienced by the crews of three dozen Chicago sailing yachts yesterday, in series races held by three clubs.

Yankee, R class winner of the Chicago Yacht club's eleventh series race off Belmont harbor, sailed by Ed Schnabel Sr., covered the 12 mile course at an average speed of more than six miles per hour. At one time, because of the high seas the water was eight inches above the floor boards in Yankee's cabin. Skipper Schnabel's crew consisted of Tom Lake, Fred Nolde, Clarence Hammell, and Fred Barker.

C. J. Thiebeault's D class cutter Valiant won the Jackson Park Yacht club's nine mile triangular race for cruising yachts. The yacht was sailed by Skipper Thiebeault, Percy Wilson, Everett Asherman, Ted Fanos, and William Black. John O'Rourke Sr.'s eight meter class racing sloop Shamrock won the Universal division race over the same course.

Carl Norberg's Victory and B. J. Myren's Kid Sister shared winnings in the Columbia Yacht club's two races sailed off Grant park yesterday. Victory, a 39 foot cutter, won the race for the B. J. Myren trophy with a corrected time of 1 hour, 20 minutes, and 4 seconds.

The cruising cutter Kid Sister and Victory tied for first place in the second Commodore's cup series race for cruising craft, each with a corrected time of 1:23:18. Summaries:

Terrell's auxiliary cutter Minfra, and cruisers carrying friends and families of the competing crews.

The yachtsmen and their guests will gather at the Monroe street sailing station of the Chicago Yacht club at 4 o'clock for announcement of prizes and a barbecue. The regatta will end the Chicago yachting season for all large craft.

Jerry, a small brown dog owned by Bill O'Rourke, 9316 South Eberhart avenue, was crowned king of the Chicago park district show, finals of which were held yesterday afternoon in Soldiers' field. Jerry is part Yorkshire terrier and part pug. In the opinion of the judges he was the most companionable dog exhibited, and his young master was the most informed dog owner.

Other winners were Don Holley, representing Jackson park, owner of the best trick dog; Arthur Wachholz, Ridge Park, owner of the most useful dog; Rita Knockart, Green Briar park, owner of the best groomed dog, and George Hemple, Brandt's park, owner of the best behaved dog.

Chicago veterinarians and officials of dog clubs judged the competitors, all of which won preliminary events in various city parks.

Ginger, a small bull terrier owned by Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Himmel, 6421 South Harvard avenue, was given a gold medal for the second time in a week during yesterday's show. On April 19 Ginger awakened 19 people in a burning apartment building, saving their lives. He was given a medal by the Chicago Anti-Cruelty society last Sunday, and yesterday was acclaimed the most heroic dog in Chicagoland and given another medal.

The show was the concluding event of National Dog week.

PLAY FINAL TODAY.

The Cragin baseball team will meet the Maciejewski Congressmen of Cicero this afternoon in the third and final game of the Midwest league championship series at Cragin field, Long and Fullerton avenues.

KIRKSVILLE LOSES, 12-0.

Don Juan Fernandez de Castro of Havana, Cuba, says "The Havana tobaccos which you have blended into your new WHITE OWL have taken command of the taste. The rich taste of your cigar is as much a part of Havana as Morro Castle."
Juan M. Castro
A completely new cigar tested and approved right in Havana
BLENDED with HAVANA
WHITE OWL
New INVINCIBLE
New CLUB HOUSE

WE WANTED TO MAKE SURE that this new Blended-with-Havana White Owl has a true Havana flavor . . . so we took it all the way to Havana for a test. Certainly, smokers in Havana would know if our new cigar actually had the taste of true Havana. We also asked prominent Cubans—real connoisseurs, such as Senador Enrique Recio and Senador Wifredo Albanés, to try our new White Owl. Without exception they all praised the rich Havana flavor of our new cigar.

Why shouldn't we be proud of this cigar? We know the Havana tobacco that goes in it is a choice grade. Maybe that sounds unbelievable for a 5¢ cigar? But, we're America's largest buyers of Havana tobacco and we know what we are talking about. Fact is, this Havana is the same type tobacco used in popular cigars costing 10¢ and more. And there's a generous helping of this good Havana in each White Owl, too. Try one today.

New WHITE OWL—5¢

Your choice of 2 shapes

Another "10¢" feature—now yours for 5¢ . . . a choice of shapes to suit your smoking taste. A long, trim, new Invincible. And a rich, full-bodied, new Club House shape. You get the same amount of tobacco—the same mild blend in either size—only the shape varies.

SORTEADO COMES INTO OWN; WINS AND SETS RECORD

Beats Cravat, Isolator in Belmont Handicap.

New York, Sept. 23 [Special].—The South American way was the winning way today at Belmont park when the Argentine colt Sorteado not only beat some of the best of this country's handicap division but set a new American record in doing it.

The chestnut that Charles S. Howard imported on the strength of his reputation in the Argentine raced to his promise at last and scored by half a length at 8 to 1 before a crowd that approached 20,000.

Cravat, Isolater Beaten.

In this country Sorteado races as a 4 year old because of the difference in the seasons in the two hemispheres. In the United States the birthday of all horses is Jan. 1. In South America it is Aug. 1.

Sorteado numbered among his victims Cravat, which finished second today, half a length back of the winner and a head before Isolator. The late charge of Cravat and Isolator was slowly wearing down Sorteado's lead, but it was not quite good enough and the Howard racer crossed the line with a new American record. It is 2:28 2-5, as against War Admiral's 2:28 3-5.

Rule Handicap Division.

The victory now gives Howard and his veteran trainer, Tom Smith, what many consider the two best handicap stars in the country—Kayak II. and Sorteado.

Kayak II. is temporarily on the side lines, but will be remembered as the winner of the last $100,000 handicap at Santa Anita. Sorteado has been slower in finding himself, but he arrived today. His impost was 112 pounds, as against 120, top weight for Cravat.

THIRD DEGREE WINS

Havre De Grace, Md., Sept. 23.—Third Degree, Greentree stables colt, came from behind today to win the 21st running of the $10,000 added Potomac handicap, beating El Chico and Porter's Mite to take down the $7,950 winner's purse.

El Chico, from William Ziegler Jr.'s string, led most of the way, with W. E. Boeing's Porter's Mite chasing, but neither could stand the pace for the full mile and one-sixteenth and Jockey Wayne Wright slipped Third Degree between them for a three length victory. Porter's Mite, the favorite, salvaged second place and El Chico was third in the field of seven.

A crowd of 18,000 saw Third Degree come from fifth place to victory and cover the route in 1:44 4-5, four-fifths of a second less than the stake record set last year by Menow. Third Degree paid $7.60 to win.

Chicago Rugby Club to Hold Practice Today

Coach Alex Crawford of the Chicago Rugby club expects about 30 members of the squad out for practice this afternoon on Skokie play field. The Chicago squad is getting ready for its game with Victor McLaglen's Hollywood, Cal., team, on Soldiers' field, Sunday night, Oct. 8.

While Coach Crawford has made his decision on most of the lineup, there are still a half dozen positions to be filled.

So intense is the interest in the game that none of the regulars dare stay away from the tri-weekly drills. Players such as Jay Berwanger, Nat Blatchford, Leslie Mather, Vic Harding, Bob Childs, Freddie Lind, and Ham Reidy are among the earliest to show up for the practice sessions.

Sport fans unfamiliar with this form of football are inquiring into its rudiments. Here are the rules, scoring and penalties in the game:

Teams—15 players; eight forwards, two half backs, four quarter backs, and one full back.

Field—125 yards in length and 75 yards across, divided into four 25 yard positions. Dead ball line 25 yards behind each goal line.

Time—Two 40 minute halves. No time out. Ball may be received, kicked, passed or carried by any player. No substitutes even for injuries—no interference.

Scoring—Try [touchdown], 3 points; goal [after touchdown; conversion], 2 points; goal [from free kick], 3 points; goal [drop kick from field], 4 points.

Penalties: Free kick—Touching ball with hands in scrum [scrimmage formation]. Holding ball after being tackled. Willful tripping.

Scrum: Offside—Player in advance of ball. Knockon—Player fumbling ball toward opponent's goal. Referee may disregard penalty if offending side loses by its infringement.

Touch—When ball is kicked or carried over sidelines.

Hooker—Specially trained forward whose duty it is to obtain possession of ball in scrum by heeling or hooking it, with the feet only.

Officials—Referee and two touch judges. Referee's authority is supreme. Touch judge on each touch-line [out of bounds line].

Acts permitted and forbidden—Ball may be passed back from and to any number of players, but must not be passed forward.

Ball may be kicked by any player while it is on ground or by punting or drop-kicking.

Ball may be knocked back with the hands or arms, but must not be knocked forward.

Player not carrying ball cannot be interfered with by an opponent.

Player who is carrying ball is tackled when he is held by one or more opponents in such manner that he is unable to pass or otherwise play the ball. Tackled player must, as quickly as possible, put ball on ground and game continues. Penalty kick awarded if player deliberately holds ball after being tackled.

Player is offside if he plays or attempts to play ball or tackles or attempts to tackle an opponent when one of his own side behind him has kicked or touched or is carrying ball.

Try [touchdown] constitutes score if ball is grounded back of goal-line in space known as "in-goal" by hand or hands of attacking player before opponent grounds. If opponent grounds ball, it is dead and no score results.

Eight Seconds Left—Field Goal Wins for Macomb, 9-6

Macomb, Ill., Sept. 23 [Special].—A field goal by Bert Moore, with eight seconds remaining to play, gave the Macomb Teachers a 9 to 6 victory over the Penn college eleven of Oskaloosa, Ia., today in the opening game of the season. Moore is a former Lake Forest High school star.

IT'S MARFEU AT 9 TO 1—AND IN HIS BEST FORM!

Marfeu (No. 9), 5 year old gelding owned by Mrs. George Spaeth, wins $2,500 John Schank Memorial handicap yesterday at the Hawthorne track. Marfeu won by more than a length from Shadybrook farm's Grass Cutter, with John Marsch's Lightspur third. Marfeu, which had shown speed in his last effort, was overlooked in the betting and returned $20.20 to win. At extreme left is Sumatra III. In right foreground are Lightspur, Grass Cutter, and Silverette (on rail). [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Chief Onaway Wins by Head in Handicap

challenged by Chief Onaway as they went into the far turn. Viscounty, which had been running second to last, began to move up at this stage but Some Count continued to plod along far behind the field.

As they swung around the turn, Chief Onaway began gaining on Rude Awakening. Bob's Boys also improved his position and was running third as they headed home. Here Rude Awakening began to falter while Chief Onaway, Bob's Boys, and Viscounty made their bids.

Staves Off Bob's Boys.

Chief Onaway was a length ahead as they passed the eighth pole, but from there in Porter Roberts had to drive him hard to stave off the challenge of Bob's Boys. In the last thirty yards, Some Count took third place when Viscounty gave way.

Chief Onaway's prices were $7.80, $4.80, and $3.80. Place and show tickets on Bob's Boys were worth $6.40 and $4.60. Some Count returned $7 to show. Chief Onaway's time for the mile and a sixteenth was 1:45.

A field of ten good sprinters went to the post in the John Schank Memorial. The betting was wide open, only two of them being higher than ten to one. The Marsch entry of King's Blue and Lightspur drew the most support, being held at 5 to 2, while Grass Cutter and Allegro were both at 4 to 1. After Marfeu at 9 to 1 came three 10 to 1 propositions—Matchup, Silverette, and Sumatra III. Night Editor and Dusty Dawn were the long shots at 21 and 40 to 1 respectively.

Immediately after the break, Garrett Watts' 9 year old mare, Silverette, went out to set the pace, making a bid to run away with the race as she did the first stake of the Chicago season at Lincoln Fields. She was four lengths in the lead going around the turn while Grass Cutter, Lightspur, King's Blue, and Matchup were lapped on one another in hot pursuit. Marfeau was running seventh at this stage, being forced to race wide after breaking from the No. 9 post position.

In the stretch Silverette weakened and her rivals began closing rapidly. Grass Cutter and Lightspur drew alongside in the last furlong and Marfeu, moving swiftly on the outside, launched a determined challenge. Getting to the front in the last fifty yards under Jockey George South's strong riding, Marfeu drew clear while Grass Cutter and Lightspur were fighting it out for third.

Marfeu covered the six furlongs in 1:12 1-5. In the mutuels he paid $20.20, $8.80, and $4.80. Grass Cutter returned $6.80 and $4.40, while the Marsch entry was at $3.20 to show.

Bike Riders to Seek 50 Mile Crown Today

A field of nearly 500 bicycle riders will start this afternoon in quest of the 50 mile championship in the annual race from Elgin to Chicago. Riders will leave Elgin at 1 p. m. and are expected to reach Chicago about 2:30 p. m. The finishing line is Damen avenue and 21st street.

Though the field is large, the group which starts from scratch numbers only 29. The balance of the riders have handicaps of 7, 14, and 21 minutes. The record of 1 hour and 43 minutes set by Auggie Bensen in 1931 is expected to be shattered in this 13th renewal of the grind sponsored by George F. Barrett.

Award Memorial Trophies.

Five loving cups will be awarded in memory of sports officials who were active in fostering the first Elgin to Chicago race. The Paddy Harmon trophy, the Edward Mahlke trophy, the Jimmy Hunter cup, the Edward Schwartz trophy, and the George Barrett and Arnold Schwin racing bicycle awards will be prizes.

John A. Pelka, secretary of the Barrett A. C. will donate the Charles V. Barrett trophy in honor of the originator of the 50 mile race.

Official Course of Race.

The riders will follow Route 31 through the towns of Dundee, Carpentersville, Algonquin and over Northwest highway to Mount Prospect; south through Elk Grove, Bensenville to Lake street to Maywood, thence over Roosevelt road through Forest Park heading south on Harlem avenue to Cermak road, taking this route through Berwyn and Cicero to Ogden avenue to California avenue to 21st street to Ashland avenue to 21st place, turning west to finish line on 21st place to Damen avenue.

Hawks Open Drill Oct. 5 at Hibbing Camp

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The Chicago Blackhawks, who in the last three National Hocky league seasons, have pursued one of the most whimsical careers in the history of the ice game, will get down to the serious business of preparing for the 1939-40 season Oct. 5, when they report to Boss Paul Thompson for their first workout at Hibbing, Minn. Before they go out for keeps in their first regular game in Chicago Stadium against the New York Americans, the Hawks will have toiled in 22 practice sessions and five exhibition games.

The conclusion of the 1936-37 regulation season found the Chicagoans in seventh place, and therefore out of the Stanley cup playoffs. The 1937-38 season saw them gain a playoff berth, but only by two points over the Detroit Red Wings. The progress of the Hawks in that playoff, however, will stand as the most remarkable demonstration of team play the league ever has seen. After gaining the finals by defeating the Canadiens and Americans in preliminary battles, the Blackhawks rushed on to win the Stanley cup by defeating the Toronto Maple Leafs in three out of four games.

Hampered by Injuries.

Last season, the new champions never could seem to get going, a number of injuries being of no great assistance to their cause. They finished the season with a record of twelve victories, 28 defeats and eight ties for a total of 32 points. They scored 91 goals, while having 132 fired past them. This left them in seventh place and therefore out of the playoffs again.

The disastrous season hardly over, the Hawk officials immediately started a drastic overhauling. Their first move was to purchase as many of the outstanding rookies of the minor leagues as they could. Added to this, they organized a scouting campaign among amateur stars throughout the Dominion of Canada, with a view to preparing not only for the forthcoming season but other campaigns as well.

Hawks Get Prize Rookie.

The Hawk management's willingness to obtain the best of the new blood was rewarded with the prize rookie catch of the year—Phil Hergesheimer, the Winnipeg 25 year old who led the International league in scoring last season with the 34 goals and 19 assists he registered as right wing for the Cleveland Barons. With Hergesheimer comes a Cleveland teammate, Center Les Cunningham, who accounted for 49 points himself last season.

Hergesheimer and Cunningham will not be the only new gents to be seen frisking around the Hibbing camp. Other newcomers who will be given an opportunity to prove themselves include Ab Demarco, John Chad, Jack Kilpatrick, who is a native of Cumberland, England; Bob and Bill Carse; Doug Bentley, Pete Atkinson and George Allen, all forwards, and Defense Man Des Smith.

First Practice Game Oct. 15.

The training session will open on Oct. 5, continuing daily until the 15th, when the squad will choose up sides for its first exhibition game. Another practice workout will be held on the 16th, with the second intrasquad exhibition being scheduled for the 17th. The Hawks will then leave for St. Paul on the 18th. After three more daily workouts, they will play the first exhibition game on the 22d, with another scheduled for the 26th. The next day they will head for Cleveland, where they will engage in another exhibition.

They will arrive in Chicago on Oct. 29, working out at the Chicago Arena for a couple of days, and then going to the Chicago Stadium for their final workout on Nov. 1, the eve of the game against the Americans.

SIX TEAMS TIED FOR NORTH END BOWLING LEAD

Schlitz Gets 3,071 for High Team Mark.

Six teams are tied for first place in the North End Traveling league, a 10 club bowling organization. Sharing the lead with five games won and four lost, are the Schamberger Schlitz, Koenig Brau, Fox De Luxe, Birk Brothers, Budweiser Gold Coast, and the Curtiss Jolly Jacks. In the 15 matches rolled thus far no team has been able to win an entire series.

Low scores prevailed at the last session, but the Schlitz five managed to hang up a new high team mark for the season with 3,071. The individual record also went up a few notches when Matty Kass of the Jolly Jacks rolled 697 and Stanley Keegan of the Pepsi-Colas collected 692 with a 267 count included.

Windy City League.

The Mineralites and Budweisers continue to lead the Windy City league with five victories in six games. The Budweisers shot a 3,008 series, paced by Don Pinc's 705, to take three from the Betinis. The Mineralites were next with 2,997, while Vogels had 2,919 in winning two from the Bennetts. Ad Carlson, bowling with his new team, the Gills turned in a 661 series.

On North Side Alleys.

The Pats, besides leading the Samuelson Major league with eight victories in nine games, shot high team total with 3,073 in winning three from Mee & Rammes. George Rudy was high with 697. The Wallace Coals, last year's champions, came through with a 3,013 total, led by Gene Mytys with 666. Harry Ledene Sr. had 690 for the Michelobs. Mytys is leader in individual average with 214, followed by Leo Matson with 206; Pohn Straka, 202, and Clare Steinke, 201.

On South Side Alleys.

Five teams are tied for the lead in the Stevenson Major league with nine victories and three defeats. They are: Chathams, Slaviks, Budweisers, Wesley Smiths and F. Browns. The Lipps and De Youngs turned in the high series, the former winning two out of three with 3,116 to 3,099. J. Plewa of the Lipps led the individuals with 681. Although losing two out of three to the Budweisers, the Ortinans posted a series total of 3,029 to the winners' 3,023. S. Bomba of the Ortinans had 671. The Slaviks posted 3,030 in winning two out of three from the Rusnaks.

Randolph League.

The Nonebetters swept their series for the second time and lead the Randolph league with six victories and no defeats. Their latest victim was the Wagner and Hanson team. Marinello was high for the Nonebetters with 625. The Mineralites, in winning three from the Live Stock Press, shot the night's high team total with 3,047. Steers and Fliger paced the Mineralites with 666 and 665, respectively. Ad Carlson of the Gills was high man for the night with 685, featured by a 278 game.

Classic League.

The Sunday division of the Classic league will roll in the North Center Recreation, 4017 Lincoln avenue, tonight. The Michelobs, who have won five games and lost one, will face the champion Monarchs, who are one game behind. Power House will bowl Ambrosia, Pabst will oppose the Koenigs, and Schlitz will shoot against Prager.

DRIVE ON STATE TRADE BARRIERS MAKING GAINS

Restrictions Called Drag on Recovery.

BY JOHN FISHER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—Federal and state officials claim tangible results in their campaign to remove tarifs and other barriers set up by states which have retarded a free flow of trade within the nation.

The erection of legislative barriers between states still is so serious, however, that an Alabama newspaper recently inquired editorially: "Will the time ever come when it will be necessary for the state of Alabama to send an ambassador to the state of Wisconsin?" The editorial comment was on the Wisconsin tarif on cottonseed products.

Federal Action Threatened.

Resentment followed the increased use of tarif barriers and other restrictions to protect industry and agriculture within a state from the surpluses of other states or to provide increased revenues. The result was that federal officials threatened government action unless the states corrected the situation.

"Two possible solutions to this pressing national problem present themselves," said Nathaniel H. Engle, assistant director of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, at a recent trade barrier conference called by the Colorado State Chamber of Commerce. "The first is state cooperation such as is now being tried under the guidance of the council of state governments and other agencies and groups of states.

Suggests Federal Legislation.

"Should this method be unsuccessful or too protracted, the solution may be found in more specific federal legislation."

Engle said introduction of a senate resolution during the last session of congress, calling for the appointment of a senate committee to investigate trade barriers and make recommendation to the senate, was evidence that such solution has been contemplated. Nothing has resulted from the resolution.

"The constitution undoubtedly delegates to congress the power to legislate in this field to a greater extent than has been exercised," Engle asserted. "The Supreme court has said, 'Congress in the exercise of its plenary power to regulate interstate commerce may determine whether the burdens imposed on it by state regulation, otherwise permissible, are too great, and may curtail to some extent the state's regulatory power.' [South Carolina vs. Barnwell.]"

Numerous Barriers Set Up.

During the period of rising tarif barriers, a survey showed that twenty-four states had imposed taxes and licenses on oleomargarine and salad oils. Taxes were imposed on beer and liquors made outside of the certain states. Seven states discriminated against out-of-state eggs by establishing grades which could be met only by local eggs. Under these rules "fresh eggs" included only those laid within the state. Many states and municipalities prohibited the use of fluid milk, cream, and dairy products originating outside of certain areas. Costs were raised as a result of the limits on distribution.

Ports of entry were established by various states and restrictions put on transportation. Recently a group of English newspaper correspondents sought to engage a bus in the east for a trip to San Francisco. But inquiry showed that California would exact fees of $231 for permission to operate the bus within the state.

Other States Levy Fees.

In addition, New Mexico wanted $25; Arizona a gross weight charge plus $6.50; Oregon a $2.50 registration fee, plus 6 per cent of gross revenue; Montana a $15 filing fee, $2 insurance, plus 5 per cent of gross revenue; Wyoming a $5 fee, plus ½ mill per passenger mile revenue; Colorado a $20 fee, plus 1 mill per passenger mile; Missouri a $5 fee, plus $3 per day vehicle tax; and Kansas registration at port of entry and 2 cents per mile. The bus trip was canceled.

New York City has put itself on a basis of pay-as-you-enter-and-leave. It now costs motorists from 10 cents to $1 to enter or leave the city, depending on the approach used. Manhattan motorists must either pay the tolls or take devious toll beating routes which take them miles off the main highways.

Council Holds Conferences.

The Council of State Governments held conferences in Washington, D. C., last January and in Chicago in April to study the situation and press the campaign for repeal or alleviation of state trade restrictions. As a result, a survey of the state legislatures during their 1939 sessions, made by the bureau of agricultural economics, showed that interstate trade barrier bills were rejected by more than a dozen legislatures. Existing barriers were lowered or repealed in some states.

Only two states—Maine and Wyoming—reported the enactment of laws which may set up additional barriers to interstate trade. Further reaction against trade barriers is expected in 1941, when most state legislatures meet again.

Critics of the tarifs claim they have retarded recovery rather than stimulated home industry.

It was recalled that tarif barriers between the states led directly to the call for the constitutional convention in Philadelphia in 1787. The weakness of the articles of confederation was demonstrated in the economic warfare between the states after the revolutionary war.

Buying Flood Gives Impetus to Business

The upturn in business and industry gained impetus yesterday as additional announcements were made of expanding operations resulting from the dual influences of the European war and the normal fall upswing in manufacturing activity.

With employment already boosted in the production of vast quantities of merchandise and manufactured goods ordered by government agencies, railroads and business organizations, new contracts awarded during the day promised jobs for additional thousands.

The maritime commission at Washington awarded contracts for six cargo vessels to cost $12,314,000, in addition to the eleven costing $26,340,000 for which contracts were awarded on Friday.

Two Firms Get Contracts.

Two of the new vessels will be built by the Sun Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company at Chester, Pa., and the others by the Tampa Shipbuilding and Engineering company at Tampa, Fla. The awards bring to 131 the number of ships built or contracted for since the federal agency began the rehabilitation of the merchant marine about two years ago.

The war department announced that contracts totaling $5,410,344 were awarded during the first fifteen days of September under the 1939 procurement programs for several departments and corps.

Included were contracts awarded the Scovill Manufacturing company for metal parts costing $112,878; the Hercules Powder company, explosives, $909,400; General Electric company, lighting systems, $335,348; Caterpillar Tractor company, tractors, $174,501, and General Electric company, supercharger assemblies, $836,007.

Report Employment Rising.

Reports of rising employment came from several industrial centers. At Harrisburg, Pa., John I. Thomas, state secretary of mines, estimated that Pennsylvania coal mine operators have hired 3,000 additional men within the last few days to handle an increased volume of production.

The Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, General American Transportation corporation, and Bessemer and Lake Erie railroad were among other Pennsylvania employers reported to have increased their working forces.

At Springfild, Ill., F. Lynden Smith, director of the Illinois department of public works and buildings, announced 4,000 men will be put to work on state highways during the next six weeks for maintenance work.

More at Work in Cincinnati.

The Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce reported a substantial increase in employment and said its business index for August had risen to 81.2, from 80.5 in July and 81.1 a year ago.

The flood of orders for new railway equipment was augmented by an order for 300 box cars placed with the Mount Vernon Car Manufacturing company, Mount Vernon, Ill., by the Chicago and North Western railway. This was part of a purchase approved in July by Federal Judge John P. Barnes. Five hundred coal cars are yet to be ordered.

Guy A. Thompson, trustee for the Missouri Pacific railroad, was authorized by the St. Louis federal court to spend $122,050 to improve the railroad's vegetable and fruit loading facilities in seven Texas cities.

Merck & Co., which produces chemical and drug products, announced that because of expanding business $300,000 would be spent on several additions to its plant at Rahway, N. J., construction to begin at once.

The rising industrial tempo has spread to the furniture business, according to a survey by Seidman & Seidman, accountants, which showed new orders received in August were 5 per cent above those of last year and 28 per cent above July, 1939.

ILLINOIS HYBRID CORN SO HEAVY IT BREAKS BINS OF GOVERNMENT

Bloomington, Ill., Sept. 23 [Special].—Several of the new steel corn storage bins erected by the government in this vicinity are bulging from the weight of their contents and one has broken open, county Agricultural Adjustment administration officials learned today.

The fact that a number of the steel bins are about to break was ascribed to the heavier weight of hybrid corn grown in this area. Calculations on the capacity of the storage bins have been confused because the hybrid corn weighs 60 pounds per measured bushel, against the standard 56 pounds, according to A. V. Douglas of the McLean county agricultural conservation committee.

Because of the heavier weight of the hybrid variety, the bins will accommodate 35 bushels less than the 2,169 bushels they were built to hold, he said. The bins are used to store grain turned over to the Commodity Credit corporation by farmers in satisfaction of government loans made at the rate of 57 cents a bushel.

CHICAGO STEEL MILLS INCREASE OPERATING RATE

Steel mills in the Chicago district will operate this week at the highest rate since the first week of September, 1937, executives reported yesterday. The scheduled rate is 82 per cent of theoretical ingot capacity, 5.4 points higher than last week and 29.7 points above the rate prevailing a month ago.

The Pittsburgh's district's mills also will increase production, which is scheduled to start there tomorrow at 77.5 per cent of capacity, compared with 73 per cent a week earlier. The new rate is an increase of 22 points in four weeks. Some plants in the Pittsburgh area are "practically at capacity," dispatches said.

Canadian Freight Loadings in Week Set Peak Since '31

Canadian railroad carloadings in the week ended Sept. 16 totaled 71,274 cars, Dow-Jones reported yesterday. This was the highest mark for any week since 1931. In the preceding week loadings totaled 60,572 cars, and a year ago they were 56,580.

Offer New Car Operated Only by Accelerator

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

An important automobile improvement, in which the clutch and clutch pedal are eliminated and the car is operated solely through the accelerator, was announced yesterday by C. L. McCuen, general manager of the Oldsmobile division of the General Motors corporation.

C. L. McCuen.

The device has been named the hydra-matic drive. It is a combination of a hydraulic drive—similar to the "fluid drive" used on luxury automobiles in England for the last six years—and automatic gear shifting.

Driving a car with this device is as simple as operating a steam powered car by a throttle or an electric car by a control bar. And there is the same smoothness in putting the car in motion from a stand as in either the electric or steam powered vehicle.

Simplifies Car Control.

"Hydra-matic drive simplifies car control so amazingly that we believe it will mark as decisive an advance in car design as did the electric self-starter or four wheel brakes," McCuen said.

The hydraulic drive, or "liquid fly-wheel," as Oldsmobile terms it, is a device used in industry to some extent for the last fifty years.

The system operates this way: Consider two electric fans facing each other. Turn one fan on and the wind from the whirling blades turns the blades of the fan facing it. Now think of two fanlike devices, called "rotors," each containing some thirty blades, facing each other, but only one-thirty-second of an inch apart, in a steel housing filled with oil.

Oil Transmits Power.

One rotor is attached to the crankshaft of the engine, the other is attached to the automatic transmission which applies the driving force to the rear wheels. When the engine is started and engaged it makes the blades, or vanes, to which it is attached, revolve. This, in turn, forces the oil against the blades of the rotor facing it, causing the second rotor to revolve and thereby operating the driving mechanism.

The principle is the same as the revolving fan causing the fan opposite it to revolve. But in this case it is the oil instead of the air that transmits the power.

But the Oldsmobile device is different from those previously used. When the engine is started and the car is allowed to move when in first gear, an automatic shift to second is made when a speed of eight miles an hour is attained.

When a speed of 15 to 18 miles an hour is reached an automatic shift into third speed is made, and at 23 miles an hour there is another auto-

STOCKS FIRMER, BUT YAWN OVER EUROPEAN WAR

Trade Dullest Since Conflict Started.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 23.—Stocks simmered today as traders showed a disposition to await the outcome of the fight over revision of the neutrality act and many traders were absent from Wall street because of the Jewish holiday. As a result prices were mixed and irregularly higher at the close.

Closing prices were midway between their worst and best of the day with the average showing slight gains in the industrial and rail sections and an insignificant loss in the utility division. Plus signs were in the majority at the close, 288 issues advancing against 205 declines, and 191 closing unchanged.

The session was easily the dullest since the outbreak of the European war twenty-three days ago. Total sales added up to only 562,460 shares, compared to 1,084,280 last Saturday, and were the smallest for any Saturday since Aug. 26.

Prices Best at Midsession.

After opening mixed prices firmed, reaching their best levels about midway through the session. All could not hold their positions, however, and a goodly number were forced to give up ground in the final hour of trading.

Heavy industrial stocks were again the leaders. Steels were in the vanguard on reports that steel operations next week would stage another sharp advance. Bethlehem closed at its best mark of the day, 92⅝, up ⅞ point. United States Steel, one of the favorites of the week, turned a bit easier, giving up a small fraction.

Copper shares, which had been one of the features of the early war markets, showed little change. Anaconda slipped a small fraction and Kennecott went up ¼ point. Loft was active and a bit higher on the belief that the company would soon submit a plan to the stockholders which might call for the sale or segregation of its retail store units, the unprofitable side of the business.

Merchandising Shares Active.

Considerable interest was shown in merchandising shares. Montgomery Ward and Sears-Roebuck were active with the latter scoring a gain of a major fraction. Montgomery Ward was up more than a point in early dealings, but levelled later to close unchanged. This group, according to observers, has been lagging behind the rest of the market and traders may be shifting into it.

A feature of the market was Norfolk and Western, which jumped 2 points to 200, the first time that it has sold at that level in two years. The only other stock to hit the "double century" mark this year was Allied Chemical, which recently reached 200½. Today Allied Chemical lost 4 points, closing at 192. Nickel Plate went up 1¼ points. Pullman gained a large fraction in the equipment sector.

Glass shares came to life half way through the brief session. Libby Owens spurted 2⅛ points. Owens Glass had a good gain converted into a fractional loss.

UNITED STATES TO RECEIVE MORE FOREIGN GOLD

Engagement abroad of an additional $3,586,000 of gold for shipment to the United States was announced yesterday by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. The engagements included $2,836,000 in Canada, $575,000 in India, and $148,000 in England. The bank also reported the arrival at San Francisco, Cal., of $502,000 of gold from China.

The United States treasury's monetary stock of gold is rapidly approaching the 17 billion dollar mark. A statement yesterday showed that gold assets on Thursday had reached $16,907,917,087.52, compared with $13,588,324,242.24 a year earlier.

Foreign currencies showed no important changes in yesterday's trading at New York. The British pound sterling was unchanged at $4. The French franc eased 0.00½ cent to 2.27½ cents.

ANOTHER BARGAIN STOCK

We have selected a stock which we believe to be one of the most attractive speculations now available. It appears to be selling much below its prospective value. In fact, this issue promises to be one of the leaders in the next upswing.

The security in question is within the reach of all investors, selling as it does at a very low figure. The company has greatly improved prospects. Business is expected to expand sharply. Earnings should pick up substantially. The action of the stock indicates much higher prices. In short, this is one of the most promising issues that we have been able to uncover in a long time.

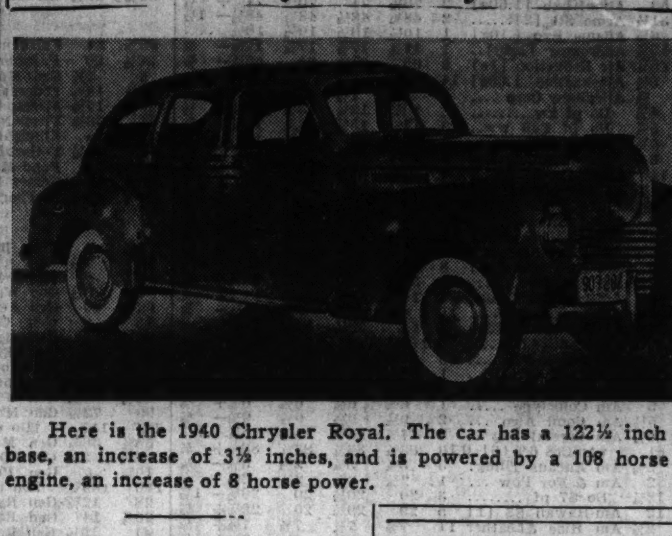
New Chrysler "Royal" Car



Here is the 1940 Chrysler Royal. The car has a 122½ inch wheelbase, an increase of 3½ inches, and is powered by a 108 horse power engine, an increase of 8 horse power.

Chrysler Line of 1940 Models Put on Display

Formal announcement was made yesterday of the details of the 1940 Chrysler automobiles. Completely redesigned and restyled, the Chrysler line will consist of six models comprising a total of 26 body styles. The models have been named Royal, Windsor, Traveler, New Yorker, Saratoga and Crown Imperial.

The wheelbase of the Royal and Windsor has been increased 3½ inches to 122½ inches and the horse power of the engine has been increased from 100 to 108. The wheelbase of the Traveler, New Yorker, and Saratoga has been increased 3½ inches to 128½ inches and that of the Crown Imperial has been increased 1⅛ inches to 145½ inches. The engine in this group is 135 horse power except the Crown Imperial, which is 137.

Front End Simplified.

The front end of the entire Chrysler line has been simplified and made more beautiful by a modernistic treatment. The hood is longer than in the 1939 models. The radiator grille, with horizontal stainless steel moldings, gives the car a massive appearance. Fenders are of new design, being more massive and curved to flow into the body lines.

Headlamps are set in the fenders the full width of the car apart. Lights are of the new "sealed beam" type for safer driving at night.

The Chrysler "fluid drive," which was introduced late last year on the Custom Imperial, is being offered this year in the New Yorker and Saratoga as extra equipment at extra cost and as standard equipment on the Crown Imperial. The overdrive is offered as extra equipment on all models except the Royal and Traveler.

Many Improvements Made.

Among the numerous improvements or refinements are the following: More efficient gearshift; warning lights on the instrument gauges which flash when fuel supply is low, oil pressure is too low, engine temperature is too high or when the battery is discharging too heavily; improvement in the steering, extension of Chrysler's "superfinish" on metal engine parts.

The body of the car is larger and the interior is more luxurious. Visibility is increased, notably the rear vision, which has been added through the use of an undivided sheet of curved glass. Cars come with or without running boards. Rear doors are exceptionally wide. Although the car has been lowered, the headroom remains high.

Brakes More Efficient.

Hydraulic brakes are more efficient. Especially large electric windshield wipers are used. A new system of heating and ventilating is offered at extra cost.

A feature of the entire Chrysler line is a new balancing of the weights in the car to give a better ride. The rear axle has been moved back 7½ inches and the engine advanced 4 inches in relation to the front wheels. This increases the "cradled" area between the axles in which the passengers ride.

RAW MATERIALS ADVANCE BOOSTS FINISHED GOODS

Prices Withdrawn on Rubber Items.

Prices of consumer goods and finished products began to move higher last week as a result of the recent rise in markets for raw materials.

The United States Rubber company withdrew all prices on mechanical rubber goods, effective Sept. 30, and announced that a new price list would be issued shortly. The company said higher raw material markets have resulted in higher manufacturing costs. Other rubber companies had previously taken similar action. Tires for export have been advanced 5 to 10 per cent in price.

The Winchester Repeating Arms company announced shotgun shell prices have been raised 5 per cent, and rifle cartridges 7½ per cent. Officials said the increases were due to "unsettled conditions" which increased raw material costs.

Goods Markets Climb.

Increases in wool, cotton, and silk products were outstanding in the week's market news. Woolen goods manufacturers raised their quotations on worsteds and other woolen goods 40 cents a yard in two moves. Dry goods continued to move up in the Worth street [New York] cotton textile market, bringing prices generally 1 cent a yard above those prevailing before the war started.

Julius Kayser & Co., a leading hosiery manufacturer, raised the price of full fashioned branded hosiery 65 to 75 cents a dozen pairs, following smaller advances on unbranded hosiery a week earlier. Dealers said retail hosiery prices will probably go up 15 cents a pair as a result. Rayon prices were advanced 2 to 3 cents a pound.

Anthracite Advanced.

Anthracite producers lifted their quotations 15 to 40 cents a ton at the mines. Coal men said retail prices will probably advance 40 to 75 cents a ton by Oct. 1 as a result. Advances of ⅛ to 3½ cents a gallon were reported on oils used in blending lubricating oils in Pennsylvania. One independent oil company in the east boosted gasoline tank car prices ¼ cent a gallon.

St. Louis shoe manufacturers have raised shoe prices 5 to 15 cents a pair since the war began, it was reported. Orders have increased 25 to 40 per cent.

Other increases were posted on coated paper, salmon, and industrial diamonds. The Oil, Paint and Drug Reporter, chemical trade publication, said heavy domestic and foreign demand has raised the publication's composite index of prices for heavy and fine chemicals to the highest point since November, 1937.

Big British Argentine Beef Deal Held Up by Price

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 23 (AP).—Month long negotiations for one of the largest meat purchases in history of Argentina's packing industry—200,000 tons of chilled beef for Great Britain and France—apparently were stalemated today over a price disagreement. Authoritative sources said a telegram had been received announcing that no more British ships would be sent here to load beef. The Standard, an English language newspaper, said the price of Argentine meat had increased about 50 per cent over pre-war levels.

RAILS and UTILITIES!

Will war benefit or harm these important groups?

WITH electric output now at record levels, and best net earnings in 7 years in prospect, are utilities undervalued?

October car loadings are expected to exceed any year since 1930. Will rising costs offset traffic gains?

INDUSTRY AGAIN HANGS UP SIGN: 'HELP WANTED'

Autumn Buying, War Boost Production.

BY LELAND FORRESTER.

": Help Wanted" signs, which for years have gathered dust in dark corners, went back up on shop and factory gates last week. American industry, stimulated by normal fall orders and in addition by the more spectacular buying resulting from the war, expanded production.

Jesse Jones.
Announces 2½% loans to railroads.

Several industries were operating at the fastest rate of the year, and some were the most active since 1937. One important index of activity, electric power production, set a new all-time high mark, and flour mills were the busiest in ten years.

Steel output and railroad freight car loadings established two year peaks. Cotton textile manufacturing and residential building climbed to new 1939 heights.

Automobile Output Rises.

Automobile production and offerings of new securities were larger than in the preceding week.

Indices which made less favorable showings than in the preceding week included those for wholesale and retail trade, engineering construction activity and bank clearings, all of which were nevertheless above year ago volume, with the exception of heavy construction.

In the case of retail and wholesale trade, the mild slackening tendency was said to reflect a subsiding of feverish speculative or hoarder buying rather than a setback in normal trading. Autumn goods were reported to be moving in sizable volume. Dun & Bradstreet said retail sales throughout the nation averaged 6 to 14 per cent larger than a year earlier.

The Associated Press composite index of industrial activity advanced to 101 per cent of the 1929-'30 average. It stood at 97.0 per cent a week earlier and at 78.6 per cent in the corresponding 1938 week. The index, with its seasonably adjusted components, compared as follows:

Rail Equipment Field Active.

The railroad equipment and steel making industries were among the leaders in the week's industrial expansion.

Railroads ordered 5,500 new freight cars, inquired for 5,500 more, and announced specific plans to buy still another 4,000. These were in addition to thousands which they will make or repair in their own shops. At least nine locomotives were ordered. Two roads alone announced improvement programs totaling $35,000,000. Orders for steel rail totaling 161,000 tons were placed by three carriers.

This rush of activity by the railroads, which expect to benefit from the quickening of industry as a result of the war, materialized at about the same time the government was announcing that it would lend at low rate for purchase or repair of railroad equipment.

RFC To Make Rail Loans.

Jesse Jones, federal loan administrator, said the Reconstruction Finance corporation will make loans

CHICAGO GRAIN PRICES

Closing prices on the December delivery of principal grains on the Chicago Board of Trade:

	Yesterday.	Friday.	Yr. ago.
Wheat	$0.86¼	$ .86⅝	$ .66⅛
Corn	.54¾	.55¼	.51
Oats	.34½	.34⅝	.26⅛
Rye	.55	.54⅝	.45⅛
Soy beans	.85¼	.84	.77⅛

Grain prices were on the downgrade yesterday. Speculators showed an increasing disposition to stay on the sidelines pending further developments in Europe. Trading in futures yesterday was the smallest in more than three weeks, brokers said.

Closing trades on wheat futures on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday were at losses of ⅛ to ¼ cent. Corn declined ⅜ to ½ cent. Short covering was responsible for a late rally in wheat.

Increased hedging pressure and a lack of aggressive foreign demand resulted in the Winnipeg market developing weakness. Futures closed 1½ to 1⅞ cents lower.

Mills Buy Canadian Wheat.

Mills and exporters were reported to have been large buyers of cash wheat in the Canadian market, but the actual sales abroad were said to have been small.

Drouth conditions in the winter wheat belt are expected to be intensified this week. The weather bureau long range forecast held out no hope of rains of consequence, with temperatures expected to be about normal. Chicago crop experts say that unless soaking rains fall shortly a smaller acreage may be seeded than anticipated several weeks ago.

New corn has started to move to terminal markets at a record early date, experts say. Chicago received three cars of new Illinois corn yesterday, including two cars which graded No. 2 yellow.

Country Offers Less Corn.

New No. 3 yellow corn sold at 56 cents, or 1 cent a bushel above the December future. Country offerings of corn for deferred shipment were smaller yesterday as a result of the decline in prices.

A large increase is expected to be shown in Chicago stocks of corn in the visible supply statement tomorrow. It is estimated more than 3,000,000 bushels of government owned grain were received and unloaded into local elevators last week.

Prospects that northern Europe may be forced to turn to North America for supplies of rye because of inability to secure grain from Poland led to buying of rye futures yesterday.

Commodities

London dispatches yesterday indicated opposition is arising among metal interests to the British government's policy of fixed prices for copper, lead, tin, and zinc. It was reported that representatives of the London Metal exchange plan to submit grievances to the British ministry of supply.

The maximum prices fixed for sales of copper, lead, and zinc make no allowance for dealers' commissions, it was said. In the case of tin, English dealers complained that they cannot resell to the United States metal bought at the equivalent of about 42 cents a pound, although American firms are allowed to do so. With tin selling for 70 cents a pound in the United States, large profits were being diverted from English to American firms, they said.

Trade in metal markets in the United States was quiet yesterday, and cash prices were unchanged. Copper futures moved up slightly, lead and zinc were unchanged, and tin was irregular. Tin closed 3 cents a pound higher to ½ cent lower.

Lead production in the United States in August increased to 39,000 short tons, the American Bureau of Metal Statistics reported yesterday. In July output was 27,021 tons, and in August, 1938, it was 25,547 tons.

Stocks on hand at the end of August dropped to 117,985 tons from 124,017 at the end of July. On Aug. 31, 1938, stocks were 142,868 tons. August shipments totaled 45,025 tons against 42,636 in July and 38,343 in August a year ago.

Cash raw wool moved up 1 cent a pound to $1.31, making an advance of 6 cents for the week.

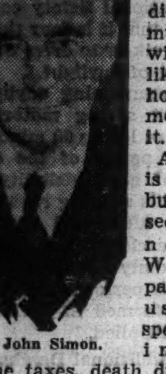
BRITISH PONDER WAR COST, AWAIT BUDGET REPORT

Methods of Financing Not Yet Disclosed.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 23.—Business and financial interests are awaiting the war budget of Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer for indications of how much the conflict with Germany is likely to cost and how the government will pay for it.



Sir John Simon.

Although Simon is keeping the budget proposals secret until announcement Wednesday in parliament, the usual flood of speculation about increased income taxes, death duties, and new imposts on beer, liquors, bicycles, luxury goods is going the rounds.

No one now has any clear ideas as to the particular means by which the war will be financed—what proportion of expenditure will be provided by taxation, how much from loans, or how far the business community will be encouraged to make profits.

Figures of Last War.

Statisticians today recalled that in the last war the proportion of expenditure covered by revenue after the first year averaged around 25 per cent and that the proportion met from borrowing 75 per cent. But the methods of finance then permitted substantial business profits to be made, and the revenue raised from taxation increased.

Conditions today, however, appear vastly different and financial experts are admittedly perplexed. With prices controled, many markets closed, and initiative restricted, the question is raised as to whether business turnover will yield sufficient profits to swell the income tax, or whether the chancellor will concentrate on increasing levies on war profits.

Suggest Capital Levy.

In some quarters it is suggested the government is contemplating a capital levy. One arrangement which seems to have a degree of official approval is the immediate compilation of a register of all wealth owned by the tax paying classes on the day the war broke out. The register, according to the sponsors of the idea, could be used at the end of the hostilities for estimating the war time increases in personal wealth and with a view to a postwar capital levy.

Although there is much talk of the early issue of a big war loan, the deadlock caused by the imposition of minimum prices in the gilt edged securities market gives no guide as to the possible rate at which a loan could be floated.

Germans Plan Big Loan.

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Sept. 23.—The reich defense council, headed by Marshal Hermann Goering, published a decree today authorizing the finance ministry to obtain war loans up to 15 billion marks. How the loans are to be raised was not revealed, but the decree is regarded as evidence of the fact the new financial plan, with its noninterest bearing tax repayment certificates, has proved inadequate and that the government is forced to return to more orthodox financial methods.

PRICES OF EGGS RALLY; BUTTER FUTURES GAIN

Egg futures on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday rallied from new all time lows for September trading and closed .05 cent a dozen higher. Octobers closed at 16.65 cents.

At the low level, futures were .15 to .25 cent under Friday's close and about 2⅛ cents under the peaks established on the war boom. Short covering and a better tone in securities markets aided the recovery. Top grade cash eggs dropped ½ to ¾ cent.

Butter futures gained .05 to .15 cent a pound as the cash market continued to display a firm tone. November contracts advanced the larger fraction, closing at 27.40 cents.

MEAT PLENTIFUL AND CHEAPEST IN RECENT WEEKS

Heavy Retail Sales Are Expected.

There is an abundance of all kinds of meat in packinghouse coolers available to butcher shop owners at the lowest prices in recent weeks, a review of the wholesale markets disclosed late last week. The movement of beef, veal, pork and lamb meat into retail channels during the next few days is expected to reach the heaviest volume of the season as the result of increased slaughtering of all classes of meat animals last week.

Aggregate receipts of cattle, calves, hogs and sheep at the Chicago stockyards last week were largest since the week ended May 6. They showed a gain of 20 per cent over the average of the two preceding weeks, when farmers were holding shipments back pending the effects of the war on live stock prices.

War Hysteria Disappears.

The hysteria of two weeks ago has disappeared from live stock and meat markets.

Wholesale prices for the various cuts of meats at the close of last week were 2 to 36 per cent lower than during the hectic days immediately following the declaration of war in Europe. Prices closed 13 per cent lower to 5 per cent higher than a year ago. Live costs of meat animals ran mostly 3 to 6 per cent lower than two weeks ago and 12 to 34 per cent lower than in 1938.

The most severe decline from the peak of the "war market" occurred in pork and lamb meat. Top light pork loins went to butcher shop owners at the close of the week at $19.00 a hundred pounds, compared with $30.00 at the high time, a drop of 36 per cent in about two weeks.

Live Stock Numbers Estimated.

According to the department of agriculture, farmers not only have more live stock on hand than in several years but they have a larger number than at the opening of the world war in 1914.

On Jan. 1, 1939, the government estimated a total of 169,594,000 cattle, hogs, and sheep on United States farms, compared with 155,403,000 Jan. 1, 1914, an increase of 9.1 per cent. Cattle showed a gain of 12.3 per cent over 1914, hogs a decrease of 7.2 per cent, and sheep an increase of 24.7 per cent.

Cattle and sheep are returning farmers more money than they did in 1914, but hogs sell for less. Last week's averages were $10.15 on steers, $7.60 on hogs, and $9.35 on lambs. Averages for the corresponding week in 1914 were: Steers, $9.40; hogs, $8.55, and lambs, $7.60.

At the close of the week some light hogs were up 10 to 20 cents compared with a week earlier, but the bulk of classes showed losses of 10 to 25 cents, with "lard hogs" down most. Final lamb prices were steady.

In the cattle alleys most steers and yearlings were weak to 25 cents lower, with some off 35 cents, although some light yearlings were strong.

BUSINESS BOOM PUTS MORE LAKE SHIPS IN SERVICE

Vessel Concerns Swamped with Ore Orders.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 23 [Special].—One of the biggest business booms in the annals of Great Lakes shipping history has resulted in the placing of 34 additional freighters in commission in the last two weeks, shippers reported today, and three more freighters will be started the first of next week.

With steel mill operations accelerated by the European war and vessel companies swamped with new orders for ore, 264 vessels now are plying the lakes as against only 230 prior to the outbreak of hostilities in Europe. The number will be boosted to 267 when three additional boats load cargoes next week. Fourteen of the 21 companies engaged in carrying ore on the lakes now are operating their full fleets and 258 of the 264 freighters now in commission are classified as ore carriers. Only 206 ships were in commission late in July.

Seek to Lay Up Ore.

The sudden increase in the number of ships working on the lakes is almost unprecedented in the shipping industry. In past seasons it has been customary for vessel operators to start laying up their boats late in September and early in October. Steel mill officials, however, believe their plants will be operating at capacity throughout the winter months and are determined to increase ore stocks in furnace yards at lower lake points to guard against a possible shortage of the raw material.

Canadian coal imports from England have been drastically curtailed by the war and the dominion is in the market for large supplies from the United States, but the fall of the Canadian dollar in this country may affect the lake movement to dominion ports. Shipments to upper lake ports have been heavy and there has been a shortage of self-unloaders in the coal trade.

Lake Coal Movement Heavy.

Bituminous coal is moving at the rate of 1,400,000 tons a week and it is believed that shipments for the year will aggregate about 37,000,000 tons. Grain brokers are having considerable difficulty getting tonnage, and rates are mounting. The rate for moving grain from Fort William and Port Arthur to lower lake ports has advanced from 3¾ to 6 cents.

Vessels transported 17,853,263 bushels of wheat, 2,186,681 bushels of oats, 1,444,709 bushels of barley, 48,544 bushels of flaxseed, and 365,601 bushels of rye from Fort William and Port Arthur to lower lake ports last month. The grain was moved by 108 freighters, but only one vessel of United States registry handled a cargo.

Grain shipments from Canada to the British Isles are being held up until a convoy system is worked out and dominion elevators are plugged with grain stocks. As a result, many cargoes now leaving the Canadian head of the lakes are consigned to American ports, particularly Buffalo and Erie, which have surplus storage space.

CHICAGO STOCKS MIXED; MOVE IN NARROW RANGE

Price movements were small and indecisive on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday. Sixteen thousand shares were traded. Seventy-five issues appeared on the tape, of which 25 advanced, 25 declined, and 25 closed unchanged. Armour led trading volume with a turnover of 1,250 shares, closing ⅛ higher at 7¼. North American Car was up ¼ to a new 1939 high at 4¾.

The Chicago Stock exchange maintained its leadership over the Boston exchange during August, according to a Securities and Exchange commission report published yesterday. Chicago trading volume represented $13,625,276 at market values, against $13,360,863 for Boston. The Chicago total was exceeded only by the New York Stock and Curb exchanges.

Trading in the week totaled 252,000 shares, compared with 333,000 in the preceding week and 128,900 a year ago.

INDUSTRY AGAIN HANGS UP SIGN: 'HELP WANTED'

Fall Buying, War Orders Boost Production.

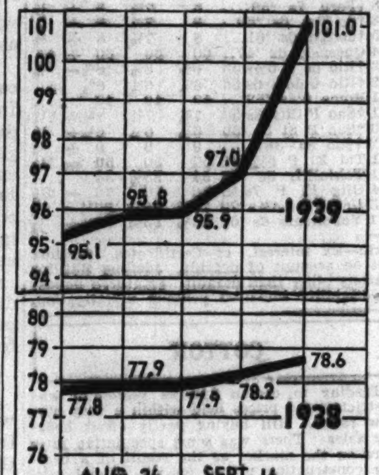
to the roads at interest rates of 2½ to 3 per cent. He said the carriers have spent $125,000,000 for new equipment in the last two months, and will spend up to $75,000,000 for repairs in the next six months to complete a program which will increase their carrying capacity 50 per cent.

Confirming Jones' prediction, the Association of American Railroads announced that its members will start at once on a $75,000,000 to $100,000,000 repair program. It said 25,000 cars will be ordered or repaired.

Greyhound Orders Buses.

A competitor of the roads in the passenger transportation field—Greyhound corporation—also announced an improvement program calling for 350 new Diesel powered buses at a cost of $6,500,000. A fleet of 34 buses was ordered by a street railway system.

In the steel industry some smaller mills operated at capacity, some of the largest ones neared their maximum efficiency, and some in both groups were nearly sold out to capacity for the rest of 1939. Some of the largest steelmakers were preparing to reopen mills that have not operated for two to seven years. Mills were so hard pressed with orders that several were rationing shipments to their various district offices.



The chart traces the course of industrial activity in the last four weeks, as measured by the Associated Press seasonally adjusted composite index, and shows the corresponding activity a year ago (1929-'30 average equals 100).

Costs Worry Steel Makers.

With orders streaming in, steel producers were beginning to worry about the steady increase in the cost of components of steel, including steel scrap. Present steel prices have been affirmed through the fourth quarter, but mill executives said the higher costs eventually will have to be passed on to the steel buyers.

Expanding operations in this industry—which operated at 79.3 per cent of capacity, compared with 70.2 a week earlier and 47.3 a year earlier—and gains in other lines increased employment. Six companies alone—including three railroads, one steel plant, one airplane factory, and the mines of one steel company—hired 7,100 workers. Many other plants added workers but did not announce the number.

Lead Mines Reopened.

One lead producer reopened six major mines, but there was no estimate of the number of jobs involved. Many small factories throughout the country were reported to have resorted to Sunday operations to fill orders. Mines which had been running on curtailed schedules raised them to five and six days a week.

Shipyards received large government orders, as did several aircraft builders. Four large companies in various industries reported they are arranging to expand their factories.

The textile trade announced that its inventory problem has been solved by the sale of 700 million yards of goods since the war buying rush began. Mill stocks have been reduced 65 to 70 per cent, and the mills have sold all their expected production to the end of the year at increased prices, trade dispatches said.

Midwest Shippers Optimistic.

In the middle west, shippers who use freight cars and who make estimates each quarter of the number of cars they will need three months ahead, predicted they will use 16 per cent more in the fourth quarter than they did in the fourth 1938 quarter. This estimate is considered one of the best forecasts available.

Here are some of the figures on industrial production or other business indices for last week:

Automobile production was 53,950 units, compared with 41,245 in the preceding week and 20,390 in 1938.

Bank clearings in 22 leading cities were 6 billions 75 millions, down 44 millions for the week but 1.5 per cent larger than a year earlier.

Production of electricity in the week ended Sept. 16, the latest period for which figures are available, was 2,444,371,000 kilowatt hours, compared with 2,289,960,000 in the preceding holiday week and 2,214,775,000 in 1938.

Railroad freight loadings for the same week totaled 805,733 cars, the largest volume since the week of Oct. 15, 1937. The figure was 667,409 in the preceding week and 660,163 in 1938.

The business rise extended beyond the national boundaries. Banking, transportation, exporting and manufacturing groups said South America is turning to the United States for goods and services hitherto supplied by European nations Norway and Sweden are sending ships to the United States to carry home coal.

REJECTS BOND BIDS.

All bids were rejected by officials of Douglas county, Wisconsin, for an issue of $175,000 of relief bonds.

FOREIGN TRADE PACTS ASSAILED AT FARM PARLEY

Court Test of Legality Is Proposed.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 23 [U. P.].—United States' reciprocal trade agreements with foreign nations were attacked and their constitutionality questioned today at a conference of grain belt governors. The meeting was called to consider increasing problems of the American farmer.

Gov. Vanderbilt. Fights reciprocal trade treaties.

O. L. Brownlee, a member of the Iowa delegation at the conference, proposed that the states institute suit to test the constitutionality of the reciprocal trade agreements act. His proposal was in line with other demands to save American markets for American farmers previously placed before the conference. Brownlee charged that the trade treaties infringe the sovereignty of the states.

Opposes New Pacts.

Gov. Harold E. Stassen, who called the conference, received a plea from Gov. W. H. Vanderbilt, Rhode Island, asking the governors to join in a movement to prevent the federal government from signing any more reciprocal trade pacts. Vanderbilt proposed that the governors direct their attorney generals to study to possibility of instituting legal action against the reciprocal agreements. He recently asked the attorney general of Rhode Island to take such action.

Almost to a man, speakers at the parley urged an agricultural program that would give the farmers exclusive rights to United States markets. A program which, he said, would "preserve American markets for Americans" was advanced by John Brandt, president of the Land o' Lakes creameries.

Program Is Suggested.

Brandt proposed that the governors seek:

1. Exclusion of imports so long as the farmer can meet the nation's needs.
2. Trade treaties benefiting the farmers.
3. Exclusion of imports from countries with lower industrial standards.
4. Placing of social security on a pay-as-you-go basis.
5. Formation of a surplus holding pool for agricultural production.
6. Control of production by means of an equalization fund.

J. H. Lloyd, Illinois state agriculture director, representing Gov. Henry Horner, advocated retaining the agricultural adjustment act, largely in its present form.

TRACTION LINES SHOW GAIN IN TRANSFER USE

Figures Compiled at End of Four Year Period.

An increasing number of passengers made use in the last year of the interline transfer system between the surface lines and the elevated lines in spite of a general decline in transit riding during the period. This is shown by an analysis of trafic figures on the fourth anniversary of the interline transfer arrangement.

More than 36,136,000 riders have transferred between the two lines in the last twelve months, compared with 35,442,000 riders in the preceding year. In the first year the system was in operation the total was 29,975,000, and increased to 33,113,000 in the second year.

Transfers Started in 1935.

Interline transfer riding was begun on Sept. 21, 1935, by an order from the Illinois commerce commission resulting from a petition by the city. Under the plan riders on either the elevated or surface lines may transfer to the other line at any of 57 designated points for a single 10 cent fare. A similar plan was put into force between the elevated and the motor coach [bus] routes in January, 1936.

Monthly figures show that interline riding between the elevated and surface lines has gained in every month this year except January, in comparison with 1938 transfer rides. An average monthly gain of more than 130,000 interline passengers has been recorded. This is in contrast to a drop of approximately 1 per cent in the total trafic on the elevated and surface lines for the period.

Trafic Figures Compared.

	1938.	1937.
Sept. 22 to 30	861,832	891,141
October	2,928,446	3,026,401
November	2,925,371	3,054,231
December	3,235,614	3,433,767
	1939.	1938.
January	3,099,052	3,198,808
February	3,092,515	2,929,283
March	3,342,122	3,204,333
April	3,037,263	3,001,250

July	2,716,382	2,555,342
August	2,904,309	2,704,384
Sept. 1 to 21	*1,929,163	1,855,855
Total	36,136,640	35,442,097

* Estimated.

The above figures are for interline riding between the elevated and surface lines only. Between the elevated and motor coach routes, transfer riders increased to 4,043,205 in the first eight months of the year. This compares with 3,366,561 in the first eight months of 1938, making an average monthly boost of 85,000 transfer passengers.

"OVER-THE-COUNTER."

Investors' Guide frequently receives inquiries from people who, not seeing their stock listed on an exchange, wonder if it has any value. The fact that a stock is not listed on an exchange does not mean the stock has no market value. Many stocks are traded in the "over-the-counter" market.

The business done outside the exchanges is greater than the trading volume on all listed markets. All trading in about 18 billion dollars of municipal securities is conducted in this "over-the-counter" market. It is a major market for United States government issues. For stocks and bonds of thousands of companies throughout the country it is the only trading center.

The term "over-the-counter" is all embracing. It includes transactions in all securities not listed on the regular exchanges and dealings in listed securities outside an exchange. It is estimated that more than 100,000 different stocks and bonds are traded in this manner.

Private banking houses of the 19th century appear to have been the origin of the phrase, "over-the-counter." On the inside the physical construction of these banks was similar to small commercial banks today. There were counters such as are now found in banks. And over these counters traders delivered and accepted delivery of securities. It was from this that the term developed.

Transactions in the "over-the-counter" market are conducted by negotiation. Houses contact one another by private wire or telephone. The transaction is carried on by a representative of each house quoting bid and offer prices. A price is found which is suitable to both houses, and a deal is made. Some houses have private wire systems extending across the country.

These houses also serve as risk bearers themselves. They accumulate an inventory of securities when absorbing supply and liquidate such inventory to meet demands for securities when buying orders come in.

Such houses do not act simply as brokers. They also merchandise securities. This means that they actively strive to create a market. When selling is heavy, the "over-the-counter" houses will dig up known buying interests to support prices. When there is a strong demand, they search for sellers to supply the stock.

Competition is an important factor in this market. Various houses are striving against one another for business. This creates competitive bidding for shares offered for sale and competitive offers for those who wish to buy. This competition is helpful to the small investor entering the "over-the-counter" market.

You should not assume that because you hold a stock that is not listed or because you seldom, if ever, hear of the company that the stock has no market value. It may have a very real value in the "over-the-counter" market.

COTTON

Trading in cotton futures yesterday was restricted and prices held within a very narrow range. Mill buying partly offset hedging sales. There was some speculative pressure on the market as the result of a bearish construction placed on the official estimate as to the amount of cotton ginned so far this season. Closing trades on futures were .02 to .09 cent a pound lower.

Ginnings of American cotton prior to Sept. 16 as reported by the bureau of the census aggregated 3,883,000 bales, compared with 3,635,000 bales during the same period in 1938 and 4,261,000 bales in 1937.

Demand for textiles was reported somewhat less active. Sales of gray goods and other lines of cotton textiles the past week are estimated to have exceeded 100,000,000 yards.

Spot cotton closed .04 to .05 cent lower with New York, 9.08 cents; New Orleans, 9.04 cents; Galveston, 8.85 cents, and Houston at 8.86 cents a pound. Prices follow:

PETROLEUM SUPPLIES DROP.

ANNOUNCE AUTO OPERATED ONLY BY ACCELERATOR

Oldsmobile Eliminates Clutch System.

matic shift into fourth speed. The automatic gear shifting device is practically the same as that used on the Oldsmobile for the last two years. Fourth speed is in reality "over drive" which cuts down engine revolutions.

The combination of the "fluid flywheel" and the automatic gearshift makes possible the same fast acceleration that is attained in the car equipped with the conventional clutch and hand gearshifting levers.

In place of the eliminated clutch and hand gearshift the Oldsmobile has a quadrant and lever situated just above the wheel with four notches on the quadrant. One notch is labeled "reverse," a second "neutral," a third "low speed," and the other "high speed."

How to Start Car.

To start the car this is all that has to be done! Step on the starter. Move the lever on the quadrant from "neutral" to "high speed" and press the accelerator. The car moves forward smoothly and quickly to the speed desired by the driver.

"Low speed" is merely for use when great tractive effort is needed, as in driving through sand or mud.

The hydra-matic drive functions as easily on a hill as on level highway. In fact, it is said to simplify hill driving because the engine can be given enough gasoline to hold the car at a stop without the use of the brake. The various speeds in the transmission enable them to be used in braking on a steep downgrade just as may be done in today's cars. The car equipped with the hydra-matic drive can creep up a hill at a snail's pace, a convenience when one has to follow a truck.

Prevents Motor Stalling.

One advantage of the "liquid flywheel" is that it prevents a motor from stalling. This is due to the fact that there is no metal to metal connection between the engine and the mechanism that applies the power to the wheels. The connection between the engine and the mechanism that turns the wheels being a fluid, there is sufficient slippage when the brakes are applied to prevent an engine stall. Other advantages include easier handling on icy or slippery pavements and elimination of vibration caused by metal connections between the engine and driving mechanism.

The hydra-matic gear shift is being built in a new 3 million dollar plant recently placed in operation by General Motors at Detroit. An exclusive Oldsmobile device for 1940, it will be available at moderate extra cost on all Oldsmobile models.

FOREIGN BONDS RALLY; FEDERAL ISSUES FIRMER

New York, Sept. 23 (AP)—A brisk recovery in Australian, Belgian and other foreign loans depressed by war selling recently took place in a generally steady bond market today.

Australia 4½s rallied 3¼ and Belgian 6s were up 3 points. Belgian 6½s of 1949 jumped 9 points. Rising a point or more were Norway 6s, Milan 6½s, and Belgian 7s.

The rebound accompanied Belgium's denials of reports of dike flooding as protection against invasion, but brokers said the foreign list had declined so far some recovery was not surprising.

U. S. treasury loans were inclined to advance irregularly. Dealers said the market evidently had taken courage on renewed federal reserve support of the government list. Some treasuries moved up for gains ranging to 6-32s.

Transactions totaled $6,072,950, face value, compared with $5,442,600 a week ago.

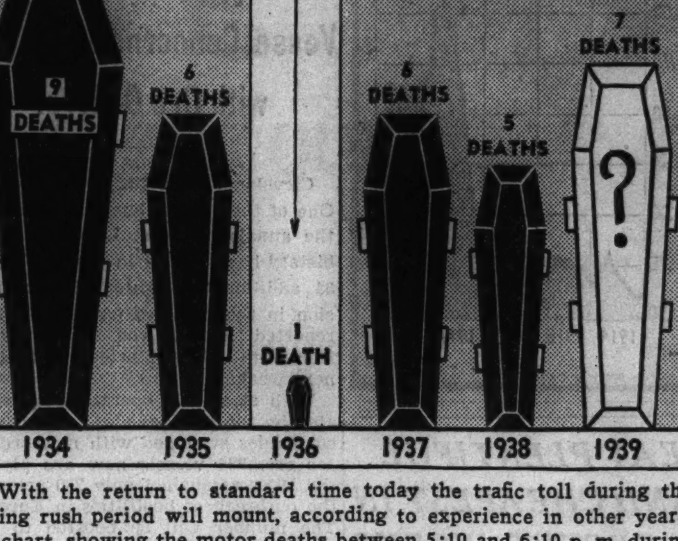
MOTORS—TRAFIC—HIGHWAYS

Massacre Clock Also Moves



With the return to standard time today the trafic toll during the evening rush period will mount, according to experience in other years. The chart, showing the motor deaths between 5:10 and 6:10 p. m. during Octobers of five successive years, illustrates the added hazard of an earlier sunset. In 1936 was the only October with daylight saving time.

ABANDONMENT OF DAYLIGHT TIME TO COST LIVES

Estimate Six Additional Trafic Deaths in October.

BY HAL FOUST.

Chicago's return to standard time this morning will advance this week's evening trafic rush into deadly dusk and darkness. National Safety council statistics show that it is four times as dangerous to walk or to drive without the protection of daylight.

In arbitrarily abandoning daylight saving until next spring motorists and pedestrians are losing 60 minutes of daylight at a period of the day when the loss of good visibility is most costly. In this evening rush the homeward-bound, afoot and awheel, have a heavy accident experience even when this daily shuffle that is part of city life is performed in sunshine. When performed in darkness the risks are multiplied.

Estimate Six Additional Deaths.

The Chicago Motor club yesterday, in a warning to the public of the need for extra caution with the earlier sunset, calculated that turning the clock back an hour probably will cause six additional trafic deaths and 46 additional trafic injuries in the city during October alone. There will be a similar addition to the motor casualties through the winter—an addition to the smaller toll that might be expected with year around daylight saving such as was defeated in a referendum election three years ago.

The motor club's grim calculations are based upon statistics. In October of 1936, the only October in which Chicago enjoyed daylight saving, there were six fewer deaths and 46 fewer injuries between 5:10 p. m. and 6:10 p. m. than during the average for this hour in the Octobers of 1934, 1935, 1937, and 1938 under standard time. This represents a cut, credited to daylight saving, of 81.4 per cent in fatalities and 31 per cent in personal injuries during this rush period.

Light After Sunset Uncertain.

Sunset tomorrow will be at 5:43 o'clock, standard time. Light thereafter will be uncertain. This is early enough to catch a large portion of the evening rush. It won't be as easy as it was under daylight saving last week for the motorist to see the bundle burdened woman shopper crossing the pavement from a street car, nor to see the schoolboy riding from an alley on his unlighted bicycle.

Sunset will continue to be a minute or two earlier each day until it is at 4:19 p. m. from Dec. 3 to 14. Average sunset time next month will be 5:10 p. m. The deadly first hour after sunset, under standard time, will be from 5:10 to 6:10 p. m., whereas under daylight saving it would be from 6:10 to 7:10 p. m., which would be later than the rush trafic period. Most workers, shoppers, and children would be safely home before the first shades of night if the clock's hands were to remain advanced an hour.

Better Illumination Needed.

The Chicago Junior Association of Commerce yesterday cited the earlier sunset as emphasizing the city's need for better electric illumination for accident reduction. The association took no part in the daylight saving issue during the referendum three years ago.

"Pedestrians as well as motorists must use extra caution during this early dusk," said Charles M. Hayes, president of the motor club. "In uncertain light a walker can see an automobile much more easily than he can be seen by the driver. Last October 71 per cent of the trafic fatalities were pedestrians."

VOICE OF TRAFIC

UNENFORCED PARKING SIGN.

Chicago, Sept. 19.—Why is it that no attempt is made to enforce the parking laws on Dearborn street from the river to the north end of Lincoln park? On both sides of this street are either no parking or one hour parking signs, yet cars are parked there twenty-four hours a day.

Dearborn street is one of the few through streets from Lincoln park to the loop and is used by thousands of motorists daily. Enforcement of the law would speed up trafic, but I doubt if anything will be done as this condition has existed for years and the police certainly know it.

J. JOHNSON.

WANTS TRUCK DRIVER'S NAME.

Chicago, Sept. 21.—This letter is addressed to the owners of coal, construction, and hauling companies who had a large dump truck being driven south on the Southwest highway Tuesday morning, Sept. 19, 1939, at 7 o'clock.

This truck was involved in a serious accident at Southwest highway and Harlem avenue at the above hour. After the crash the driver left without waiting to ascertain results. The truck should bear markings on the rear end of a crash, possibly with blue paint scratches.

H. A. P.

POLICE COURTESY ENFORCEABLE.

Chicago, Sept. 22.—I am often amused or moved to pity when reading accounts in this column of motorists who permit themselves and friends to be abused and bullied by the occasional "mean cop."

Never take browbeating or sarcasm from any officer. You don't have to.

Police Commissioner James Allman and his staff are anxious to hear of any instance of brutality to the motorist from any of their force, and your detailed report enables them to weed out the undesirable men thereon.

Many types of officers realize that they are secretly hated and despised, and dubbed informers, by the average motorist, and in order to bolster his ego as well as inspire a sort of self-respect, the misunderstood policeman's natural outlet for suppressed assertion of self is provided in bawling out the helpless motorist, often for no reason other than plain devilment.

Knowing this, you immediately have the edge on any cop who presumes to motion you to the curb, saunters over impressively, places a belligerent elbow in your window, tilts his cap at a threatening angle, tries to stare you down, and begins his lecture.

Take a ticket and cut him short. Offer to drive with him to see his sergeant, and remind him that you intend taking the matter of his attitude to his superior at once. Inform him that on the back of your ticket Mr. Allman states, "Motorists are entitled to receive this ticket without abuse. Report any instance of abuse to me." Don't be afraid to lose a few hours of your time or $2 in the interest of obtaining pleasant correction of any trafic error you may make.

CARL NEUBERT.

LINCOLN PARK BOTTLENECK.

Chicago, Sept. 20.—You had an editorial entitled "Six Mile Bottleneck," and if there ever was a true situation it certainly was put forth in your editorial.

I have occasion to come in from the northwest side three or four times a week, around 5 to 7 o'clock, and I have observed everything you state in your editorial happening every time I have tried to come in, and I can tell you honestly it has taken as long as an hour many times for me to get from Bryn Mawr avenue to 1400 Lake Shore drive. This is particularly true when there is a ball game in Cubs park, and, as you say, while we folks who want to come in from the country to our homes are trying to sneak down a little two lane local highway, scraping fenders, ruining our dispositions and running up our temperatures, two big broad highways are carrying the trafic north with not enough trafic to keep one of them full of cars.

I have often wondered what tourists and strangers to this city of ours think of the conditions you describe in your editorial and what I myself experience three or four nights a week. My guess is they just throw up their hands and say "Never again."

Mrs. Van Kirk and I have occasion to drive to Florida two or three times a year. Atlanta, Ga., is one of the worst cities I ever have attempted to drive through and we drive as much as 150 miles out of our way to keep from driving through Atlanta. So I just wonder how many tourists who have come through this six mile bottleneck on the north side here in Chicago, on their second trip go around the city entirely, just as Mrs. Van Kirk and I do down at Atlanta.

As for the conditions you speak of in Lincoln park—I have suggested to many of my friends that when the park commission gets through with the many crooked roads it has laid out, and the highways and byways, it will be necessary to invite the Indians to come back to Lincoln park and take up permanent residence there in order to provide guides for us folks who want to drive through the park. It should be quite a profitable business for the Indians.

GEO. M. VAN KIRK.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Space devoted to used cars at the 40th annual Chicago automobile show will be 50 per cent larger than at last year's show, Frank H. Yarnall, chairman of the used car committee of the Chicago Automobile Trade association, said yesterday. All the 96 spaces set aside for used cars were taken by representatives of factories, distributors, and dealer groups. Used cars will be moved out as sold and new ones brought in. The show will be held at the International Amphitheater from Nov. 4 to 12.

A feature of all 1940 cars in the Chrysler corporation line—Plymouth, Dodge, De Soto, and Chrysler—will be a new "all-weather air control system" available at moderate extra cost. This new heating-ventilating system is located back of the instrument board. It filters fresh air from the outside, warms it to any desired degree, then distributes it evenly throughout the interior by directional ducts.

Chevrolet's service and mechanical department has started a program designed to give more than 27,000 Chevrolet service mechanics complete knowledge of the 1940 models before they are introduced to the public next month. Ed Hedner, manager of the department, says that through an intensified training course every dealer's service mechanic will be familiar with the 1940 Chevrolet from bumper to bumper before a single unit reaches the public.

More than half the 1939 Cadillacs and La Salles sold last year were without running boards, D. E. Ahrens, general sales manager for Cadillac, states. The popularity of cars without running boards indicates a decided trend toward lower passenger compartments and the elimination of body steps, Ahrens said. Ahrens adds that one peculiarity of the situation is that whereas in one city all cars purchased were without running boards in a city nearby all buyers favored cars with running boards.

Ford recalls that the greatest production in its history occurred on Oct. 31, 1925, when 9,109 model T's rolled off the assembly lines.

Appointment of W. E. Kiesling as manager of the Oldsmobile division of Cadillac in Chicago is announced by V. C. P. Dreiske, branch manager for the Cadillac division of General Motors. Kiesling has been with Cadillac for the last 14 years. He has been high man during the last three years in Olds sales at the South Side branch.

TWO NEW OIL POOLS FOUND IN WHITE COUNTY

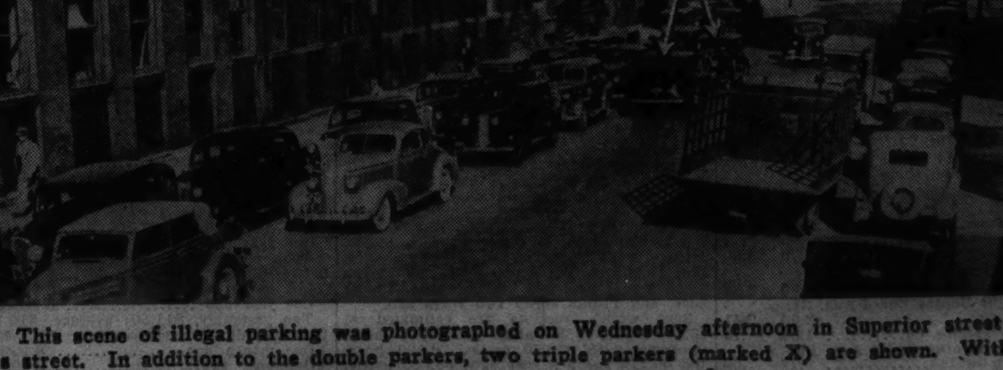
Centralia, Ill., Sept. 23 (AP).—Two new oil pools in White county, the possibility of Devonian lime production in Fayette county, and prospects for Hamilton county's first field fired the enthusiasm of Illinois operators this week.

Assurance of two new pools was given when wells in widely separated areas of White county blew in as gushers. Penn-Illinois No. 1 Ulys Pyle well is estimated as a 800 to 1,000 barrel producer from the McClosky lime.

In the north part of the county, J. W. Carter and Associates No. 1 Warren Johnson well was also testing the McClosky after the well blew in several days ago. Operators believe it will be completed as at least a 400 or 500 barrel producer.

In Fayette county, the Gulf Refining company, after several weeks of drilling, set casing to test Devonian lime saturation at the No. 3 Snall well. The formation, not now productive in the county, was tapped at 3,311 feet. Standard tools were to be moved in within a few days to complete the test.

Double and Triple Parkers Block Street



This scene of illegal parking was photographed on Wednesday afternoon in Superior street near Wells street. In addition to the double parkers, two triple parkers (marked X) are shown. With five parked cars abreast, only one lane of pavement was open for moving trafic.

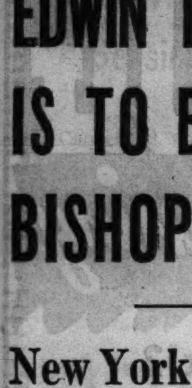
MORGAN PARK WILL HAVE JUBILEE

EDWIN RANDALL IS TO BECOME BISHOP FRIDAY

New York Prelate Is to Preside.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.



The Rev. Dr. Edwin J. Randall.

The old brown stone Church of the Epiphany, 201 South Ashland avenue, will be the first Episcopal cathedral of America on Friday morning when the Rev. Dr. Edwin J. Randall, executive secretary of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago, will be made a bishop by the Most Rev. Henry St. George Tucker of New York, presiding bishop of the American Episcopal church.

Dr. Randall, a senior clergyman of the diocese, was elected suffragan bishop of Chicago on May 31 at St. Luke's procathedral, Evanston. A suffragan bishop is one who assists the head of a diocese and does not have right to succession except by election.

Dr. Randall will be the third suffragan bishop the Chicago diocese has elected. The others were the late Right Reverends William E. Toll and Sheldon M. Griswold. The latter was elected to lead the diocese after serving several years as suffragan.

Friday's service of consecration and ordination will be rich in color and will bring at least 18 bishops from various dioceses of the country. Bishop George Craig Stewart, whom Bishop-Elect Randall will assist, and Bishop Benjamin F. Ivins of Milwaukee will act as co-consecrators with Bishop Tucker. Bishop Ivins will be the consecration preacher.

Others Are to Aid.

Other officers of the service will be Bishop Frank E. Wilson of Eau Claire, Wis., and Bishop Frank A. McElwain of Minnesota, who will present Dr. Randall for consecration. The Rt. Rev. Stephen E. Keeler, bishop coadjutor of Minnesota and former rector of St. Chrysostom's church, will read the litany. Bishops George W. Davenport of Easton, Md., and Arthur W. Moulton of Utah will read the epistle and gospel, respectively.

Other prelates who will attend the service include Bishop Winfred H. Ziegler of Wyoming, former archdeacon of Chicago; Bishop Peter Trimble Rowe of Alaska; Bishop Frederick G. Budlong of Connecticut, former rector of St. Peter's church; Bishop Richard Kirchhoffer of Indianapolis, Ind.; Bishop Harwood Sturdevant of Fond du Lac, Wis.; Bishop Frank W. Creighton of Michigan; Bishop Lewis B. Whittemore of Grand Rapids, Mich.; Bishop William L. Essex of Quincy, and Bishop John C. White of Springfield.

Will Have Special Duties.

Local clergy who will have special duties in the consecration are the Very Rev. Gerald G. Moore of the procathedral in Evanston, and the Rev. F. F. Beckerman of city missions staff, who will be Dr. Randall's attending presbyters. Others are the Rev. Dr. Harold L. Bowen of St. Mark's church, Evanston; the Rev. G. Carlton Story of the Church of the Mediator, Morgan Park; the Reverends Donald W. Blackwell, A. E. Johnstone, and Francis Foley of the Church of the Epiphany, and the Rev. Arthur Willis of St. Paul's church, Kenwood. The Rev. Dr. Harold Holt of Grace church, Oak Park, is chairman of the arrangements committee.

The service will begin at 10:30 o'clock and admission will be by ticket until 10:15 o'clock, when the general public will be admitted. Following the service a luncheon will be held in honor of the new bishop at the Graemere hotel.

Bishop-Elect Randall is an alumnus of Hobart college, Geneva, N. Y., and of Seabury-Western Theological seminary, Evanston. He was ordained in 1896 and became pastor of St. Barnabas' church, 4241 Washington boulevard, which he served until 1921. He has been executive secretary of the diocese since 1922 and has served as superintendent of city missions since 1932.

"The Function of the Church in the Present International Emergency" will be the subject of discussion at the Monthly Union Ministers' meeting, Central Y. M. C. A., 19 South La Salle street. The Rev. Dr. Ernest F. Tittle of the First Methodist church, Evanston, will be the principal speaker. The monthly meetings are held under auspices of the Chicago Church federation.

Academy of Our Lady Club to Give Fall Card Party

The Longwood Mothers club of the Academy of Our Lady will hold its annual fall card party Friday afternoon, Oct. 6, in the school, 95th and Throop streets. Mrs. T. E. Dunn, chairman, will be assisted by Mrs. E. E. Lamb, co-chairman; Mrs. Earl Beall, tickets; Mrs. P. W. Barrett, table prizes; Mrs. T. A. O'Donnell, door prizes; Mrs. L. A. Blaeser, hostess and patroness; Mrs. J. T. Johnson, ad program; Mrs. Leo Cummings, raffle, and Mrs. L. C. Fey, president.

Out to Prove Prowess with Tops

Topnotchers out in Beverly these days are the young men who can spin a mean yarn. No tall tales of prowess will be accepted either. The young men must prove their ability. They will be given a chance this week in the annual top spinning contest held by the Beverly Y. M. C. A. Preliminaries will be conducted beginning tomorrow in public and parochial schoolyards. The finals will take place after school hours Monday, Oct. 2, at 100th street and Longwood drive, under the direction of William Buff, physical instructor at the "Y." Judging from the young men's expression above, there will be much competition and concentration among the contestants. Four of the entrants are (left to right) Jack Reilly, 10869 Prospect avenue, age 7; Billy Griswold, 10862 Prospect avenue, age 7; Dick McMillian, 10958 Church street, age 7, and Jackie Hall, 10801 Prospect avenue, age 8.

SCOUTS TO HAVE WEEK-END OUTING AT CAMP KIWANIS

Order of Arrow Plans Dinner Tomorrow.

Fall and winter activities will open this week for Boy Scouts in the southwest district of the Chicago council with community camporees, banquets and stunt programs.

Twelve troops in the Archer road community are taking part in their first annual community camporee this week-end at Camp Kiwanis in Palos Park near Willow Springs. The camporee opened yesterday, according to Gerard F. Votava Sr., 3645 Damen avenue, assistant district commissioner, to give parents and friends an opportunity to see their sons demonstrate the principles of Scouting which they have learned. The Scouts pitch their own tents and prepare their own food.

Hold Contests Today.

Scoutcraft contests, such as fire building and tent pitching, will be held this morning after church services and breakfast. Community singing will be led at the campfire by Scoutmasters of Archer road troops.

Assisting Mr. Votava in the arrangements are Charles Hollman, president of the Scoutleaders association of Archer road, and Edward Bara, Scoutmaster of Troop 434.

Southwest side Boy Scouts will take part tomorrow evening in the tenth annual banquet of Moqua chapter, Order of the Arrow, national fraternity for honor Boy Scout campers, in Judson court on the University of Chicago campus.

Cornetist to Play.

George Laws, 11322 Normal avenue, chairman of the banquet committee and senior vice chief, will introduce Frank Schreiner, assistant camp director of Camp West, as toastmaster. Royce Monroe, 11008 Vernon avenue, cornetist, will present part of the program.

Southwest side Scouts who will assist in the arrangements for the banquet are Roy Krause, 19 East 101st street; Andrew Morrison, 10919 Vernon avenue; Warren Hansen, 11422 Union avenue; Robert Heisler, 12050 La Salle street, and Leo Laws, 11322 Normal avenue.

The Scout troop and Cub pack sponsored by Thomas Memorial Congregational church, 64th place and Homan avenue, will unite for a "backyard stew" Wednesday evening in the church hall. The program will be made up of novelty acts, community singing and movies. Scouts of Troop 620 will serve.

NEW COMMUNITY IS CREATED BY PAVING OF AREA

Territory Is Developed for Homesites.

A new community will be created out on the southwest side with the paving of the area between 47th and 51st streets, Cicero and Laramie avenues by the city and the WPA. The territory, in the vicinity of the Chicago Municipal airport, is being developed for home sites. The paving will be part of a city wide project.

Seven hundred men will be used on the local subdivision paving project. Work began recently and will be completed by spring, benefiting 1,178 individual owners of property. Having been laid out and dedicated, the district has been divided into streets and alleys.

Will Lay Macadam.

Macadam paving will improve the grading already on the streets. The city will provide stone base and trucks to deliver it, while WPA labor will be used to spread the material. Streets affected by the improvement are Leamington, Le Claire, Lawler, Lavergne, La Porte, Lamon, and La Crosse.

Majority of the lots in the subdivision have been sold and there is a wide distribution of ownership of many years standing. First work will be on streets where construction of homes is now planned. By way of physical development sidewalks are to be constructed in the district. Sewer, water mains, and fire hydrants have been installed.

Aids Towards New Homes.

In commenting upon the work, H. K. Seltzer, Chicago WPA director, said: "The development of virgin territory with improved streets, contributes largely as a basic factor towards new homes. Wherever new streets have been installed and lifted districts out of the mud, great development has followed. More than 15 million dollars has been spent by property owners for buildings where WPA improved streets throughout the city.

"In the 19th ward alone where the WPA program totaled $3,164,000, 397 homes were erected, and 44 home units remodeled. The 13th ward has 323 new and 64 remodeled units of homes consequent of an expenditure of $2,730,000."

D. H. Robeson, assistant supervisor of operations for district 3 in the WPA, will be in charge of the men on the new community paving project.

Peters, 2001 West 103d street, will be chairman of the day. EQUIP VACANT LOTS FOR PLAY IN SOUTH AREA

Volunteers Sought to Lead Work.

Local civic organizations on the south and southwest sides, coöperating with the Chicago recreation commission, will join with others throughout the city this fall and winter in supervising and equipping nearly 200 idle vacant lots as emergency playgrounds.

Curtailment of WPA personnel and lack of funds have necessitated the reduction of playgrounds from the total of 400 last year at this time. Many churches which sponsored playlot activities then are not doing so now because of the withdrawal of WPA workers, who supervised the lots as an extension service by public and private recreational agencies, according to Edward L. Burchard, executive secretary of the commission.

More than 600 vacant lots throughout the city have been used as temporary playlots during the summer under the direction of local groups with assistance from the NYA and WPA, Peter J. Peel, chairman of the extension play space committee of the commission, said.

Volunteers to Direct.

"With the curtailment of WPA personnel, however," he added, "many of the local groups are now recruiting volunteers from the neighborhood to supervise playlots. The NYA will continue to manufacture equipment, providing the necessary materials are supplied by the community."

Most of these 200 playgrounds, which are in addition to the regular parks and playgrounds, will be flooded for ice skating. Other activities planned are touch football, soccer, volleyball, badminton, softball, basketball, boxing, handball, racing, pingpong, dancing, and shuffle board.

Settlement Covering Six.

Assuming one of the leads among south side organizations, the South Side Settlement house, 3201 Wabash avenue, has indicated that it will provide supervision for six playlots in the south central area. Their locations and recreational leaders are 30th street and Calumet avenue, George Warner; 33d street and Prairie avenue, Mr. Warner; 33d place and Rhodes avenue, Eugene Belton; 30th and La Salle streets, Charles Braxton; 3134-46 Ellis avenue, Paul Craft Jr., and 3121-41 Ellis avenue, Mr. Craft.

In addition to a long list of outdoor and indoor activities the six playlots prvide Saturday educational trips, and a Halloween party has been scheduled at the 30th street and Calumet avenue location for all the children who utilize the six. Boy Scouts also will give an Armistice day flag drill.

The Fairview Community club and the Ellis Avenue Community club are responsible for the lots at 3134 and 3121 Ellis avenue, respectively.

Civic Council Aids.

Another local organization, the Hyde Park-Kenwood-Oakland Community council, has listed another six playlots in areas void of public recreational facilities.

Ice skating and touch football are the principal pastimes scheduled for the lots at 5109 Greenwood avenue, 52d street and Ellis avenue, 54th street and Kenwood avenue, and Harris field at 49th street and Dorchester avenue. The recreation committee of the council, headed by J. Gail Strader, and the WPA will furnish supervision.

Initiation of indoor recreational programs in the Church of the Redeemer, 1420 East 56th street, and St. Paul's Episcopal church, 49th street and Dorchester avenue, is planned also.

Activities at the lot at 3810-28 Lake Park avenue have been arranged with the coöperation of the Oakenwald school and parent-teacher association by the Oakland-Kenwood recreation committee of the community council. George W. Fleming heads this committee. The other emergency playground in this section is at 46th street and Ellis avenue.

Limited to Younger Boys.

Erection of a goal post for touch football is contemplated at the playlot at 75th street and Oglesby avenue, which is under the sponsorship of the South Shore Y. M. C. A. Charles A. Rubey is responsible for this lot, which is open from 3 to 6 o'clock week days and from 9 to 5 Saturdays for boys under 14 years old. The restricted space prevents usage by older youths.

A broader program, supervision, and wider use through the assistance of various local agencies are the objectives of the Mount Greenwood Civic association for the emergency playground at 109th street and Albany avenue. The Mount Greenwood P.-T. A. is co-sponsor.

Encouragement and support of these temporary playgrounds should be the aim of all local community organizations, according to George A. Berg, 9111 South Laflin street, who started the project at 91st and Bishop streets. James Enright, 9120 Bishop street, is the supervisor for the program, which includes skating, touch football, and a Halloween party.

Plan Halloween Parties.

The Bridgeport Community council will sponsor a touch football tournament with the best team from each coöperating agency competing, and Halloween parties with each organization in charge of its own program. Supervision for one of their lots, 31st street and Normal avenue, is provided by the Salvation Army settlement.

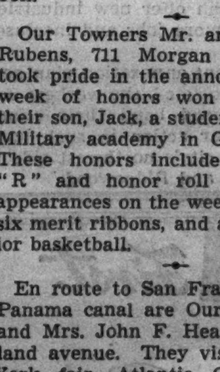
OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

Raymond M. Geddes.

YEARS ago Raymond M. Geddes, 6745 Wabash avenue, developed a habit which has finally evolved into a custom. Employed by the Bowman Dairy company's Englewood branch, he started driving safely, and recently he completed 500,000 miles in a double unit truck without an accident. In recognition of his consistency, James Hayden of the National Safety council decorated Mr. Geddes with his ninth annual no-accident token last week. Mr. Geddes stands at the head of the list for careful driving in the company's fleet of trucks. Truck accidents, incidentally, have decreased 29 per cent in the last 10 years, according to Mr. Hayden.

WHILE an Our Town family attended an international genetics conference in Edinburgh, Scotland, considering the preservation of life, other forces were planning the destruction of life. The "others" won, for the time being, at least. Fifty German and 10 Swiss scientists were recalled because of war scares, and the Our Towners left Southampton, England, aboard the liner John Van Oldenbernevelt. Mr. and Mrs. James C. Plagge, 5539 Kimbark avenue; her mother, Mrs. Morris Miller Wells, 5542 Kimbark avenue, and her three sisters, Corabeth, Jean, and Lois, were scheduled to leave England Sept. 13 on the Queen Mary, but were put aboard the Holland-American ship. They arrived in Chicago last week after a few days in the east. They left the United States June 28 for a three months' trip. While the Plagges studied at the University of Grenoble in Grenoble, France, the Wellses toured France, England, and Scotland.



Private Matthew R. Guzick.

FIGHTING high waves and a cold wind, Private Matthew R. Guzick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Guzick, 5823 South Whipple street, and two other soldiers rescued Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Andrews, Detroit, from Lake St. Claire, near Selfridge Field, Mich., recently. The couple had been stranded in their small fishing craft since 10 o'clock in the morning. The rescuers reached the boat about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, but it was 6:30 o'clock before the Selfridge field crash boat, manned by the three, was able to make the shore with the partially submerged boat in tow. Notified by an aviator that a small boat was in distress, the group had set out and reached the craft after an hour's struggle against stormy waters. They found the life belts had floated away, the gas can was empty, the boat was filling with water and the wind was too high for sails to be of use. Private Guzick has served three years at Selfridge field, and is a member of the base headquarters and 3d air base squadron.

Our Towners Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Rubens, 711 Morgan street, Joliet, took pride in the announcement last week of honors won last term by their son, Jack, a student at Riverside Military academy in Gainesville, Ga. These honors include an academic "R" and honor roll ribbon for 20 appearances on the weekly honor roll, six merit ribbons, and a letter in junior basketball.

En route to San Francisco via the Panama canal are Our Towners Mr. and Mrs. John F. Healy, 5732 Maryland avenue. They visited the New York fair, Atlantic City, Philadelphia, Washington, and Virginia Beach before sailing on the S. S. City of Newport News. They will be in California for a month.

Kalamazoo college, Michigan, is the new alma mater of two Our Towners, George F. Dasher Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. George Dasher, 10859 Longwood drive, and Betsy Morton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Morton, 10415 Longwood drive.

EXCITEMENT prevails at the Joseph E. Brucker home, 4434 Wentworth avenue, as the family awaits the arrival of George Brucker. For he is bringing with him his recent bride, the former Miss Irene Houstin, Philadelphia. After an extended wedding trip, they will return to Philadelphia, where Mr. Brucker is employed.

To Mrs. Helen Stolber, 807 Julia street, Joliet, went the distinction last week of being the first woman to be summoned for jury service in Will county. She will report for duty on Oct. 4. She expressed the hope last week that the job would pay her enough for a new winter coat.

TOWN ON RIDGE PLANS FESTIVAL FOR 25TH YEAR

Annexed to Chicago in April, 1914.

Morgan Park, part of famous Ridge which once overlooked the swampy lowlands of Chicago, will celebrate the silver jubilee of its annexation to the city beginning the latter part of this month and climaxing on Armistice day. Reluctant to become part of Chicago, Morgan Park was annexed on April 17, 1914, after a twenty year fight in which seven annexation elections were held.

The community still retains its suburban attitude, being a single home district and educational center where there are no movie houses, no night clubs, and no taverns.

According to David M. Magee, 10736 Hale avenue, president of the Morgan Park Improvement association and chairman of the jubilee committee, it is expected that every organization in the community bounded by 107th street on the north, the city limits on the south, Vincennes avenue on the east, and Western avenue on the west, will participate in the celebration.

Parade Is Planned.

Tentative plans for the celebration include a parade which will be made up of the Morgan Park Military academy band, the Morgan Park High school band, the Beverly Hills Legion post band, and floats entered by local business men. The business districts at 111th and Monterey avenue, 107th, 115th and Hale avenue will be decorated with flags and bunting by the merchants for the duration of the celebration.

Youth activities have already begun under the chairmanship of William Buff, physical director for the Beverly Y. M. C. A. The first event in the boys' and girls' schedule was a bike race held a week ago yesterday at 111th street and Hoyne avenue.

A special old timers' night is being planned by A. G. Shaver, representative of Morgan Park Military academy, at which the oldest member of the community will be announced.

Other festivities for which arrangements have not yet been completed will take place throughout the month. Highlight of the celebration, however, will be the annual Armistice day program at Memorial boulder, 112th street and Lothair avenue, at which civic, patriotic, and social organizations will take part. Representative among the units will be the surviving members of Wilcox post of the Grand Army of the Republic, Legion posts, Daughters of the American Revolution, Morgan Park Military academy, and Girl and Boy Scout troops.

Named for Pioneer.

Morgan Park was named after Thomas Morgan, who purchased the Ridge district from 91st to 115th streets for $5,450 in 1844. More than three score years ago it attracted William Rainey Harper, the first president of the University of Chicago, who wished to create a college in the village. His Baptist Theological seminary, now the site of Morgan Park Military academy, did become part of the University of Chicago.

The village had 12 presidents from the time it was incorporated in 1882 until it became a part of Chicago in 1914, the first president being William Hopkins and the last Frederick L. Kimmey.

For 20 years many residents campaigned against annexation but were finally won over with the prospects of better police and fire protection, cheaper gas, softer water, more money for schools, and telephone and electrical service.

At present the community boasts of the Morgan Park Military academy and Morgan Park Junior college, both with a combined enrollment of 700 students, and Morgan Park Public High school.

Aiding in Plans.

Prominent in the jubilee festivities will be Mr. Magee, David Herriott, president of the Morgan Park Historical society; Mrs. John J. Bickel, president of the Morgan Park Woman's club; Mrs. Frank H. White Jr., president of Morgan Park High school Parent-Teacher association; Harry K. Meech, president of the Morgan Park Business Men's association; Col. Harry D. Abells, superintendent of Morgan Park Military academy; Mrs. George Phillips of the Esmond P.-T. A., and Mrs. Newell L. Collins of the Clissold P.-T. A.

Others are Mrs. Homer J. Whitcomb, Morgan Park Garden club; George Rees, director of the Morgan Park Gleemen and the Philomel chorus; William S. Kiskaddon, Southwest Kiwanis club; Alfred L. Heino, Beverly Lions club.

Mark Hallett, director of the Euterpean chorus; Miss Ada Z. Winter, secretary of the Morgan Park Business Men's association; Mrs. Leonora Washburne, president of the Morgan Park Business and Professional Women's club, and various church delegates.

Thurlow, Chicago attorney, who has just returned from Danzig, Berlin, Paris, London and other European points, will speak Tuesday night before the congregation of St. John's Episcopal church, Flossmoor, on the causes of the European war. He will show 1,000 feet of motion pictures of war preparation scenes which he was able to bring out of Europe.

Voice of the Southwest Side

Readers of the Metropolitan Section are invited to contribute to this column on matters of neighborhood interest. Readers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Full names and addresses must be given. No manuscripts will be returned. Address Voice of the Southwest Side, The Tribune.

WANTS A NIGHT CLUB.

This letter is directed to the ear of some enterprising restauranteur out on the southwest side. We need a smart yet conservative night club in the territory. We young people are not enthusiastic about having to go down town or to the north side to hear a good orchestra. We would like to have our fun in our own home ground. Our parents would like it better, I know. We'd certainly get home earlier at night. TWENTY.

LITTLE THEATER FAN.

In reading the Metropolitan section especially during the fall and winter months, I see many amateur theatrical notices. It has been my thought for some time that these small groups could be the means of creating one of the most unusual amateur theatrical companies in the country. The productions of the separate clubs could be regarded as preliminaries in a contest to select the best actors and actresses in the district. Judging could be done by an impartial jury. At the end of the season, the young men and women who have been selected as among the finest in the territory could be banded together in one large company. Who knows that such a group might not rival Eva Le Gallienne's Little theater in New York? I know that there is some fine talent among our little groups out here and I would like the southwest side to be the district which would bring Little theater prominence to Chicago. A COACH.

DISLIKES THE ASSOCIATION.

I have noticed that the southeast Chicago council of the Little Business Men's League of America, which to all outward appearances has for its purpose the cause of assisting the owners and employés of small business and boosting recovery, has been holding joint meetings with Townsend clubs. That point has aroused suspicion immediately in my mind. If it is sincere in its objective and efforts, it will certainly steer clear of the Townsend clubs. Recovery will never be obtained if America embraces the Townsend plan and pours out its money like water indiscriminately. Purposes of the two organizations just don't mix, so I hope the officials of the Little Business Men will see the light and divorce their group from the other.

LITTLE BUSINESS MAN.

SEES CHURCH BULWARK.

Several churches recently have celebrated anniversaries of long existence on the south side. It certainly is encouraging in times like these, when the whole world seems to have gone mad, to feel that something permanent and indestructible is still left to offer comfort and hope to the bewildered people. These churches and God's word, for which they stand, have stood as bulwarks through previous wars, panics, and depressions. And only through them will the people of this world ever be able to achieve peace and happiness both here and hereafter. When they realize this and seriously follow the word, then the world will not have to worry about such horrible events as are taking place now.

LIEUT. GEN. FORD DUE TO ADDRESS RESERVE GROUP

Lieut. Gen. Stanley H. Ford, commanding the 6th corps area, will be principal speaker at the first general meeting of the Cook County Reserve Officers at 8 o'clock Thursday evening in the La Salle hotel. Col. Morris Keck, commanding officer of the Illinois military area, and Lieut. Col. Benjamin Getzoff, infantry reserve, president of the department of Illinois Reserve Officers association, also will make short addresses. About 200 reserve officers, including commanding officers of all reserve units, are expected to be present.

PLAN NEW STEPS FOR INCREASE IN JOLIET AREA

Annexation Is Sought to Eastward.

New legal steps for the expansion of the city of Joliet by the annexation of additional territory are to be taken in the next few days.

Petitions now in circulation demand that a referendum be held on the question of changing the present city boundaries to include a large adjoining area on the east side of town which is made up of residential, commercial, and industrial property.

When a sufficient number of names have been affixed to the petition, it will be filed with County Judge Glen L. Cowing. Judge Cowing will then announce a date for the referendum, which may be held some time next month.

Addition Mile Long.

The proposed addition to the city, nearly a mile long and irregular in shape, would extend the city's boundary eastward almost to New Lenox township. This territory contains all of the industries in Joliet township that now lie east of the present city limits.

Because of the heavy population of this strip, its annexation would increase the present population of the city, which has about 43,000 inhabitants, by more than one-third. The estimated population of the area in question is a little less than 15,000.

Work of obtaining the signatures of petitioners is being carried on by members of a general annexation group, known as the "Greater Joliet committee," which is headed by Harold A. Wallace, general manager of the credit bureau of Will county.

Other leaders in the annexation efforts are Col. John E. Morrison, president of the Will County Title company, State Representative Warren L. Wood, and State Senator Richard J. Barr, former mayor of Joliet.

Mayor George T. Jones of Joliet has expressed approval of the annexation plans, and has urged that politics be kept out.

"I want to make it clear," the mayor said, "that while we will welcome the proposed additions to our corporate area, we are in no sense forcing the annexation. Our neighbors will become fellow citizens of Joliet only if a majority declares in favor of the move."

Mayor Jones has predicted that Joliet's population would be 60,000 or more by the end of 1940 should the annexation be successful.

Proponents of annexation have charged that politically inspired foes blocked previous efforts by taking advantage of loopholes in the state laws after forthright opposition failed to win popularity. Some of these holes were plugged by the last session of the state legislature, at the instance of Senator Barr and Assemblyman Wood.

In the past, annexation petitions were voided in some cases because certain of the original signers filed new petitions demanding withdrawal of their names from the documents, thus reducing the total of signatures below the legal minimum.

An amendment to the law halts this procedure by making it impossible for an original signer to withdraw his name unless a majority of the other signers consent to the withdrawal.

Old Law Faulty.

The old law was faulty also in its definition of agricultural property, which cannot legally be annexed by the referendum method, the swifest and most direct in use. Under its terms a back yard with a grapevine in it could be construed as farming land. This situation was also corrected by an amendment to the law.

Annexationists declare that most of the residents in the territory where the proposed referendum is to be held are heartily in favor of coming into corporate Joliet.

Mr. Wallace declared that these new residents would profit by obtaining such advantages as better drinking water, improved sewage and garbage disposal facilities, and police protection.

The city as a whole will profit, Wallace said, by the additional tax revenue and by the enhancer list of attractions it can offer new industries, which mean more jobs and increased city income.

If the present annexation plan goes through as expected, the workers will in all likelihood bend their efforts toward similar action in such large areas on the city's northwest side as Ingalls Park and Ridgewood.

SEE ELEVATED MOTORWAYS AS SAVERS OF LIFE

Trafic Observers Point Out Reasons.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Only one of the 56 fatal accidents that took 59 lives in Chicago last month could have happened on an elevated highway of the advanced type that has been proposed for Chicago. This was agreed by trafic observers last week after they had studied an analysis of fatal trafic mishaps in the city in August.

Because many of these fatalities occurred along the routes of proposed superways for vehicular flow, these observers hold that if Chicago had such elevated highways, the August massacre toll would have been much lower.

The observations are in agreement with the statement carried daily on THE TRIBUNE'S "massacre clock" that "More than 98 per cent of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway."

One Is an Exception.

The one August fatality that could have occurred as readily on an elevated street as on a surface thoroughfare was one in which a motorcycle skidded and spilled its rider, fracturing his skull.

All the others, for one reason or another, could not have happened on a wide superhighway, raised above the grade of cross trafic and having a curb down the center to separate vehicles traveling in opposite directions.

Police customarily classify trafic accidents according to the types of vehicle involved. The 55 preventable accidents last month fall under ten such classifications.

Largest of these is the group headed "automobile-pedestrian." This type claimed 26, or nearly half of the lives lost last month. "Truck-pedestrian" accidents accounted for five other deaths.

These 31 deaths could not have happened on elevated highways, because pedestrian trafic is barred from such thoroughfares, trafic authorities declare.

Would Have Saved Lives.

"Auto-auto" accidents claimed a total of ten lives in August, the records show. A study of police reports shows that in each case the smashup would have been impossible on a one way thoroughfare that did not meet cross trafic at grade.

Seven of these ten accidents involving two automobiles were between machines approaching each other at right angles. Another was between an eastbound automobile and a car that made a left turn into its path. The ninth was a head-on collision and the tenth a smash between a moving car and a parked one.

The two automobile-truck accidents involved vehicles approaching each other on cross streets at the same level. The two automobile-motorcycle smashups were between machines approaching from opposite directions.

All these collisions would be eliminated on an elevated highway, where a high center curbing would prevent opposing lanes of trafic from meeting, and where trafic was forced to leave the main current before changing direction.

Would Bar Bicycles.

The two fatal mishaps involving an automobile and a bicycle and the one involving a truck and bicycle would be impossible on an elevated thoroughfare from which bicycles would be barred.

The five accidents in which automobiles collided with such stationary objects as bridge abutments or electric poles also would be impossible on elevated ways.

In one of the August accidents an automobile went out of control and crashed in the ditch, crushing its driver. The smooth retaining walls of an elevated highway would deflect such cars and prevent off-the-road crashes.

One August fatality was caused by the collision of a truck and street car. This obviously could not occur on an elevated road restricted to motor vehicle trafic.

WOMAN EXPERT OFFERS ADVICE TO GARDENERS

Work Now Means Lovely Flowers in Spring.

Mrs. Mary Long Rogers, landscape architect for the southtown planning commission, whose man's size job it is to see that residents of Englewood become garden conscious, last week issued advice on fall planting for all southwest side floral enthusiasts.

Mrs. Mary Long Rogers.

"Too often," she announced, "the gardener forgets that the lovely gardens of spring are the masterpieces planned during the fall and winter before. Now that September is here, the lazy days for the gardener are over. This is the month to make desired changes. If new beds are to be made, they should be carefully staked and prepared.

"They should be dug deeply and fertilized well with rotted manure, humus, and peat moss. The peat moss will contribute nothing toward their fertility but will add a moisture saving content that is invaluable, particularly during a hot, dry season."

New Beds Needed.

Mrs. Rogers further elaborated that the plants should be set in the new beds as soon as possible in order to have chance during these last days of fall to develop the root growth necessary to withstand the rigors of winter. Plants which are established in fall will not expose their roots to the air should the alternate freezing and thawing of winter cause a tremendous amount of heaving ground.

"Now is also the time," she said, "to plant the narcissus bulbs. Plant a few this year and within the next three years you will find the result to be amazing. The narcissus is a prolific producer of small bulblets which develop without effort into mature bulbs if left undisturbed. When selecting bulbs, however, be sure to choose the varieties which will prolong the blooming season.

"Narcissuses are not the only bulbs which give the garden picture early bloom. Tulips, scillas, crocus, and chianodoxas and many others will reward the gardener well if planted this month."

As a landscape architect, Mrs. Rogers is concerned greatly too with the beauty value of trees—shrubs, evergreens, and vines. This month, she believes, is the time for the transplanting of them as well as perennials and bulbs.

On Tree Planting.

"When the hole is dug for trees or shrubs be sure that it is much larger than the actual expanse of the root system of the plant to be placed inside," she advises." The side of the hole should be vertical or if angled, the top should be larger in circumference than the bottom.

"When the soil is removed a layer of fertilizer should be put in the bottom of the hole and then covered by a layer of soil before the tree, shrub or plant is inserted. This will provide available food for the small roots which reach out for sustenance so quickly. If well covered there will be no danger of burning, as the reaching of the roots is a slow process and the food is acquired gradually.

"When the plant or the tree is set in the hole the soil should be placed around it until the aperture is almost filled. See that the tree or shrub is firm and then water thoroughly until the hole will hold no more. When the water is almost absorbed, fill the hole to the top and smooth.

"In the case of large trees or large shrubs, these should be staked for a year or more in order to hold them firmly in place. This is to prevent the wind from shifting them in their positions and causing cracks to develop through which air may reach roots. Moving large trees and shrubs is not difficult and a maximum of success can be guaranteed if the rules are followed carefully."

19th Ward Democrats Open Annual Charity Campaign

The 19th Ward Democratic organization recently opened its annual charity drive under the direction of Thomas D. Nash, ward committeeman. The drive, the purpose of which is to furnish food, clothing, and carfare for school children, will culminate with a dance Wednesday evening, Oct. 11, in Trianon ballroom, 62d street and Cottage Grove avenue.

There are two sons and one daughter living.

2,000 STUDENTS ENROLL IN NEW GAGE PARK HIGH

Thirty Teachers Shifted from Lindblom.

Approximately 2,000 students are enrolled in the new Gage Park High school, according to William Abrams, recently appointed principal. The personnel is derived principally from Lindblom High school and its branches. Thirty teachers, formerly on the Lindblom staff, have been transferred to the Gage Park faculty.

William Abrams.
[C. E. Packer Photo.]

The largest enrollment, 830 pupils, is in the 9B grade. The school now ranges from 9B to 11B. Special stress will be placed on household arts.

Mr. Abrams is enthusiastic about his position as head of the new school, which he believes "offers the children of the community which it serves one of the best equipped high schools in our city." Mr. Abrams is a product of the Chicago schools.

He entered Chicago Normal college in 1908 and since graduation has been continuously in the service of the Chicago board of education. His first assignment was for probationary service at the Armour elementary school.

In Sept. 1911, he was transferred to the Braille department of the board of education and prepared the materials used in the Braille classes throughout the system. A year later, he entered the elementary manual training department as a teacher and taught the subject in the Farren, Coleman, and Parkman schools until his enlistment in the army in May, 1917.

Upon his return to this country, after a period of military service in the American expeditionary force, he resumed duties as a teacher of manual training in the grade schools.

For two years prior to his transfer to the principalship of Gage Park High school this September, Mr. Abrams was principal of Wendell Phillips High school. He received his bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Chicago.

Married Recently

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick O'Hare, 5603 Justine street, recently announced the marriage of their daughter, Alice Patricia, to Gerald John Mitchell, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Mitchell of Aurora. The ceremony was performed in St. Basil's church and the wedding breakfast was given in the Shoreland hotel, 5454 South Shore drive. The young couple took a honeymoon in the Great Smoky mountains. Miss O'Hare was graduated from Visitation High school and Mr. Mitchell is an alumnus of Loyola university.

ARMOUR EVENING CLASSES START TOMORROW NIGHT

Institute Prepares Also for Flight Course.

Out at Armour Institute of Technology the evening division will open classes tomorrow, according to announcement by President H. T. Heald. Another important event at the institute is the recalling of Melville Baker Wells, recently retired professor of aeronautics and engineering, to the position of director of the civilian pilot training program. Prof. Wells has been away from the institute only for two months.

The civilian pilot training program at Armour will be in coöperation with the Civil Aeronautics authority at Washington, of which Robert C. Hinckley is chairman. Formal contract, designating the number of students to be trained by the institute, will be forwarded from Washington within several days, according to Mr. Heald.

Scope of Night School.

A program of adult education, for the most part in evening classes, has been conducted by the institute since 1902. Five years ago the program was revised to provide a sequence course in engineering and architecture for adults not interested in college credits or degrees, courses for high school graduates who wish to cover the first year or two of a college course in evening classes, and graduate courses to be taken with or without credit for advanced degrees. In general no distinction is made between evening programs and day programs in the graduate division of the institute.

The evening curriculum offers instruction in engineering, architecture, and related fields. Special courses are available to adult students not interested in college credit or degrees and who wish to obtain adequate training in various branches of engineering and architecture. New courses this year include architectural design, electrical engineering economy, public speaking, dynamics of heat engines, therodynamics, experimental engineering, psychology, and social aspects of invention.

16 New Instructors.

In line with the current expansion policy of the institute, 16 new men have been appointed to the evening faculty, augmenting the staffs of the architectural, chemistry, civil engineering, language, mathematics, mechanical, engineering, and social science departments. The new appointees are C. H. Dornbusch, L. K. Hilberseimer, A. L. Mell, T. W. Doub, H. J. McDonald, J. J. Marin, S. I. Hayakawa, R. R. Sanford, A. A. Porges, G. F. Hay, A. T. Lonseth, L. H. Donnell, H. B. Nottage, P. R. Trumpler, E. E. Murphy, and S. W. Taylor.

The new civilian pilot training program at the institute will have as its object the safe and adequate training of a large group of young men as private pilots. The program calls for ground instruction to be given to a designated number of students, while flight instruction will be given by qualified operators on an approved type airport near the college campus.

Prof. Wells will be in direct charge of the program on the campus. He will accept applications from any number of students who have reached their 18th but not their 25th birthday by this month and who have no solo flying experience.

$40 Cost to Student.

The ground school syllabus, totaling a minimum of 72 class hours, will include history of aviation, civil air regulations, navigation, meteorology, parachutes, aircraft and theory of flight, engines, and instruments, as well as radio uses and forms. Each participating student may be charged $40 by the college to provide for the students' medical examinations which will be given by a Civil Aeronautics authority approved flight surgeon, a $3,000 accidental death and dismemberment insurance coverage, and $500 hospitalization and medical reimbursement insurance coverage.

The controled private flying courses will include dual instruction, taxiing, air work, take-offs, landings, spins, simulated forced landings, solo work, advanced solo work, and finally a complete private flight test given by an instructor. Certification of the student upon the successful completion of the final flight test will terminate the instructional procedure from enrollment to relegation as a private pilot.

Bride This Week

Miss Amanda Christine, 420 Fullerton avenue, will become the bride of James E. Pyle, son of Mrs. Alice Pyle, 1945 West Garfield boulevard, on Wednesday. The young couple plan a honeymoon at the Dells in Wisconsin.

CHURCH TO OPEN SILVER JUBILEE SERVICES TODAY

Emmanuel Reformed church, 102d place and State street, will celebrate its silver jubilee this week beginning today at the regular morning service. All former officers will be special guests and four of the six members of the original consistory will be present. The Rev. Harry Hoffs, pastor, will speak on "Emmanuel."

Anniversary meetings will be held on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings of this week. The celebration will close next Sunday evening when Dr. Frederick Zimmerman, secretary of the board of domestic missions for the Reformed Church of America, will be the speaker.

Church work in the north end of Roseland was begun in 1896 by a group from the Sunday school of the Bethany Reformed church and was carried on as a Sunday school until a church was established on Sept. 25, 1914. During the twenty-five years of its existence, Emmanuel church's membership has grown from 47 to 450.

Oh, Nertz!

I don't know anything about this advertising racket . . . dat's for dem guys who run newspapers. But, what the heck is a guy going to do? Simon Legree comes around every month for his rent and no matter what ya tell 'im, he won't stand still for an I. O. U. Nell's Bells! I got a big pile of stuff in to sell at a profit 'n' now I got to sell a big pile of stuff without a profit. Oh me, business is like that today—"just a bed of roses"— but full of thorns!

Now, folks, over in this corner we have 200 cases of Campbell's Tomato Soup. We are tossing it out at 79c doz. Over there is a pile of Prima Gold Medal Canned Beer. Come and get it and you can have it for $1.49 per case. That big pile of stuff you detoured around is American Family Flakes. You pay 19c for the big one and we throw in a 10c one to keep ya happy. That big pile of cases right behind you is one of the best 4-Yr.-Old Kentucky Bourbons on the market. Instead of the Reg. price of 1.98, we put a tag of 1.49 per Qt. on it to clear it out.

You see that stack over there that looks like the Leaning Tower of Pisa? That's Hills Coffee. If ya pop for 47c, we'll pop for a 2-Lb. can. If ya don't pop, the coffee will and we'll need the WPA to get it stacked again.

Yes sir, folks, this is one of the screwiest places you ever were in. No telling what ya can get here unless ya ask for it. A guy just came tearing in here and wanted to know if we had something good for a bellyache. We said sure and gave him a shot of Angostura Bitters. It must have been all right, cause I hear he is still alive. Yep—Super-Service is the Old Bear motto. If we ain't got it, we go out and get it for you. Ya can't stump us!

Here is a special that makes me sad all over to offer you. Lard at 10c per Lb. Just think what the people in Germany would give for a Lb. of pure snow-white American Lard. Speaking about Germany reminds me of a German-American right here in Chicago who makes one of the best Salted Crackers I've tasted. So if ya want to taste 'em, ya can have a big 19c box of Schulze Salted Crackers for 10c each.

Some guy said to me the other day, "Why the heck don't you put out a good Gin and Scotch for a change so I can load up?" Folks, did you know it is almost impossible to get Scotch? They are not shipping it . . . another thing—Gin is one of the first things to go up because Gin is made from grain bought daily. Gin, y'know, is not a product made up and stored like whiskey. But, any-hoo—what I've got I'll put on a Special and we'll see how long it will last. For instance Gordon Gin sells at 1.45 a Fifth. We'll put that on for 1.17 a fifth. Ramshead Gin, 90-proof, that sells around 12.50 for 12 Qts. we will sell for 10.50 in case lots only. Haig & Haig 12-Yr. Old Pinch Bottle . . . Case of 12 fifths at 42.00. S'help me!

HIDDEN RADIATOR REPLACES BULKY HEATING UNIT

Convector No Longer Has Claim on Floor Space.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Our old friend, the radiator, has been passing through some drastic changes of face in the last few years.

In Chicago and other parts of the country where winters are cold, we see new type radiators, under a new name, too, convectors.

Radiator design, in brief has branched out and gone places in three different directions.

There are the new streamlined units which stand out in a room as they have always done, but which have 40 per cent less bulk than their older brethren. And they are also more efficient heating units.

Then there are the radiators, or convectors, which are concealed in the wall. [The name "convector" comes from the fact that they give heat to air circulating around them, instead of by diretc heat rays.] And third, there are the convectors used with a steam or hot water plant which are placed in a recess in the wall, but with a "live front." This throws out radiatn heat, but at the same time there is also a unit which heats by convection.

Steel or Plastic Grill.

Fronts for these in-the-wall convectors can be attractive grilles of steel or plastic. If your grille is steel, you can paint it whatever color you wish. If it is plastic you can obtain it in different shades.

If you are planning any sort of improvement for your radiators this fall, there are numerous things you can do for them, according to their needs—and your own needs and house budget.

You can enclose them in handsome radiator cabinets, well designed cabinets which will increase their heating efficiency and add moisture to your air at the same time.

You can give them coats of light paint or enamel which will add to their good looks.

You can exchange your present [and perhaps bulky] radiators for slimmer, neater models which take less space and give you more heat.

Variety of Convectors.

You can have convectors completely concealed in your walls. Or if the studding width is not sufficient to do a complete task of recessing, you can have a semi-recessed unit, which will project slightly, take up very little room, and still have all the eye appeal of convection heating. For these convectors are manufactured in such a variety of styles and sizes that there are few, if any, walls which cannot accommodate at least a semi-concealed unit and likewise the insulation which must be placed between outside wall and heating unit.

There are weeks of comparatively mild weather ahead and most heating modernizations can be handled by efficient experts in less time than was thought possible, even a few years ago. Another comfortable thing about heating plant renovations and improvements is the fact that the work doesn't need to be done all at once.

Literally thousands of hand fired boilers and furnaces will be converted into automatic heating systems in the next few weeks—systems fueled by stoker, oil, or gas.

New Air Valves Aid.

Likewise numberless radiators will be painted, enclosed, exchanged for newer models or disappear and in their places will appear in-the-wall units.

Furthermore, if you have a steam, vapor, or hot water system, the radiators are not the only part of it which can be modernized or which should be checked over.

For a steam plant there are quick venting air valves which will add to its efficiency.

Honeymoon at Yellowstone

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Sept. 25.

This is the time to plant bulbs, sow hardy annual seed, move perennials, clean up the place, and make the new lawn or repair the old one. Some bulbs should be planted just as soon as they can be obtained. These include the narcissi, the crocus, some lilies, autumn crocus, and others. The average city yard is usually so small that only a few bulbs can be used, but a few clumps of narcissus King Alfred, and some of the poeticus varieties brighten up the garden wonderfully well in early spring. They can be planted among shrubs that are not too dense.

Tuesday, Sept. 26.

It is not too late to repair the old lawn or to make a new one. Fall is the best time to do the work. If there are bare spots in an old lawn, chip up the soil, rake off the clods until the surface is like a seedbed, and sow a good lawn mixture, rather thick. Rake in the seed and they will start very soon. If large spots are bare spade them and work in some plant food before sowing.

Wednesday, Sept. 27.

Bring in all house plants if it has not been done. The window gardener may have the home filled with luxuriant plants. They will respond to ordinary treatment. Much depends on the selection for some plants are able to withstand adverse conditions better than others. Chrysanthemums are among the finest of autumn blooming plants. The caprice varieties are among the earliest; they are low-growing and give an abundance of bloom in several colors.

Thursday, Sept. 28.

Watch for insects on the house plants. The English ivy and palms are often attacked by scales. Keep these down by washing with soapy water or by spraying with recommended sprays. Mealybugs are easily dislodged and kept in check. Aphids can be killed by spraying with tobacco water or nicotine diluted until it has the color of weak tea. Pot up several pots of bulbs for winter flowering. Tulips, hyacinths, crocus, and other kinds must be well rooted before bringing to the light or they will make an abundance of foliage but no well developed flowers.

Friday, Sept. 29.

Do not cut the grass too short at this season. Keep it about one and one-half to three inches long, but not so long that it will mat down from its own weight. Most hardy shrubs can be planted in the fall and much time is gained. Select those of a refined habit for foundation planting, keeping the coarse kinds for the back yard. Study the placing of even a single tree before planting, for a ten foot difference in location may mean success or failure.

Saturday, Sept. 30.

The person who rents his home may enjoy a fine garden by using annuals alone. There are varieties for all situations. Many annuals can be sown in fall, the natural time for sowing. A seed sown in fall is ready to germinate and grow much earlier than when sown in spring.

SEE TELEVISION TORPEDO AS NEW WEAPON OF WAR

Bomb Robot May Replace Suicide Squads.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The "television torpedo" may be introduced as a new instrument of death and destruction in the European war. That was the view expressed by two radio and television experts, Dr. Lee DeForest and U. A. Sanabria when they met here the other day and discussed the rôle of radio in the war.

Dr. DeForest, the noted radio inventor now engaged in television research, and Mr. Sanabria who builds television equipment, described the television torpedo as a flying robot, loaded with bombs, and operated by radio remotely controled. It would be equipped with a television camera making possible observation and aiming over enemy lines from a distance.

Dr. DeForest and Mr. Sanabria asserted that the flying torpedo is completely possible and feasible from an engineering and mechanical standpoint. Its possibilities from a military standpoint are as yet unknown.

Gives West Point a Preview.

Mr. Sanabria recently outlined his hopes for the flying torpedo in a lecture before the officials of the United States Military academy at West Point. The army officers, he said, manifested great interest in the projected implement of war. In Germany considerable experimenting and exploration of the possibilities of the flying torpedo has already been done, Mr. Sanabria told Dr. DeForest. The Zeiss optical works, he said, is coöperating with the army in developing uses of television for military purposes.

The television torpedo, as visioned by Mr. Sanabria, might take the place of suicide squads who go to certain deaths to attain military objectives. The flying torpedoes would, of course, carry no men. They would be entirely operated by radio. They would be aimed through their television eyes, their bombs fired by radio probably from points a dozen or more miles away.

Tiny, but Lots of Them.

As conceived by experimenters the television torpedoes would be very tiny planes, perhaps smaller than any now being produced. They would have inexpensive short-lived motors—perhaps only of three or four hours. They would be built in great numbers. They would carry only small fuel loads. Most of their carrying load would be devoted to bombs and the mechanisms for dropping them plus the television equipment. Casualties, it is expected would be high, but replacement cost would be comparatively low.

Master controled planes, remotely located, could direct whole fleets of flying torpedoes, the inventors agreed. The signals from the flying torpedoes could be "beamed" in a narrow channel so that "smearing" by the enemy from ground stations could be minimized.

Signals could be directed into the plane of flight of the "torpedo" craft. Master controled planes, flying in the same plane, would offer the most effective control, they said. Several master controled planes might be employed so that if one of these was lost, control of the torpedo fleet could still be maintained.

DeForest Doubts Efficiency.

How effective the television torpedoes might become was a matter of conjecture between the two men. Their success would depend on the resourcefulness of the enemy, they said. They would make easy targets. But if enough were employed some might achieve their objectives. If the enemy learned the frequencies used they might possibly themselves take over control of the television torpedoes.

While the television torpedo is entirely possible, Dr. DeForest asserted that he could not yet quite bring himself to believe the time is almost at hand when a war can be fought without pain and horror.

"While I expect phenomenal uses of television in the future," he said, "I don't think that it will ever be possible for soldiers to sit in the comfort and safety of the home and let machines and robots do their fighting for them."

NEW HOLLYWOOD SERIES TO BE AIRED ON W-G-N

The Morning Mail Box, a new program of organ music and Hollywood news, will be started on W-G-N tomorrow. It will be heard daily, Mondays through Saturdays, from 10:05 to 10:15 a. m. Len Salvo will be at the organ. Request numbers from listeners will be played.

The program will be announced by Vern Hansen, who will give news from Hollywood, and will answer listeners' questions about their favorite movie stars.

SPONSOR LIMITS GUEST ARTISTS TO AMERICANS

Henry Weber Opposes Such Restrictions.

A spokesman for Henry Ford has announced that the Sunday Evening hour, returning to WBBM-CBS at 8 tonight, because of the war will confine the list of guest soloists to American artists. The guest artists also are to be asked to use songs composed by Americans as much as possible, it was stated.

First guest is to be Lawrence Tibbett. Others already engaged for successive Sundays are Gladys Swarthout, John Charles Thomas, Grace Moore, and Helen Traubel.

This action has caused a flurry among radio people, particularly musical leaders.

Need for Music Greater.

Henry Weber, musical director of W-G-N, said that the need for good music is greater than ever before in these troubled times.

"People must hear good music to help them keep their balance," he said. "Music takes on increasing significance because it is the only universally understood medium. It is not bound by any language. Thus, it is well suited to promote international goodwill and peace.

"Musicians the world over shouldn't make the mistake that they made before, namely, to play only the compositions of certain nationalities. This defeats the primary purpose of music. All great music, regardless of the nationality or race of the composer, remains great and is destined to play an important part in the rapprochement of nations."

Music's Soothing Effect.

When people are perturbed and troubled, Mr. Weber said, music has a soothing effect on their nervous systems. And this is another reason, he declared, for the increasing use of musical programs on the radio, in theaters, and on the concert stage.

Johnny Green, one of Mutual's musical directors and a composer, expressed the hope that the movement would not spread to include a general antiforeign musical ban.

"A good melody has not nationality," he said. "It belongs to the whole world."

Luther Sees Good Effect.

Frank Luther, always an exponent of native American music, observed:

"The edict will have one good effect. It will show Americans how much really fine musical talent our nation possesses. For years there has been an inclination among certain sets to regard all foreign music as better simply because it is foreign. These folk may learn that fine programs can be made up entirely of home products."

Peter Van Studen expressed the hope that the move might lead to more serious compositions by Americans:

"Our composers of serious music," he said, "are comparatively few though we lead the world in Tin Pan Alley tunes. This new Sunday Evening hour policy may conceivably provide an incentive toward more classic compositions."

Except on Monday!

Of course, if she was wise she'd take the hint. She'd figure that maybe wash day had something to do with it—and she'd send the family laundry to Archer.

She'd figure, too, that she would really be saving money (besides the affection of husband and family) by using Archer Laundry Service. Just think, a big 25-lb. bundle of Pasteurized Damp Wash costs only $1.19 at the Archer Laundry. That's just 8½c a day for a BIG TWO WEEKS' WASH—or only 59c A WEEK!

Any man would tell his wife that's a good business proposition—and it's good home management to take advantage of it. Just figure it out for yourself—and send this week's wash to Archer.

BIBLE STORIES TO BE PORTRAYED IN W-G-N SERIES

Robert W. Fling Writes Dramatic Feature.

"The Living Bible," a new weekly series of programs which will dramatize episodes in the Old and New Testaments, is to be broadcast at 9:45 this morning on W-G-N.

The program will be heard every Sunday morning at the same time through the fall and winter seasons.

Written and directed by Robert W. Fling with the coöperation of the Chicago Bible society and the advice of Catholic and Jewish representatives, the dramas will be enacted by a large cast of outstanding Chicago radio talent, including Kay Campbell, Willard Waterman, Harry Elders, and Jack O'Dell.

The opening program, "Cain and Abel," will be followed in chronological order by many dramatic stories of the Old Testament. These will lead up to a "Life of Christ" series at Christmas time.

"The Living Bible" will be written in modern language, but will preserve the lyrical qualities of the Bible which make it a literary masterpiece as well as a religious work.

The Chicago Bible society, a nonprofit organization supported by Evangelical churches, announced that it was its aim not only to offer "The Living Bible" as a radio feature available to Sunday school classes throughout the country, but as a program of educational interest to those who previously may not have been interested in the Bible.

SHIFT BACK TO STANDARD TIME; ONLY 2 CHANGES

Most programs on W-G-N and the Mutual network will maintain their present time schedules, when the clocks are pushed back one hour starting today. The change is from daylight savings to central standard time.

In other words, a broadcast that is now heard, for instance, at 9 p. m. daylight time, will be heard at 9 p. m. standard time.

Changes are announced for two W-G-N programs, beginning Monday, Sept. 25. Myrna Dee Sargent, who is heard at 9:50 a. m., will broadcast from 9:20 to 9:30 a. m. Wallace and his "Keep Fit to Music" show will be aired from 9:30 to 9:45 a. m., instead of 10 a. m.

'Social Register' Is New Women's Feature on WJJD

A new program for women titled "The Social Register" will be aired over WJJD each week morning at 8 o'clock starting tomorrow. Beverly Gay will be featured as the reporter. Miss Gay will report news of weddings, engagements, birthdays, and social functions of the society season.

How Ocean Liners Brought Americans Back from Europe in Rush from War—Use All Available Space

THREE WIVES CONFESS

A TRUE Spry EXPERIENCE from thousands of letters received by the makers of Spry

"No luck with pie crust until I tried Spry!"

"MARRIED 15 YEARS yet my husband would never risk eating my pies. But the first time I made one with Spry it looked so good that he took a piece and ate every crumb! Said he, 'This is what I call PIE!'"
Mrs. Helen Doorck, Buffalo, N. Y.

"8 YEARS MARRIED but my pies were still a failure until I made them the Spry way. Now they get better all the time! I use Spry for all my other cooking, too. It's grand!"
Mrs. Helen M. Kinghorn, Hasbrouck Heights, N. J.

"THE FIRST TIME HE EVER PRAISED A PIE OF MINE was when I made one with Spry. And I'd been trying in vain with other shortenings for 7 long years. I'm so thankful for Spry!"
Mrs. Harry Hyall, Yonkers, N. Y.

TRY THIS NEW APPLE PIE WITH LUSCIOUS BROWN SUGAR AND NUT TOPPING

APPLE CRUMB PIE

New, different with wonderfully delicious flavor

- 1 unbaked Spry Pie Shell
- 6 apples, sliced thin
- 2 tablespoons granulated sugar
- ½ teaspoon cinnamon
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- ½ cup brown sugar, firmly packed
- ½ cup sifted flour
- 2 tablespoons Spry
- 2 tablespoons butter
- ½ cup nuts, cut

Fill pie shell with sliced apples. Mix granulated sugar, cinnamon and lemon juice. Sprinkle over apples.

Mix brown sugar and flour. Cut in Spry and butter until mixture is like meal. Add nuts and mix. Sprinkle sugar mixture over apples. Bake in hot oven (400° F.) 1 hour. Notice how flaky, tender and crisply nut-brown this Spry undercrust is.

SPRY PIE SHELL

- 1¼ cups sifted all-purpose flour
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 7 tablespoons Spry
- 3 tablespoons cold water

Sift flour and salt together. Add ⅓ of Spry and cut in until mixture is as fine as meal. Takes but a jiffy with this triple-creamed shortening. Add remaining Spry and continue cutting until particles are size of navy bean.

Sprinkle all the water over top of mixture. With a fork, stir water into mixture to form a dough. Roll ⅛-inch thick. Put dough into 9-inch pie tin, making a fluted rim.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES
by MILTON CANIFF
HO, KLANG'S LAST BOMBARDMENT AS REPRISAL FOR THE PRISONERS WE TOOK WAS THE WORST SO FAR!
ALAS, THERE ARE GREATER PROBLEMS! THE MASTER AND THE WHITE GIANT DISAGREE OVER THE TREATMENT OF THE PRISONERS!
LISTEN, BEAUTIFUL, YOU KNOW THE RULES OF WAR, AS THEY ARE LAUGHINGLY CALLED, AS WELL AS I! WE HAVE LITTLE ENOUGH TO EAT— BUT WE STILL DON'T HAVE TO LET THESE PRISONERS STARVE!
THE DRAGON LADY HAS SPOKEN! NOT ONE MORSEL OF OUR PITIFUL RATIONS DO THE DOGS GET!
WE ARE DOOMED! MASTER KLANG SHELLS THIS PLACE—CARING NOT IF WE, TOO, ARE SLAIN! NOW WE STARVE! IT WAS BETTER ON MY POOR, BARREN LAND IN THE NORTH!
WHINING WILL NOT HELP, FOOL! THE WHITE MAN PLEADS FOR US... PERHAPS EVEN YET HE WILL SAVE US —ALTHOUGH I KNOW NOT WHY! STRANGE, THESE WESTERN PEOPLES!
COME ON, HONEY CHILE, ACT YOUR AGE — THESE AREN'T CAVE-MAN TIMES! GIVE THOSE POOR DEVILS THE JUSTICE DUE ANY PRISONER OF WAR!
THE DRAGON LADY NEED NOT LISTEN TO THESE WORDS OF OCCIDENTAL SOFT HEARTEDNESS! INDEED, SHE WILL NOT!
THE PROBLEM SHALL BE SOLVED COMPLETELY! LINE THOSE PRISONERS UP AND SHOOT THEM!
HEY!
NO FURTHER WORDS ARE NECESSARY! DO NOT FORCE ME TO INCLUDE YOU, HANDSOME ONE!
THREE AT A TIME WILL SUFFICE! READY! AIM! FIRE! ...I SAID, FIRE!!
MASTER, FORGIVE US...
FORGIVE YOU? GET INTO LINE AND DIRECT YOUR SQUAD TO FIRE BEFORE I RIDDLE YOUR BONES!
YOU MAY STRIKE ME DOWN, MASTER—BUT THE MEN FEEL AS I DO! YOU WELL KNOW WE WOULD FOLLOW YOU TO CERTAIN DEATH AGAINST THE ARMED ENEMIES OF CHINA...
...BUT WE WERE SIMPLE FARMERS BEFORE THIS WAR —AND WILL BE AGAIN, IF WE LIVE! THE PRISONERS BEFORE US ARE LIKE OURSELVES— MISGUIDED THOUGH THEY MAY HAVE BEEN UNDER KLANG! WHEN THEY BORE ARMS WE COULD FIGHT THEM... BUT AS HELPLESS HUMANS WE CANNOT SHOOT THEM DOWN!

I CRIED WHEN THAT NOTE CAME FROM JACKIE'S TEACHER ...but we've had a happier child ever since!
NEXT DAY
I NEVER IMAGINED A FAULTY DIET COULD BE THE REASON WHY JACKIE IS SO RUN-DOWN!
WE TEACHERS KNOW WHEN A CHILD DOESN'T DO WELL IN SCHOOL HE MAY BE HELPED BY BODY-BUILDING FOODS. WHY DON'T YOU GIVE JACKIE A BOWL OF HOT RALSTON EVERY MORNING?
BUT I'VE TRIED SO MANY CEREALS! HE DOESN'T CARE FOR ANY OF THEM
MOST CHILDREN LOVE RALSTON. IT'S MADE FROM PURE WHOLE WHEAT, NATURALLY ENRICHED WITH EXTRA WHEAT GERM--THE RICHEST NATURAL SOURCE OF PRECIOUS VITAMIN B1 WHICH GROWING CHILDREN NEED EVERY DAY
THE NERVE OF THAT TEACHER! TELLING ME I'M BEING UNFAIR TO JACKIE!
PLEASE DON'T GET UPSET, DEAR! JACKIE HAS HAD ONE COLD AFTER ANOTHER AND HAS MISSED A LOT OF SCHOOL. WHY DON'T YOU TALK TO HIS TEACHER?
THAT AFTERNOON
I HAVE HEARD RALSTON IS A WONDERFUL "BUILD-UP" CEREAL FOR CHILDREN. DOES IT COST ANY MORE?
NO, INDEED, MRS. SIMPSON! IT COSTS ONLY ABOUT 1¢ A SERVING. A PENNY A DAY PER PERSON--THAT'S WHAT I CALL LOW-COST FOOD EVERY FAMILY CAN AFFORD!
MOM, THIS CEREAL SURE TASTES SWELL! TOM MIX SAYS IT GIVES ME REAL COWBOY ENERGY, TOO!
UM-M! IT'S RALSTON! I'VE LIKED IT EVER SINCE I WAS A KID!
I GOT THE SURPRISE OF MY LIFE WHEN I FOUND RALSTON COOKS IN ONLY FIVE MINUTES!
A FEW WEEKS LATER
DEAR, I'M SO PROUD OF JACKIE! HIS REPORT CARD SHOWS TWO A'S AND PERFECT ATTENDANCE!
HE'S GAINING WEIGHT AND LOOKS AS STURDY AS A REGULAR TOM MIX COWBOY!
RALSTON, THE HOT WHEAT CEREAL, IS EVEN BETTER FOR MY FAMILY THAN PURE WHOLE WHEAT! IT CONTAINS TWICE AS MUCH VITAMIN B1, THE PRECIOUS APPETITE VITAMIN EVERYONE NEEDS EVERY DAY!
RALSTON GIVES CHILDREN ALL THESE 5 IMPORTANT BODY-BUILDING FOOD ELEMENTS: (1) APPETITE-BUILDING VITAMIN B1 (2) ENERGY-BUILDING CARBOHYDRATES (3) MUSCLE-BUILDING PROTEINS (4) GROWTH-BUILDING MINERALS (5) VITALITY-BUILDING IRON AND PHOSPHORUS!

DICK TRACY
BUT I'M NOTHING MORE THAN A COMMON MURDERER!
EASY, TESS! DICK'S WORKING ON THIS CASE. HE HASN'T SLEPT SINCE IT HAPPENED.
CHESTER GOULD
BUT WHAT DO YOU MEAN, TRACY?
PROSECUTOR, JOHN LAVIR'S JUGULAR VEIN WAS NOT SEVERED BY THAT PIECE OF GLASS.
I'LL ADMIT THERE WAS ONLY ONE SMALL BLOOD-STAIN ON IT...BUT I STILL SAY—
LAVIR'S NECK HAD TWO GASHES IN IT.
THE GASHES WERE THE SAME DISTANCE APART AS A DOG'S FANGS.
OH, YEAH?
BRING IN THE DOG, MIKE.
YES, SIR.
THE WEAPON THAT MADE THE WOUNDS PASSED THROUGH LAVIR'S NECKTIE — BECAUSE THE TIE HAD FLUTTERED UP AROUND HIS NECK DURING THE SCUFFLE.
NOW LOOK! THESE ARE STEEL JACKETS LAVIR HAD FITTED ONTO HIS DOG'S TEETH. HE WAS CRUEL TO THE ANIMAL. IT HATED ITS MASTER!
LOOK AT THE STEEL JACKETS UNDER THE MICROSCOPE. SEE THOSE RED AND BLACK THREADS CAUGHT ON THE TIGHTENING SCREWS?
GREAT HEAVENS, TRACY, THIS HAS BEEN A TERRIBLE MISTAKE! RELEASE THE POOR KID. I'M COMPELLED TO WITHDRAW ALL CHARGES.
WHAT DID I TELL YOU, TESS! YOUR TROUBLES ARE OVER! I KNEW TRACY WOULD DIG UP THE FACTS.
IF IT'S ALL THE SAME TO YOU, CHIEF, I THINK I'LL BEAT IT. I...I'D RATHER NOT BE HERE WHEN SHE COMES THROUGH... IT'S ....WELL....THINGS ARE A LITTLE STRAINED.
NOW WAIT A MINUTE! YOU'RE ALL—
OH, DICK! DICK!

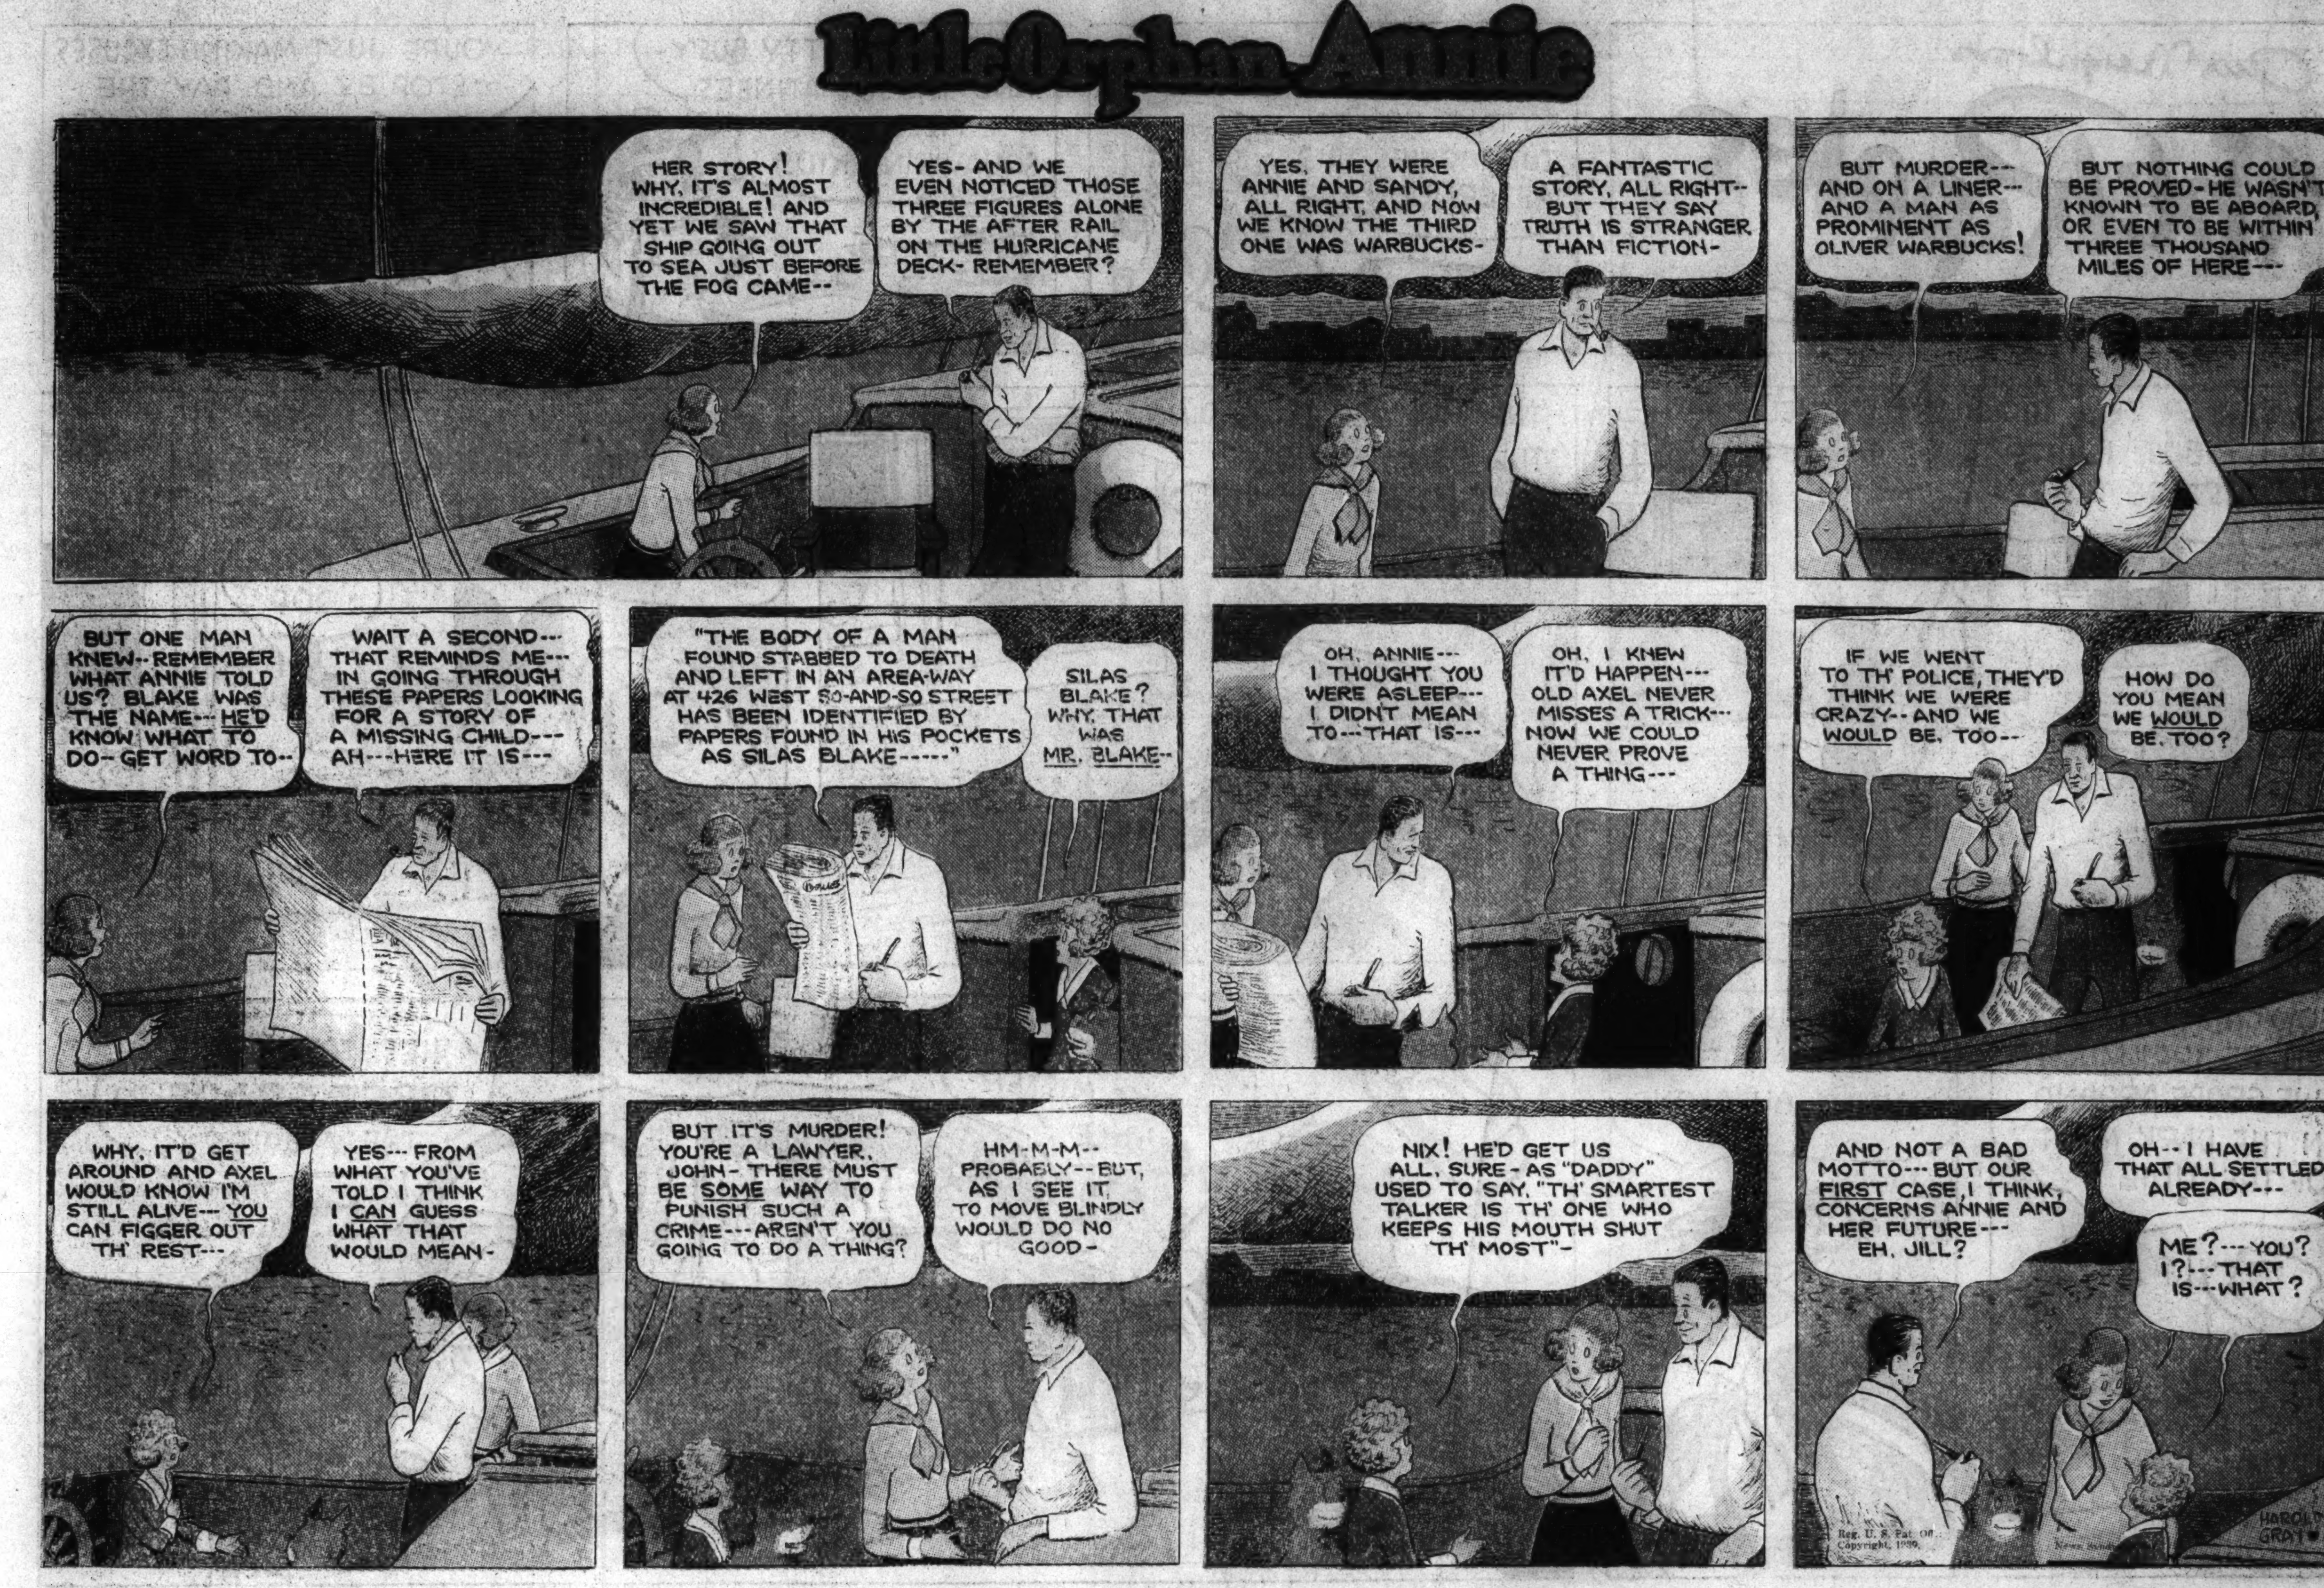
Little Orphan Annie



Little Orphan Annie
HER STORY! WHY, IT'S ALMOST INCREDIBLE! AND YET WE SAW THAT SHIP GOING OUT TO SEA JUST BEFORE THE FOG CAME-- YES- AND WE EVEN NOTICED THOSE THREE FIGURES ALONE BY THE AFTER RAIL ON THE HURRICANE DECK- REMEMBER?
YES, THEY WERE ANNIE AND SANDY, ALL RIGHT, AND NOW WE KNOW THE THIRD ONE WAS WARBUCKS-
A FANTASTIC STORY, ALL RIGHT-- BUT THEY SAY TRUTH IS STRANGER THAN FICTION-
BUT MURDER--- AND ON A LINER--- AND A MAN AS PROMINENT AS OLIVER WARBUCKS!
BUT NOTHING COULD BE PROVED- HE WASN'T KNOWN TO BE ABOARD, OR EVEN TO BE WITHIN THREE THOUSAND MILES OF HERE---
BUT ONE MAN KNEW-- REMEMBER WHAT ANNIE TOLD US? BLAKE WAS THE NAME--- HE'D KNOW WHAT TO DO- GET WORD TO-- WAIT A SECOND--- THAT REMINDS ME--- IN GOING THROUGH THESE PAPERS LOOKING FOR A STORY OF A MISSING CHILD--- AH---HERE IT IS---
"THE BODY OF A MAN FOUND STABBED TO DEATH AND LEFT IN AN AREA-WAY AT 426 WEST SO-AND-SO STREET HAS BEEN IDENTIFIED BY PAPERS FOUND IN HIS POCKETS AS SILAS BLAKE-----" SILAS BLAKE? WHY, THAT WAS MR. BLAKE--
OH, ANNIE--- I THOUGHT YOU WERE ASLEEP--- I DIDN'T MEAN TO---THAT IS---
OH, I KNEW IT'D HAPPEN--- OLD AXEL NEVER MISSES A TRICK--- NOW WE COULD NEVER PROVE A THING---
IF WE WENT TO TH' POLICE, THEY'D THINK WE WERE CRAZY-- AND WE WOULD BE, TOO--
HOW DO YOU MEAN WE WOULD BE, TOO?
WHY, IT'D GET AROUND AND AXEL WOULD KNOW I'M STILL ALIVE--- YOU CAN FIGGER OUT TH' REST---
YES--- FROM WHAT YOU'VE TOLD I THINK I CAN GUESS WHAT THAT WOULD MEAN-
BUT IT'S MURDER! YOU'RE A LAWYER, JOHN- THERE MUST BE SOME WAY TO PUNISH SUCH A CRIME---AREN'T YOU GOING TO DO A THING?
HM-M-M-- PROBABLY--BUT, AS I SEE IT, TO MOVE BLINDLY WOULD DO NO GOOD-
NIX! HE'D GET US ALL, SURE- AS "DADDY" USED TO SAY, "TH' SMARTEST TALKER IS TH' ONE WHO KEEPS HIS MOUTH SHUT TH' MOST"-
AND NOT A BAD MOTTO--- BUT OUR FIRST CASE, I THINK, CONCERNS ANNIE AND HER FUTURE--- EH, JILL?
OH-- I HAVE THAT ALL SETTLED ALREADY---
ME?--- YOU? I?--- THAT IS---WHAT?

I WISH I COULD STAY HOME, MOTHER—MY FACE LOOKS SO AWFUL

Is YOUR girl or boy unhappy and ill at ease because of ADOLESCENT PIMPLES?

Unsightly pimples are a daily despair to countless young people between the ages of 13 and 25. Mothers—read now two reasons for this trouble:

FIRST—During these years the skin is extra sensitive. Sluggish intestines may be a source of irritation and cause pimples.

SECOND—Lack of sufficient Vitamin A in your boy's or girl's diet can also be a cause of unattractive, broken-out skin.

Young people are now finding help for both these conditions by eating the new Fleischmann's High-Vitamin Yeast regularly. The fresh yeast itself helps stimulate slow intestinal action. And 2 cakes a day now provide more than 6000 units of Vitamin A.

Urge your girl or boy with poor skin to start eating 2 cakes of High-Vitamin Yeast every day—one ½ hour before breakfast or lunch, one ½ hour before supper. Many tell of benefits in 30 days or less.

"I just couldn't have good times at parties with a face full of horrid pimples. I was miserable about how I looked. Then I ate Fleischmann's High-Vitamin Yeast. It helped me lots. Now, I'm having good times again."

A GROWING FIELD

Medical lab. or X-ray. The message is addressed to serious, intelligent individuals who are dissatisfied with their present work either because of lack of opportunity or the uninteresting nature of their work. We invite you to investigate the remarkable growth of the laboratory field in part due to new legislation, ie. marriage laws, and, in part, due to development of new tests.

Here you will find no high pressure tactics; we do not even require a contract. Classes are limited in size assuring you of the maximum of attention.

If you are looking for something "soft", please do not apply here. We can offer you a well organized course in a field with plenty of opportunity, but it does mean hard work for you. Classes are day or evening. 9:30 to 4:30 Mon. to Fri., or 6-9 p. m. Mon., Tues., Thurs. Courses $80 to $350. 15% discount for cash. Terms $10 down, $10 week for days—$10 down, $4 week for evenings.

For the last ten years have been occupying this home which I built and never expected to sell, but my family have grown and I no longer have need for this type of home. All rooms unusually large, beveled plate glass windows, beautiful screened porch, 5 bedrooms, 3½ baths; extra shower; basement recreation room; billard room on 3d floor; in fact, just the type of home one would build if he would expect to live in it for a lifetime. 2 blocks from grade school and 3 blocks New Trier High school. Experts Say
Prices to Advance
The largest home builders of New York and Long Island, in a full page advertisement in a leading New York paper, said:
"We believe that prices of today will prove to be the lowest for at least 5 years."
MR. ROY WENZLICK, President of Real Estate Analysts, Inc., in an address at the Edgewater Beach Hotel on Sept. 12, said:
"Building costs advanced 218% in the six year period after the first world war started in 1914, and I see more reasons today why price advances should be as great during the next six years as those that followed the previous war."
OUR ADVICE IS BUY OR BUILD NOW.
We have reason to believe that prices of homes will be 10% to 12% higher by spring. We therefore urge intending home buyers to buy or build now.
IN SCARSDALE.
we offer for sale, at their original prices, seven of the finest homes we have ever built. Two others have sold since last Sunday, and all should be gone within 30 days. Or if you prefer, we will build to your order, either on your own lot or one of ours. We can still give you the benefit of our 1939 contract prices for materials.
We will assume your lease, even if you have just signed a new one.
DIRECTIONS: Drive out Northwest Highway, Rte. 14, to Arlington Heights. Turn left at first Stop-Lite entering town, 5 blocks to Scarsdale.

Day by Day on the Farm

By BOB BECKER

Profits from Drouth.

Sept. 23, 1939.

THERE is one bird on the Du Page county farm that has prospered from drouth and the low water in the farm ponds. This is a tall blue heron. As a result of the hot dry weather and the lack of normal rainfall, the largest pond on the farm is now a small, shallow pool of dirty water. All the small bullheads which still are alive in this pond naturally are crowded into this pool, which is so shallow that it's just what a blue heron would order for a September fishing expedition. When this bird comes to this farm pond it knows that the bullheads have two strikes on them before it goes into action with its long sharp bill.

A Meal of Fish.

When we visited the pond yesterday we made such a quiet approach from behind a screen of willows the heron didn't see us.

The bird had just speared a bullhead about 4 inches long and was working the fish in its bill in such a way as to get the tidbit head first. The heron, holding the small fish crosswise, would lift its head, turn its bill a little and cause the fish to move slightly, bend over to submerge this food in the water, and then shake its head a little more as it slowly turned the bullhead around. Finally it got the fish in just the position it wanted, its throat opened, and down went the fish. As soon as the fish had been swallowed the heron walked out a few feet into the warm, shallow water and began to look for more. Except for one white swan the heron had the pool to itself.

Usually this pond, which has suffered so much from the drouth, is 12 to 18 inches deep and popular with migrating ducks at this time of the year. Teal always visit this water area in September and stay around with the domesticated mallards.

Green Apple Aches.

The plight of the turkeys on the Du Page farm gave everybody a laugh last week. The turkeys developed stomach aches from eating green apples! In the barnyard there are several apple trees which produce a late crop of fruit. The apples are not ripe yet. Until a few days ago the turkeys stayed in this orchard, and one of their favorite tidbits was fresh apples directly from the tree. But the flockmaster noticed that the poults were acting queerly, so he decided to separate the turkeys from their favorite food item. All of the birds were penned up, and then the flockmaster had to administer medicine to the birds to help cure them of their stomach aches.

Due to the lack of water in the ponds on the farm the snow white egrets do not visit the farm any more. But hundreds of these beautiful birds still are in Chicagoland and frequently the water areas which contain food for these birds. Frederick W. Hill of Glencoe, Ill., writes that he has seen 21 at Deer Grove park, west of Wheeling, and 73 in one flock not far from Woodstock, Ill.

REAL ESTATE LOANS, MORTGAGES.

DUE to 3 years' sickness and death in Mr. G.'s family, his mortgage defaulted, taxes accumulated, the house deteriorated. Mr. G. came to us and we got busy! First we got him a brimful 15 yr. loan. Then, because even that was not enough, we got his old mortgage cut down $1,100, ordered the house thoroughly renovated, and paid the taxes. The sun shines again for Mr. G. and we enjoyed "fixing him up."

What has all that got to do with you? Just this: it demonstrates our efficiency, ability, and perseverance. This little story, like other pages from our records, shows real results achieved by persistent, resourceful work and loyal devotion to the client's interest. It is to your advantage to do business with a firm which can and does give you such quality work.

We lend up to 15 years on homes, 2 to 4 flats—frame, stucco, brick—up to 30 years old on large apartment buildings, stores, factories, and garages; [2] place 20 to 25 year 80% to 90% FHA loans at 4½% interest; [3] advance funds to settle estates, heirs' interests, taxes, liens, redeem property under foreclosure; [4] if even our top loan won't do, we will negotiate with Trustees, Mortgagees, Bondholders' committees, Banks to cut down overly large debts to present day levels. Local Loan Gives You the Service You Want

75% of our loans are Signature Only Loans to employed men and women. LOCAL LOAN originated and perfected this service because the great body of employed people—young or old and regardless of occupation—are entitled to a simplified loan method.

Our aim is to offer you whatever plan will enable you to borrow most easily. LOCAL LOAN makes liberal Furniture and Auto Loans, but if you are steadily employed we prefer to make you a loan On Your Signature Only without mortgages or endorsers. You may borrow $25 to $300—

On Your Signature Only

You make your own repayment terms [repaying any time within 20 months] and you are charged only for the actual time you have the money.

When you deal with LOCAL LOAN you borrow without the knowledge of your employer, friends, and relatives.

We cannot tell you all about our service in our advertisement. Just phone one of the following offices. Your loan request can be taken over the telephone so you can obtain the money more quickly when you call in person.

Commonwealth's rate is less on all loans than the maximum rate permitted by law. You do not have to be an "executive" or have a "special" credit standing to qualify for OUR reduced rate. Commonwealth's monthly rate of 2½% on loan balances of $150 or less and only 2% on loan balances above applies to ALL TYPE AND CLASSES OF LOANS. Any one who can make regular payments can qualify; there is no discrimination. EVERYBODY GETS THIS SAME RATE. Of course, persons whose incomes are above average can afford to make larger payments and thus make substantial reductions in their loan cost.

No credit inquiries of friends or relatives. Applications received by personal call, letter, or telephone will receive immediate attention.

Can You Set Aside $1.34 to $1.52 Per Week FOR A $100 LOAN?

That's actually all you need to pay off in full a $100 cash loan, including all charges on a 20 month loan at Personal Finance Company. And we take no wage assignment.

$1.34 a week on the average is all you need to set aside for every $100 borrowed on Personal's new amazing "Special" loan plan of only 1½% per month on the actual balance owed. This plan is for persons with a steady income or salary sufficient to meet payments promptly without undue credit strain and a good credit record. You don't need co-makers, life insurance or bankable securities.

For persons without established credit and employment ratings and who wish to carry a loan larger than 8 to 12% of annual salary or income, Personal offers its "Regular" loan plan. On this plan an average of $1.52 set aside per week takes care of everything on a $100 loan—the charge is based on 3% monthly on unpaid balances of $100 and less, and 2% monthly on unpaid balances over $100.

Loans up to $300 on either plan on your personal note, or with furniture or auto. Co-maker loans are also available on "Regular" plan. Seize this opportunity to save on loan costs. Come in or telephone today.

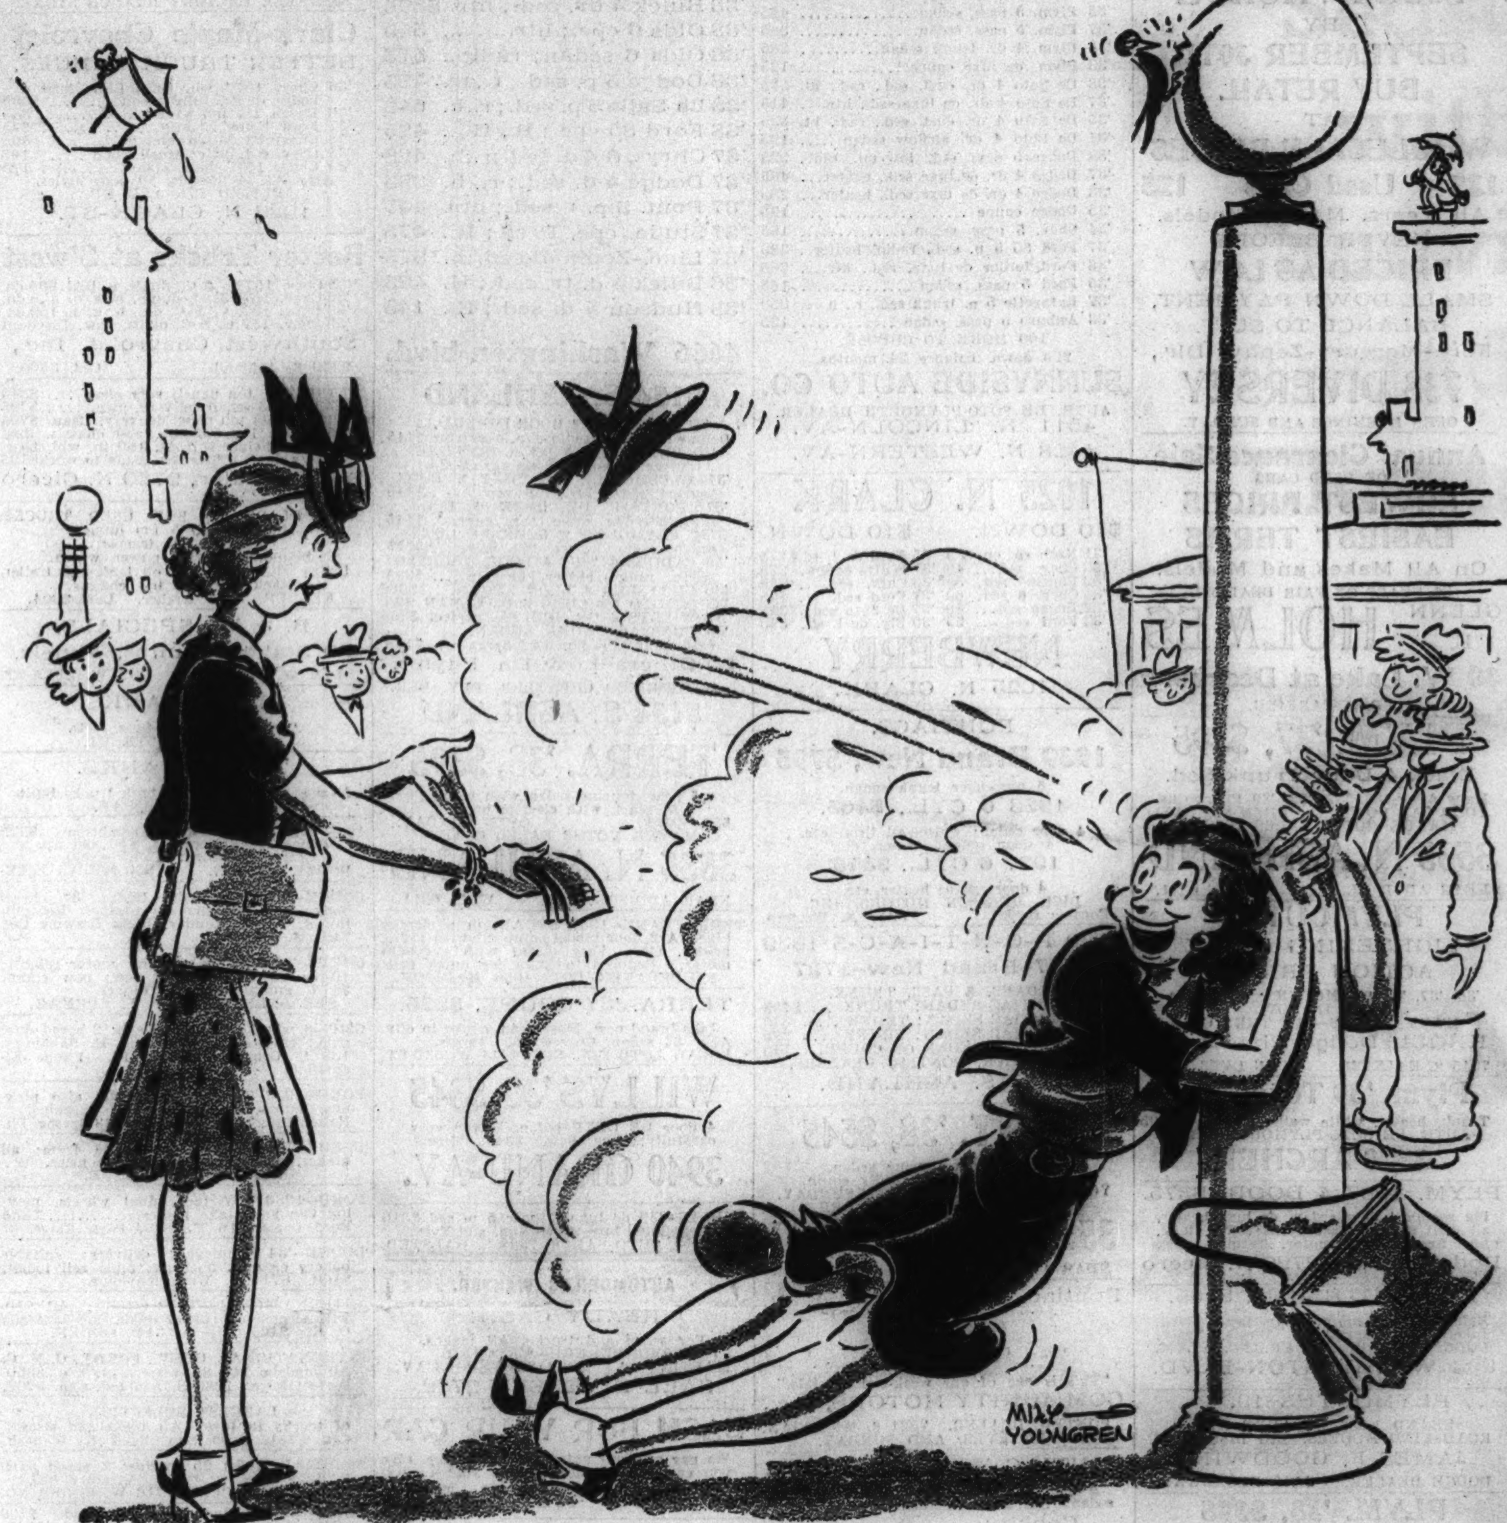
WOW— AINT LIFE SWEET!



WHEN SOMEONE REPAYS A LONG FORGOTTEN LOAN

—and life is on the sunny side also when you find the right apartment.

When you choose your apartment from the largest selection, the one you want is much easier to find.

Experienced apartment hunters know that choice places to live are easier to find when they consult the rental want ads in the Tribune because more apartments are advertised in the Tribune than in all other Chicago newspapers combined.

To simplify your search, the Tribune lists apartments by location in the city and suburbs, and by number of rooms. Thus you can turn at once to lists of apartments which are most likely to offer what you want.

If you want to avoid many weary hours of searching neighborhoods, climbing stairs and asking questions, let the Tribune's rental want ad columns be your guide to the apartment you want.

OWNERS-AGENTS-

Because they get better results, apartment owners and rental agents place more rental want advertising in the Tribune than in all other Chicago newspapers combined. If you want action from Chicago's largest constant audience, call Superior 0100—Want Ad-Viser. If your name is in the phone book, you may charge your Tribune want ad. If you prefer, a Tribune representative will call on you at your request.

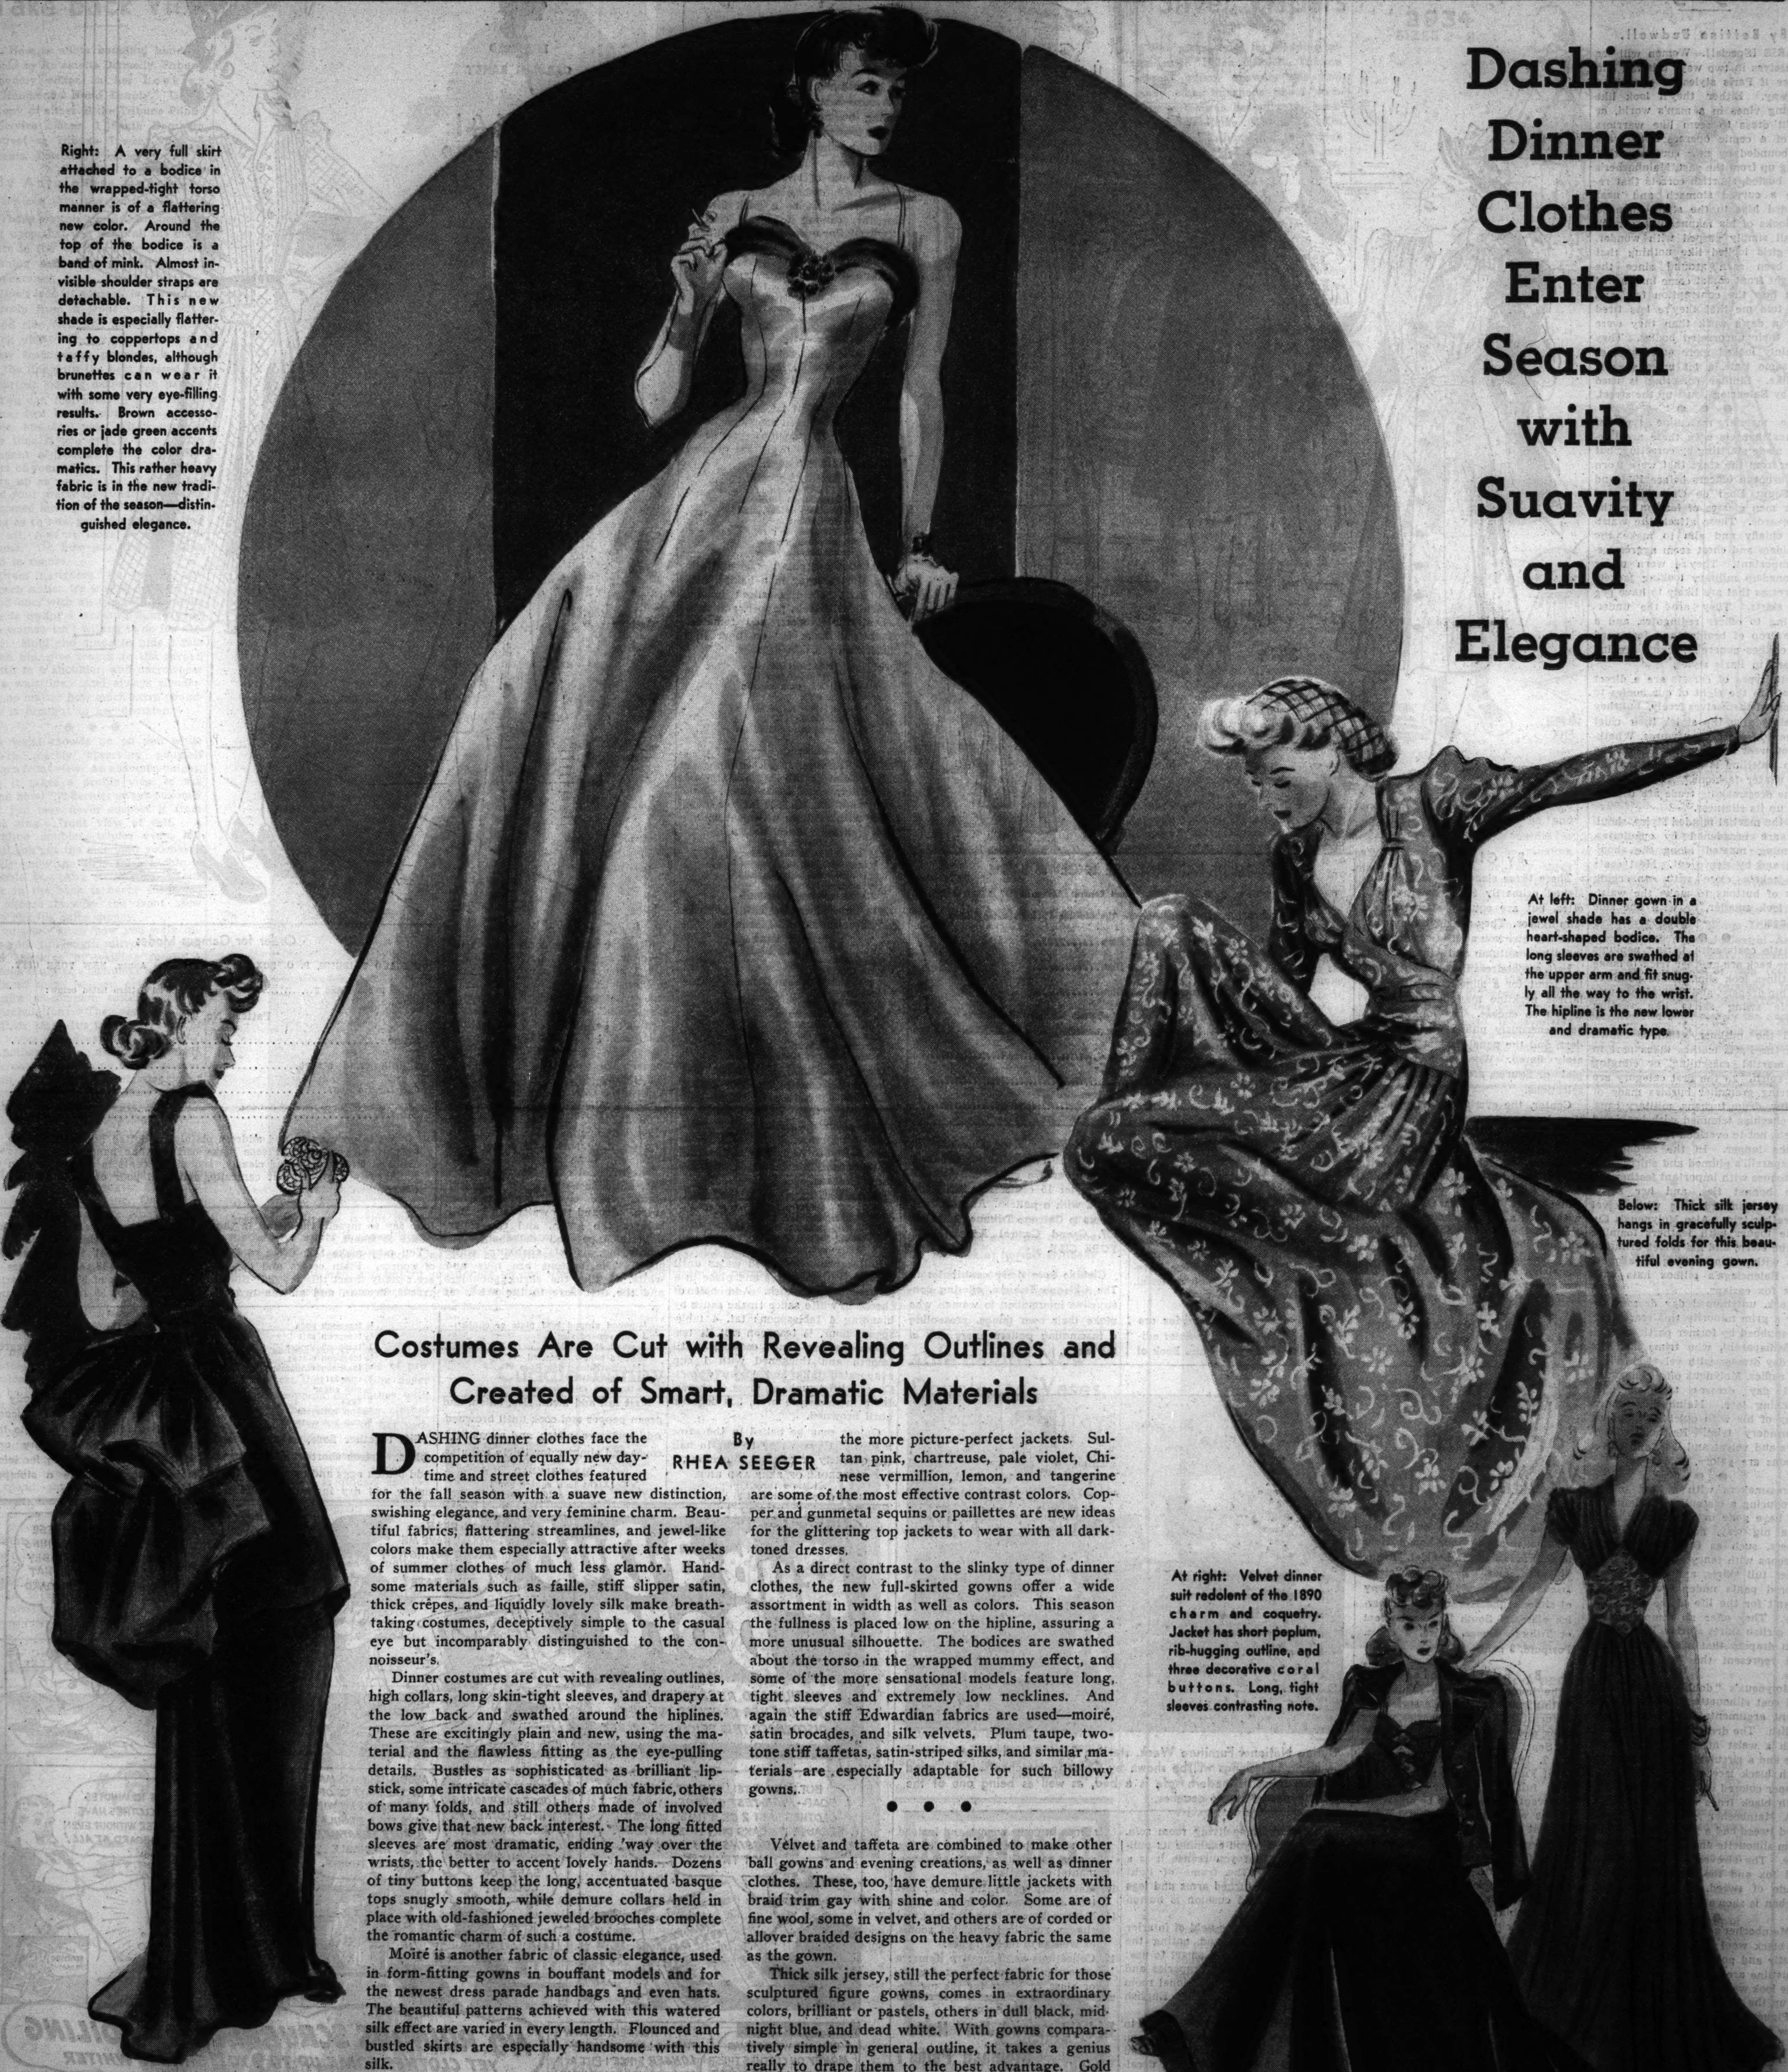
Dashing Dinner Clothes Enter Season with Suavity and Elegance



Right: A very full skirt attached to a bodice in the wrapped-tight torso manner is of a flattering new color. Around the top of the bodice is a band of mink. Almost invisible shoulder straps are detachable. This new shade is especially flattering to coppertops and taffy blondes, although brunettes can wear it with some very eye-filling results. Brown accessories or jade green accents complete the color dramatics. This rather heavy fabric is in the new tradition of the season—distinguished elegance.

At left: Dinner gown in a jewel shade has a double heart-shaped bodice. The long sleeves are swathed at the upper arm and fit snugly all the way to the wrist. The hipline is the new lower and dramatic type.

Below: Thick silk jersey hangs in gracefully sculptured folds for this beautiful evening gown.

At right: Velvet dinner suit redolent of the 1890 charm and coquetry. Jacket has short peplum, rib-hugging outline, and three decorative coral buttons. Long, tight sleeves contrasting note.

Costumes Are Cut with Revealing Outlines and Created of Smart, Dramatic Materials

By RHEA SEEGER

DASHING dinner clothes face the competition of equally new daytime and street clothes featured for the fall season with a suave new distinction, swishing elegance, and very feminine charm. Beautiful fabrics, flattering streamlines, and jewel-like colors make them especially attractive after weeks of summer clothes of much less glamor. Handsome materials such as faille, stiff slipper satin, thick crêpes, and liquidly lovely silk make breathtaking costumes, deceptively simple to the casual eye but incomparably distinguished to the connoisseur's.

Dinner costumes are cut with revealing outlines, high collars, long skin-tight sleeves, and drapery at the low back and swathed around the hiplines. These are excitingly plain and new, using the material and the flawless fitting as the eye-pulling details. Bustles as sophisticated as brilliant lipstick, some intricate cascades of much fabric, others of many folds, and still others made of involved bows give that new back interest. The long fitted sleeves are most dramatic, ending 'way over the wrists, the better to accent lovely hands. Dozens of tiny buttons keep the long, accentuated basque tops snugly smooth, while demure collars held in place with old-fashioned jeweled brooches complete the romantic charm of such a costume.

Moiré is another fabric of classic elegance, used in form-fitting gowns in bouffant models and for the newest dress parade handbags and even hats. The beautiful patterns achieved with this watered silk effect are varied in every length. Flounced and bustled skirts are especially handsome with this silk.

Short, tight, and extremely effective dinner jackets are worn with both the simple sheath type dinner gown and with the long-sleeved models. And decorative dinner jackets are going to be higher fashion than ever before. Stiff silks, brocades, failles, bengalines, moire, satin, and fine imported woolens in all kinds of dark and acid colors make the more picture-perfect jackets. Sultan pink, chartreuse, pale violet, Chinese vermillion, lemon, and tangerine are some of the most effective contrast colors. Copper and gunmetal sequins or paillettes are new ideas for the glittering top jackets to wear with all dark-toned dresses.

As a direct contrast to the slinky type of dinner clothes, the new full-skirted gowns offer a wide assortment in width as well as colors. This season the fullness is placed low on the hipline, assuring a more unusual silhouette. The bodices are swathed about the torso in the wrapped mummy effect, and some of the more sensational models feature long, tight sleeves and extremely low necklines. And again the stiff Edwardian fabrics are used—moiré, satin brocades, and silk velvets. Plum taupe, two-tone stiff taffetas, satin-striped silks, and similar materials are especially adaptable for such billowy gowns.

Velvet and taffeta are combined to make other ball gowns and evening creations, as well as dinner clothes. These, too, have demure little jackets with braid trim gay with shine and color. Some are of fine wool, some in velvet, and others are of corded or allover braided designs on the heavy fabric the same as the gown.

Thick silk jersey, still the perfect fabric for those sculptured figure gowns, comes in extraordinary colors, brilliant or pastels, others in dull black, midnight blue, and dead white. With gowns comparatively simple in general outline, it takes a genius really to drape them to the best advantage. Gold belts and jeweled clips accent the graceful folds of such classically beautiful jerseys. These, too, are topped with brief boleros or jackets for contrast, barbarically jeweled Roman striped silks, gold kidskin, and brilliant fine woolens colorfully beaded or sequined.

Sketched are five significant models, all newly presented for the early shopper looking for something definitly new and different.

Paris Fashions Go Martial and 'Clinging Vine'

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS [Special].—Women will see themselves in two ways this fall and winter if Paris styles go over in a big way. Either they'll look like clinging vines in a man's world, or they'll dress to seem like warriors out of a comic opera. Both ways are bounded by new corseting that is dug up from the past. Mainbocher's high busted, shortish corsets that restore a curved stomach and neat rounded hips to the styles changed the looks of his mannequins so much we all simply gasped with wonder. The girls looked like nothing that has been seen around since the straight front corset came in. I asked them how the contraption felt and they told me that they're less tired after a day's work than they were with their uncorseted bodies. They certainly looked more erect and, at the same time, a lot more sweetly ladylike. Similar corseting is used also by Balenciaga, just up the street.

The martial masculine type of clothes that vie with these are likewise made startling by corseting, but taken from the stays that were worn by European officers before 1914 and by Count Boni de Castellane and other men glasses of fashion on the boulevards. These attack the waistline chiefly and aim to make the shoulders and chest seem aggressively important. They're worn under buttoned-up military looking jackets or dresses that are likely to have peg top skirts. They are the underpinning to officer redingotes, and a large crop of braided and festooned day clothes generally, which are important in Paris styles.

Both types of corsets are a direct menace to the right of our bodies to dispose of themselves freely, but they certainly give the styles their chief element of startling newness. Whether you wear such corsets or not, the wasp waistline is a must in the fall and winter fashions. All the tricks of the dressmaking trade are used to play up its slimness.

In the martial minded styles, shoulders are broadened by epaulettes, trimming massed along the shoulders, and by sleeve cut. Most coats and jackets close with converging lines of buttons to make the waistline look smaller, or with one side closings.

Bustle coats with flaring peplums at the back are another trick to make waistlines look slim, as are panniers and hip drapery, and even Molyneux's double swing skirts like skating skirts.

All the millinery that is shown with the Paris clothes takes part in the martial masculine or clinging vine spirit. In the first category are towering grenadier busbies made of fox fur, drum turbans, military caps, and chechias trimmed with braid and tassels, not to overlook fancy versions of the topper. In the second are Schiaparelli's plumed and shirred velvet toques with important feather and tulle bonnet ties, and her softly crimped brimmed hats with velvet or feather trim. Also Molyneux's Eugénie toques with feathers foaming off the stern, and his velvet brimmed hats with veiling falling all around, and Balenciaga's pillbox hats with huge fox earlaps.

Stark, untrimmed day dresses are only a grim minority this season, being snubbed by former partisans such as Schiaparelli, who trims many of her day dresses with velvet shirrings and ruffles. Molyneux offers charming wool day dresses, trimmed with matching lace. Mainbocher shows many of his with quiet beading and embroidery trim. Balenciaga uses bows and velvet and lace, and velvet ribbons are galore.

Dressmakers with a bent toward introducing a masculine element this fall have gone in for bloomer skirts in a big way, notably Balenciaga. Others, such as Bruyère, put knee breeches with fancy button trimming under full skirts, and others bright colored pants under sports clothes. I can't for the life of me figure out why. They offer no competition to the girlish skirts shirred like lambrequin drapery that are all over Paris and represent the "clinging vine" side.

A Mainbocher suit in henna colored tweed had a jacket with his new stem silhouette and its "waltz" waistline. The sleeves are trimmed with red fox and the flower buttons are made of tweed. A red fox busby turban is shown with this suit.

Mainbocher's bustle coat is made of black wool and the Persian lamb bustle and pointed bands around the waistline are calculated to make that line look waspish. Fur buttons fasten it up the front.

Piguet's peg top skirt dress shows how insidiously the hobble skirt idea is invading the styles. The dress is dark petroleum green wool, with a martial waist that buttons down the front on cloth covered buttons to a tiny waistline. The skirt is draped around the hips and narrows to a really hobbling hem, split at both sides to permit a restricted mincing walk. A beaver hat and muff go with it.

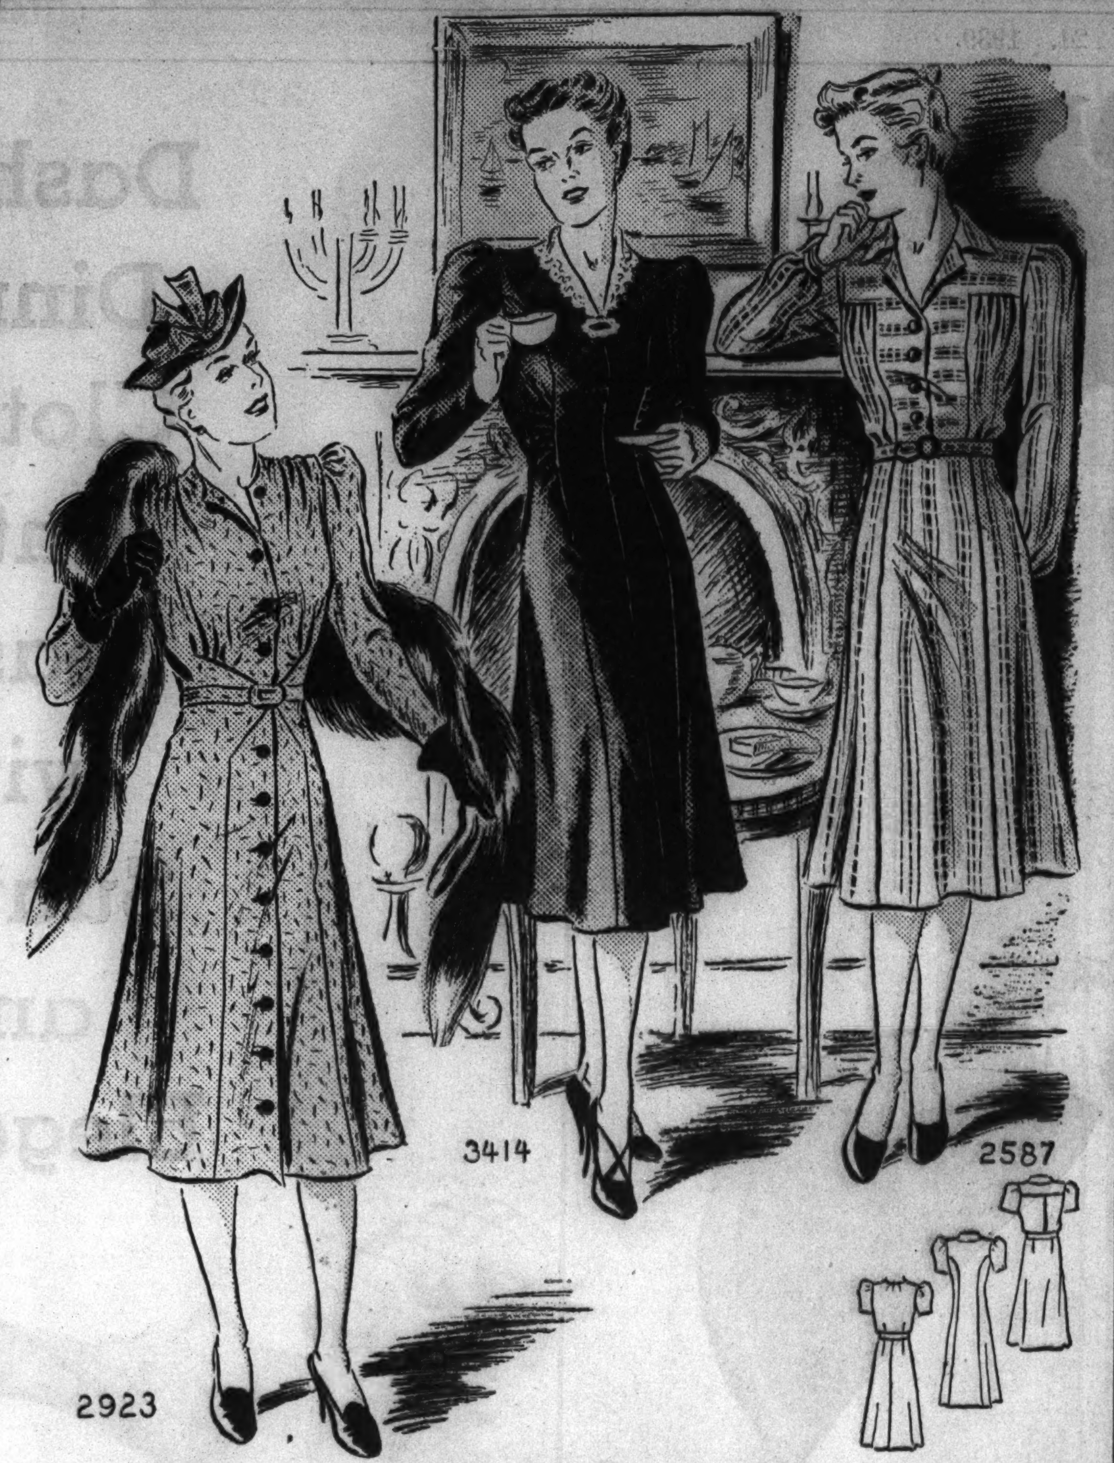
Patterns by Clotilde



By Clotilde.

These three slender models are designed primarily for heavier silhouettes, but are equally attractive on slim figures. They are daytime modes that will give you a lot of service during a busy autumn and winter.

Left, a coat-dress that buttons down the front for a slim effect. The collarless neckline may be worn open if you so choose. The long sleeves are generously puffed at the shoulders, and the paneled skirt is moderately flared. Woolens and crêpes, plain or figured, are the logical fabric selections.

Center, the ever-flattering princess lines brought up to 1939 with a touch of Victorian elegance. The V neckline has a dainty collar and a brooch from your heirloom chest. There's no belt, for paneling fits the frock beautifully to the figure. Crêpe, velvet, jersey, and sheer woolen all make up well, with black a leading choice.

Right, the good old shirtwaist lines at their best, with rever collarline, yoke shoulder, full sleeves, the traditional buttons down the front, and a moderately flared skirt. As illustrated, stripes are an excellent choice. Silks are popular for this model, but if you want it primarily for wear at home, choose some lovely cotton.

Stores Prepare for Furniture Week Displays

Make your bedroom one of the prettiest rooms in your home! How to do it is told in the booklet, "Beautiful Bedrooms," by Edith Weigle, Tribune furniture stylist. Get a copy at either of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower. Price, 2 cents. Postpaid, 3 cents.

By Edith Weigle.

The home furnishings industry is inviting you to a city-wide style show in furniture, rugs, draperies, accessories, and electrical equipment, starting Sept. 30 and continuing through Oct. 7. It's an annual event, this National Furniture week, and it's brimming full of ideas for the woman who wants her home to be smart and astistic as well as comfortable and pleasant to live in.

Chicago merchants are busy with plans for hundreds of special displays. One State street store is devoting sections of four floors to exhibits of new trends in colors, furniture, textiles, china, and glass. Another is designing elaborate window displays plus a series of furnished rooms, while still another is coördinating colors in all its departmentes of home furnishings.

This special furniture week is certainly an ideal time to catch up with the news. Whether you're about to move in a new home, or are refurnishing your apartment, or are merely going to add a new lamp or chair or table, you'll be able to see all that's newest and best on a dress parade especially arranged for you.

Next Sunday THE TRIBUNE will have a page of photographs of furniture in color, showing the beauty of new upholstery textiles and of both light and dark wood finishes. Among the periods now in high style are the following: English regency, French provincial, 18th century English, modern, Victorian, and early American.

During National Furniture Week, starting Sept. 30, all the new trends in home furnishings will be shown by Chicago merchants. This good looking Swedish modern sofa is a bed, as well as being one of the 1939 types of studio couches.

The photograph today shows a stunning new studio couch in the popular Swedish modern style. It looks like any handsome living room sofa. It is only when you examine its pull-out features that you realize it is a bed, as well. The frame of light wood has plain turned arms and legs and the long seat cushion is button tufted.

After surveying the field of interior decoration for fall and noting the high lights, we find it's smart to use:

1. Modern fabrics for draperies and upholsteries in a traditional room such as an 18th century English or Victorian interior.
2. Both dark and light finishes in furniture in an 18th century room.
3. A few Hitchcock side chairs and rockers in black with gold decalcomania decorations in an early American maple room.
4. Grayed subtle colors on walls, in draperies, upholsteries, and rugs.
5. Quilted chintz for bedspreads and headboards of beds, and for drapery valances, the draperies being of the plain chintz.
6. Glass-woven fabrics for draperies, bedspreads, etc.
7. Leather for upholstery and for tops of desks and tables.
8. Breakfront cabinets in a traditional room.
9. Photo murals of your favorite scenes in game rooms, and instead of scenic paper in the dining room, as well as for an overmantel decoration.
10. Marbleized paper for dados; tortoise shell paper for lamp shades.
11. Modern tone-on-tone, textured, and shaggy rugs in traditional rooms, as well as in modern ones.
12. Collections as decorative items: a collection of old fans, or figures, or glass, or lustre for the mantle.

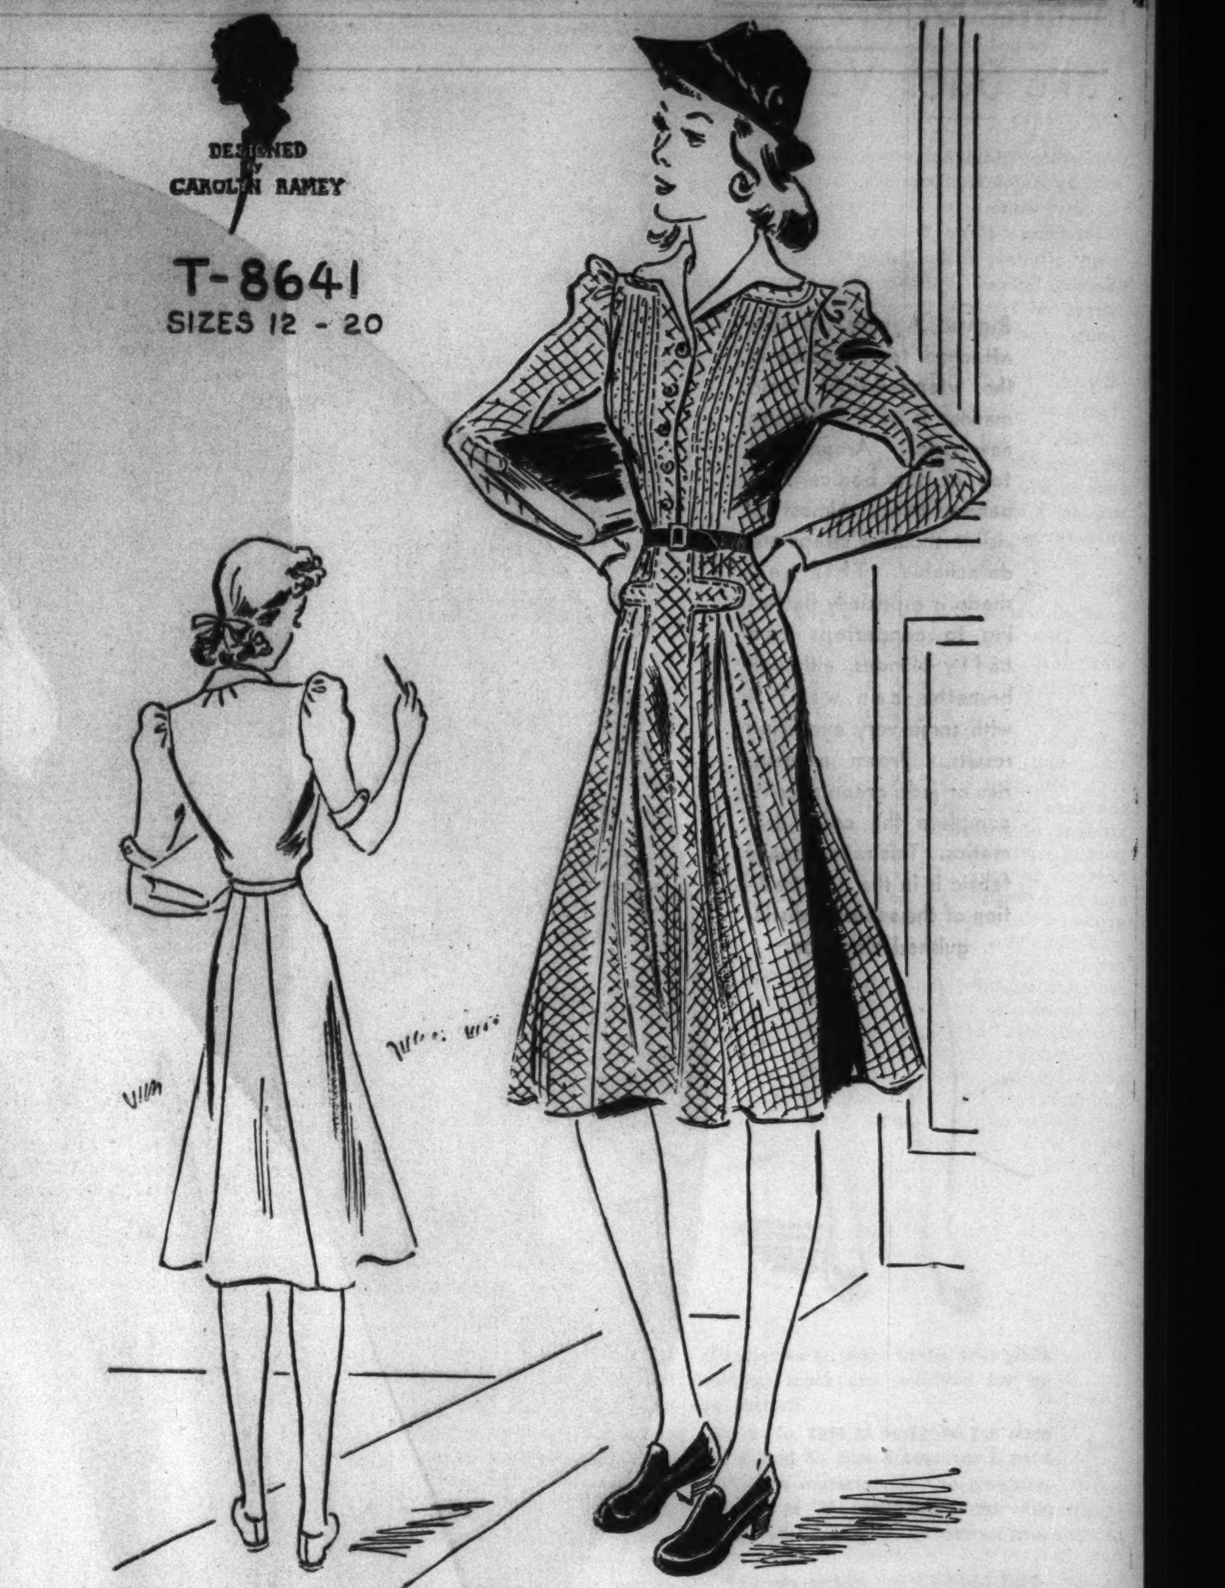
Campus Modes by a Co-ed



By Carolyn Ramey.

Although I am a conscientious believer in budgets, and follow one myself, I now and then browse around in the smart shops to get ideas at no cost whatever. This isn't fashion plagiarism. Your little Carolyn wouldn't be guilty of stealing, but she does keep her eye open for trends and significant details of the mode. There's no patent on ideas, you know, so I "cop" them right and left. One of the outstanding things I've noticed in college girl fashions this year is tailored simplicity tempered with femininity. I've designed this dress along those lines, and hope you like it.

The material of my own frock is a soft, drapable sheer woolen in a tiny check. The colors are blue and green. Around the waist is a leather belt of the green, and the collar, lingerie type and detachable for laundering, is of spanking white piqué. The buttons are blue and white. I like the shrug shoulders and the deft flare to the skirt. If I do say so myself, the detail in the bodice is smart.

You may make this dress of silk, of course. Plain colors and checks are equally smart this season. Blues, greens, browns, and all the myriad shades of lavender and purple are topnotch fashion this season.

Style No. T-8641 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 16 requires 4 yards of 39 inch material, with ⅝ yard of 39 inch contrasting.

When Looking in the Mirror Take Back View

How to attain beautiful hands is told by Antoinette Donnelly, Tribune beauty editor, in her booklet, "Handmade Hand Beauty." Get a copy at either of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower. Price, 5 cents. Postpaid, 7 cents.

By Antoinette Donnelly.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Today we think something has been hit upon that will make all the difference in the world in your future costuming and, consequently, in your appearance.

Don't look at yourself in the mirror merely from a front view! Get a good side view and an equally good back view! If you pass this three-view test, you're promised a place in the line with the best dressed and smartest looking darlings on parade.

You can fool yourself most of the time, fool others not much of the time, and fool your critics none of the time if you qualify as a mirror student of yourself using only that part of your anatomy from the shoulders up as your guide. Your throat and your pretty face under your well-groomed locks give you no whit of an idea as to how your frock hangs fore or aft, how it looks in action, in repose. Or, how you look in action and in repose.

Dress designers, we believe, are superb critics for women to heed. A good one, with an exacting clientèle, has to do for a woman's figure what the woman isn't willing to do for herself: Mold and drape to hide a fullsome hip, give length to the throat, width to a shoulder, and narrowness to a waistline. And always slenderize, no matter how much extra poundage is brought to her doorstep.

A waist crowds up on you while you're merely observing yourself from a front view. An abdomen bulges, but it takes a profile view to say "and how!" A dernier sways buxomly but you may never suspect it from that single front view of self. A chinline doubles, triples even, but until you get the side view you never really know the dirty work a chin is capable of. And so it goes. Your hair in the back is never suspected of offense because the front view tells you it's quite snappy.

You don't know how you walk unless your full-length mirror tells you. And speaking of walking recalls a famous sculptor's comment about the walk of many women over 30 who acquire a common tottery way of perambulation: "They never straighten their legs. It's the tilt-forward of the knees that does it."

Another walking note gleaned from observation, something few of us ever think about except professionals of stage and screen who know all the tricks:

There should be a relation between the length of the step taken and the height of the heel and the skirt length. If you wear a short skirt and a low heel, a long step should be adopted. With an evening length skirt and high heel, you float along. One of the humorous dancing floor sights today is the young miss with flowing hair and long skirt stomping along like a grenadier.

An extremely common figure fault, which, again, we probably pay little attention to, but had better from now on, is the difference in the height of our two shoulders. This is due to our universal habit of carrying our handbags under one arm, with that shoulder tensed and higher. The bag can be held just as securely with the shoulder dropped in place and without tension. This tensed and lifted shoulder creates a bad dress or coat wrinkle from the shoulder to the opposite hip in back.

For the time the home woman has to spend shopping, in comparison with the busy business woman's, the former doesn't show to the advantage she should. That's because she formulates no plan. A woman should have a definite idea of what her wardrobe is to consist of before she puts on her hat to go shopping And she should be agreeable but FIRM with the salesperson who tries to dissuade her. She should not try on a lot of models at once, as the sense of proportion is lost that way. She never should go shopping for clothes with a friend. The friend sees clothes from the point of view of her own prides and prejudices.

A dancing frock should have a flat front and back interest. A dash of color at the back is quickly spotted from the stag line. A restaurant frock should have a plain back, with interest in front.

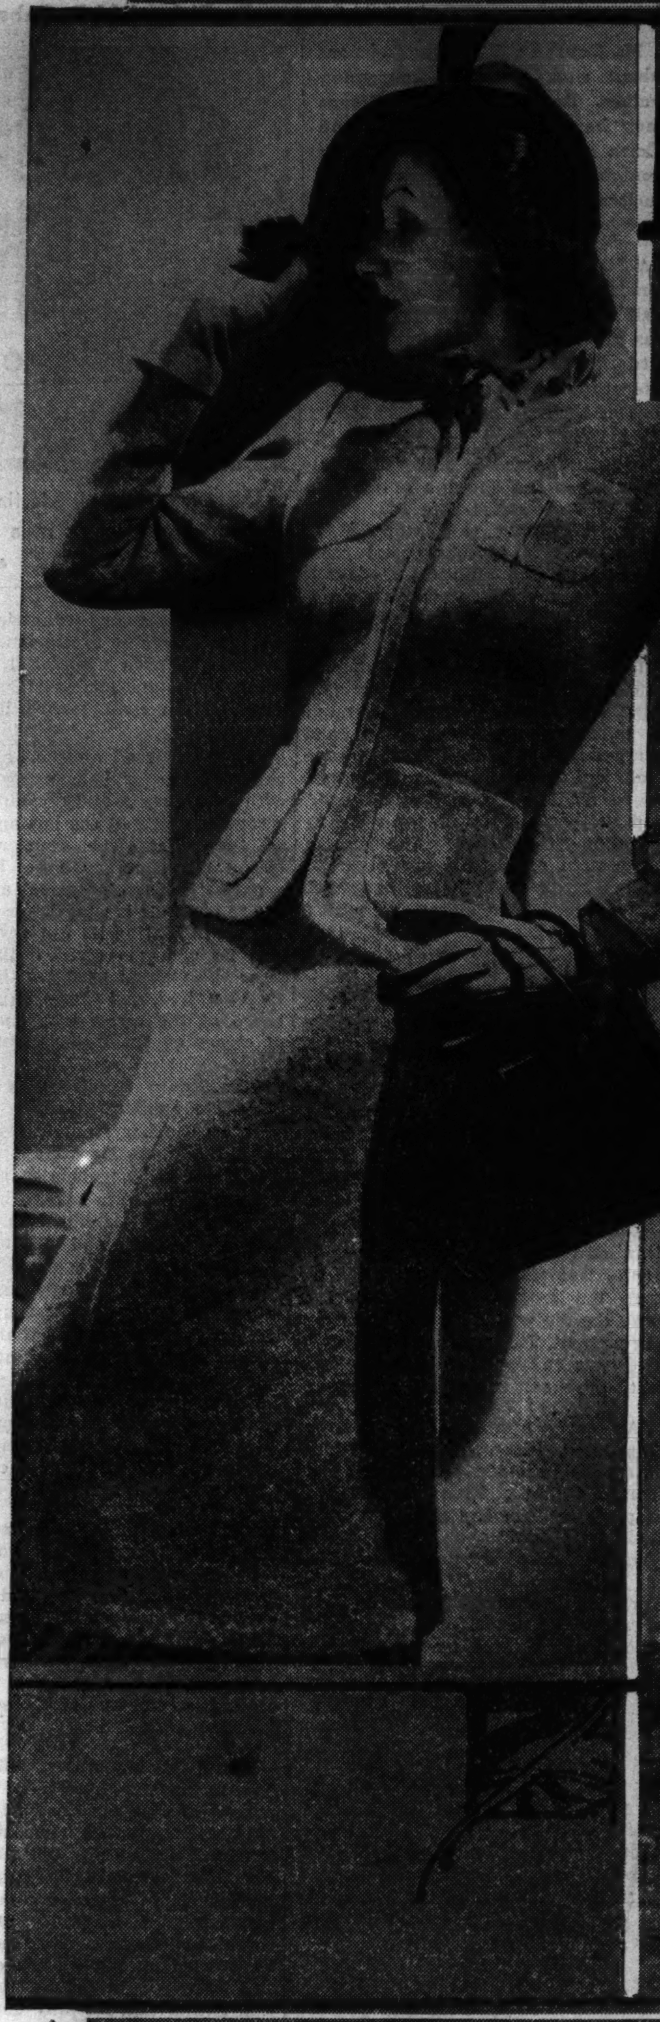
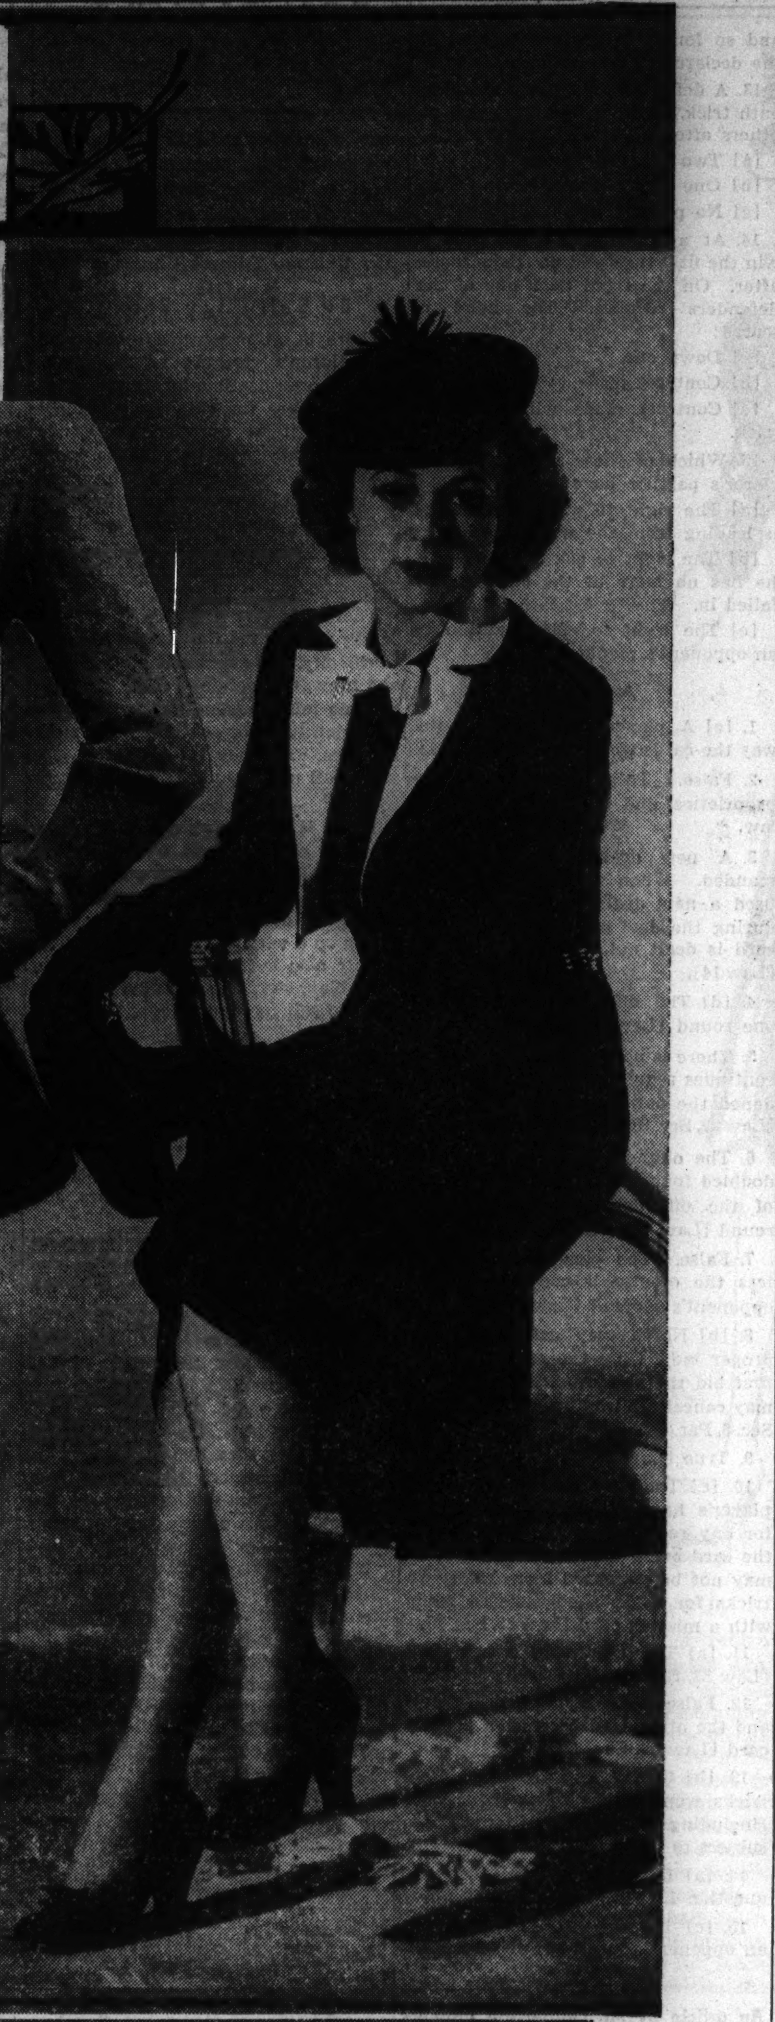
PERSPECTIVE IMPORTANT TO CLOTHES SMARTNESS



Starred for travel is this jersey suit with its printed muffler. The model who wears it shows it to advantage, because she's slim, tall, and beautifully proportioned. One must be all these things to wear such a costume well, and before you decide on one similar to it, look at yourself in the mirror carefully from all angles, front, side, and back.

[Associated Press Photo.]



Sally Eilers, lovely screen actress, models here a navy blue and gray plaid street suit with white pique trimming. It's an ideal costume for the business girl, but the wise woman will look at herself critically from all perspectives before she wears any frock, coat or suit. The front view is not enough. The back view is also very important.

Youth Chides the Restaurant Silver Wipers

Who picks styles for wedding attendants? Helen Bartlett, Tribune etiquet editor, answers this and many other questions about wedding customs in her valuable booklet, "The Home Wedding." On sale at the Tribune Public Service Offices, 1 S. Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 2 cents. By postpaid mail, 3 cents.

By Helen Bartlett.

A young man who signs his letter "Bachelor by Choice" writes with such feeling that we are going to let him tell his own story. He covers the problem quite thoroughly and so convincingly that we know you will agree without qualification.

"I have a very unusual plea for your department. My experience has been the same, not only with one girl but with every one I have had the misfortune to spend my money on.

"Tell me this: Why do girls persist in always wiping their silver before partaking of food? That is my complaint! I command a fair salary and like to entertain to the best of my ability, and, consequently, take the young ladies to some pretty nice places, not always the best and most expensive, but better than most, anyway. Why the act? If they are so very particular about their silverware, why don't they wipe the dishes and glasses as well? They could at least be consistent.

"I consider this a slight on my choice of restaurants as well as a reflection on my fastidiousness, because I refuse to insult any one I am patronizing for my food by insinuating that they do not have a sanitary method of dishwashing.

"That is my plea, and please see if you can do something about it. I believe an article on proper behavior will help, as you have a great deal of influence on the ladyship of today.

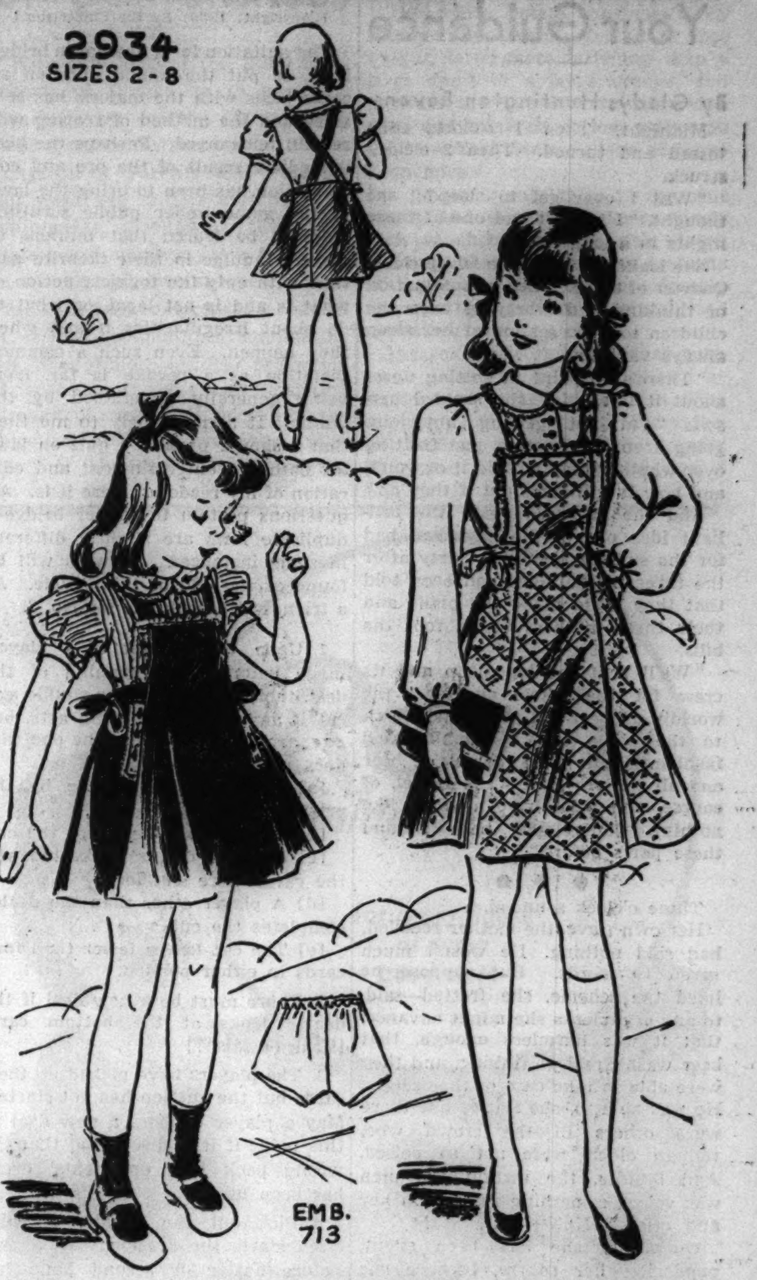
We agree wholeheartedly with everything the correspondent says. If that has been his experience with girls, we don't blame him for choosing to remain a bachelor. Women and men frequently are seen to offend in this manner, and it certainly is a very unlovely gesture. There are times, even in the best places, when a knife, fork, or spoon is discovered to be not quite spotless. Little accidents such as that have been known to happen right in one's own home. And when that does happen the best thing to do is quietly to ask the waiter for another piece of silver, without calling undue attention to it.

When it happens too frequently I suggest that one give his patronage to another dining room. If the silver always is dirty, you can be sure that the whole kitchen is unsanitary.

Clotilde Children's Patterns



This pinafore frock is a variation of the tried-and-true and much beloved jumper dress. It's as girlish as you'd expect a juvenile model to be, and it's one of those simple outfits so easy to keep in trim. The pinafore may be silk, cotton, or very sheer woolen. It may be trimmed to suit your fancy or be left plain and tailored. The blouse to keep it company may have either short or long puffed sleeves. The collar is a typical shirtwaist one that may be puritan plain or edged with trimming to match that used on the pinafore.

For something different in trimming, why not try the touch of embroidery? Pattern No. 713, available for 10 cents extra, is a lovely finish for collar, cuffs, and side edging of pinafore.

Panties to be worn under this girl's practical frock are provided for by the pattern.

Style No. 2934 is designed for sizes 2, 4, 6, and 8. Size 4 requires 1 yard of 35 inch material for the pinafore, ¾ yard of 35 inch fabric for the blouse, with ⅜ yard of contrasting.

Address orders for Clotilde Children's fashions to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred — wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Knitted Angora Hood for Women

By Jean Macdonald.

Angora still is a ranking favorite for knitted caps, hoods, and sweaters. This easy to knit hood is ideal for sports and evening wear, and it is the answer to the eternal question as the holiday season approaches: "What shall I give her for Christmas?" A good quality camel's hair may be substituted, if worn for sports.

For instructions in knitting the angora hood, No. X-345, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Table Lamps Now Double as Vases, Clocks, Ash Trays

If you see a housewife pouring water into her table lamp don't conclude she's absent-minded. She's probably just watering the flowers.

New lamps, recently introduced in the Merchandise mart, have followed the current trend in the home furnishings field of making one item serve a dual purpose. Squatty pottery lamps have openings at the top of the base into which fresh flowers may be thrust, while other lamp bases have openings for growing ferns and ivy. Another lamp, of the "pin-up" variety, which may be hung on any wall of the room, has a tiny copper container attached, in which growing ivy is placed.

Other lamps incorporating two utilities in one item include a lamp with a clock in the base; a lamp with an ash tray as the base; while another lamp has a tiny mirror, into which milady may peer as she makes up her face.

Even the Late Teens Require Your Guidance

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

Midnight. Then 1 o'clock. She tossed and turned. Then 2 o'clock struck.

"Will I ever get to sleep?" she thought. "I haven't had one of these nights in a long time."

She looked at her little white clock. Quarter of three. When a combination of thinking and worrying over the children took possession of her sleep always vanished.

"There's no point in getting upset about it like this," she scolded herself. "I'm not getting anywhere going around in circles, just fretting over whether they will do it or won't, and how it will come out if they do."

And she reviewed again the brilliant idea one of the boys had had for the summer's windup party after the three inseparables had been told that they could make the plans and their three mothers would foot the bills.

"We'll rent the big sloop and its crew for the whole evening," the worldly 19 year old youth held forth to the other two in sophisticated fashion, "and get a barrel of beer and all the crowd. I'll ask Isabel, of course, and we'll have a party like nothing that's ever been around these parts before."

Three o'clock sounded.

Her own Dave, the mother recalled, had said nothing. He wasn't much given to words. But suppose he liked the scheme, she fretted—said, to any arguments she might advance, that it was harmless enough, that beer wasn't really drinking, and they were able to take care of themselves. He was able to, she knew; but there were others in the crowd who, though older, were not so poised. And besides, the instant the plan was voiced something rose up in her and cried, "No!"

Outwardly she had been silent, pondering her course, because she purposely didn't say, "You shall," and "You shan't," to Dave any more. That wasn't the way she and he worked things out. So, suppose he did think it a novel and amusing sort of party and wanted to put the plan through? She fretted and tossed again.

Four o'clock struck, and she stared into the dark. And then a light broke. Not dawn, but an inner light.

"Why, of course!" she exclaimed to herself in a wave of relief. "What a spineless idiot I've been. Freedom and hands off are necessary and wise, but they can be carried too far! The solution, if it comes up again, is simply a flat veto of the whole scheme—both as to Dave's part and my share in the expense, or as to Dave's attendance at the party if the others go through with it.

"What use is a parent who can't exercise firmness and the authority of a wider experience on occasion for her child's good?" And asking herself this gently scornful question and instantly calmed by her decision, she fell into a sweet sleep.

During the next few days she said nothing, awaiting developments. Then, one evening an older friend of the boys said to Dave, "I heard about the plans for a big evening sailing party and a barrel of beer;" and to his mother's delight Dave answered, "O, that! It didn't make a hit with me. It's off as far as I'm concerned." And after that the idea died a natural death, and no motherly veto was necessary. However, she had been quite ready for decisive action.

Sometimes the answer to problems that arise during the late teens and even the first year or two of the second decade of a boy's or girl's life is as simple as that. Sometimes the only solution is the forthright use of authority. If the whole usual relationship between a father and mother and their teen age children is one of trust and friendship with control obtained by consulting and explaining, and if authority is exercised in this direct way only on rare occasions it will be submitted to with a good grace. Under those circumstances you can and should claim, in so many words, a wisdom based on a longer experience of life than your girls and boys can possibly have and require an obedience based on their faith in your deep regard for their well-being and happiness.

I am writing this today because I know that many liberal and intelligent parents, attempting to give both freedom and friendship to their sons and daughters who are in their late high school and early college years or just out in the world of work are afraid to handle the reins firmly when their spirited young colts want to take the bit in their teeth.

After all, in the years you have lived longer than your children you have acquired in certain matters a wisdom and perspective superior to theirs. It does no harm for them to realize this—in fact, it does them good to know that this is so and that you are [or may be, if needed] a source of help. Young people are seeking advice in thinking and living on all sides—from their teachers or older friends or books, when they cannot get it from their parents. They are not too sure of themselves, especially about the deeper aspects of life, though their social poise or even cocksure ways may make you think so.

Our young people need freedom and a gradual lessening of control about little and big things. And also they need guidance—tactful, sympathetic, understanding, often light and humorous, and above all, not wordy or preachy. But on rare occasions when health, or standards, or physical safety, or trends of personality or spirit or companionships are concerned their good may have to be secured through the firm exercise of authority.

The parents of young people today must, either by intuition or study—or both, be equipped for the undertaking of helping them to understand themselves and life in general, and to meet it competently.

To do this they must: First, understand what adolescence is; second, they must know their own child; third, they must get the whole picture of their child in his or her social and school background, and fourth, they must think things out for themselves in making those decisions which involve the things most vital during the teens.

Not what the Neilson's next door think all right for their daughters, not what those well-to-do Wallaces let their son put across with the family car and a big allowance, not what all the other parents allow regarding hours and companions because they're afraid their children will be unpopular if they don't are standards for you to go by.

You may be much more liberal and more understanding and more human with your young people in almost every way than your neighbors because you believe it wise. But you may also expect more of your sons and daughters than they do in such matters as dependability, or hours, or experiments with drinking; or as to use of the car in regard to speed, how many may ride in the front seat, and other issues that arise with a young driver.

But whether you conform to or depart from the customs of your children's associates—do so because you've thought it out, not drifted; and even though you make final decisions try, wherever you can, to make your children see your point and to gain their willing coöperation.

"Understanding the Adolescent" is a booklet of interest to parents, teachers, and nurses. Send a stamped, addressed envelope for it. Address Mrs. Gladys Bevans, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

Contract According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson.

[Copyright: 1939: By Ely Culbertson.]

The agitation for a change in bridge laws, to put the minor suits on an equal basis with the majors, has subsided and the method of scoring will remain unchanged. Perhaps the best immediate result of the pro and con discussion has been to bring the laws of the game under public scrutiny. It is to be feared that millions of players indulge in their favorite pastime with only the foggiest notion of what is and is not legal, or what to do about irregularities if and when they happen. Even such a common violation as a revoke is far from being generally understood by the public. It seems timely to me then that I should present a quiz on laws for both the entertainment and education of my readers. Here it is. All questions pertain to rubber bridge—duplicate laws are slightly different in some instances. Answers will be found at the end of this article. As a friendly tip, look out for No. 8.

1. Upon the request of a player, made before the beginning of the deal, there must be a new shuffle and cut if any of the following acts, but one, are done. Pick out the one that does not belong:

[b] A player shuffles after the cut.

[c] A player does not like the way the cards were shuffled.

2. There must be a new deal if the dealer looks at the bottom card. [True or false?]

3. The players have picked up their cards but the auction has not started. May a player demand a new deal at this point if it is discovered that the wrong pack [the opponents' deck] has been used?

4. Pick out the penalty if third hand starts the auction with a pass before dealer or second hand has spoken:

[a] The offender's partner is barred from the entire auction.

[b] The offender is barred from the entire auction.

[c] The offender's partner is barred for one round.

5. The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 spade	Silence	2 hearts	Pass

At this point East calls attention to South's bid out of turn. How is this irregularity settled?

6. A player in doubling a preceding bid of four spades accidentally says, "I double four hearts." What is the penalty, if any?

7. There is no penalty if a player voluntarily calls attention to his own insufficient bid before the opponents mention it. [True or false?]

8. The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
2 spades	Pass	3 hearts	4 clubs
4 diamonds	Pass	5 spades	Pass
7 spades	8 clubs

Only one of the following statements is true concerning this irregularity:

[a] North-South may call for a new deal.

[b] North may cancel the eight club bid.

[c] South may cancel the eight club bid.

[d] The eight club bid must stand.

9. After the auction has closed, and before the opening lead is made, any player may ask to have the bidding reviewed. [True or false?]

10. A hand has been played down to the tenth trick when it is discovered that one player has twelve cards, the thirteenth being found in the still pack. The ruling is:

[a] There must be a new deal.

[b] The card is replaced in the player's hand and he must play it on the next trick.

[c] The card is replaced in the player's hand and he is responsible for any revoke made by him due to the card being missing.

11. During the play it is discovered that one hand held fourteen cards and another twelve, originally. The ruling is:

[a] There must be a new deal.

[b] The player who is short picks a card from the other player's hand.

[c] The hand is played out as is.

12. When both defenders lead simultaneously to the first trick the declarer may judge which lead stands and so force his partner to become the declarer. [True or false?]

13. A defender revokes on the eleventh trick, winning that trick and no others after that. The ruling is:

[a] Two tricks penalty.

[b] One trick penalty.

[c] No penalty.

14. At a seven bid the defenders win the first trick and no tricks thereafter. On the third trick one of the defenders revokes. The hand is scored:

[a] Down one.

[b] Contract made.

[c] Contract made with an overtrick.

15. Which of these rights does declarer's partner have:

[b] The right to ask a defender if he has no more of the suit he has failed in.

The bidding [North-South vulnerable]:

North	East	South	West
1 spade	2 hearts	3 clubs	Pass
4 clubs	Pass	4 diamonds	Pass
4 no trump	Pass	5 no trump	Pass
6 clubs	Pass	Pass	Pass

I am not going to ask how you would fulfil your contract if West opened a heart—that would be too easy! You would merely put up the heart ace, run all your clubs and diamonds, then throw East on lead with a heart and force a spade return up to dummy's tenace.

What I shall ask you to do is fulfill your contract when West double-crosses you and opens the spade ten.

Answer: You play spade queen from dummy, having nothing to lose by taking the finesse. East wins with spade king and returns heart king [as good defense as any]. You win in dummy, cash the spade ace, and ruff a spade high. Lead a club to the nine spot and ruff dummy's last spade with the queen. Cash your club ace, lead another club to dummy, and pick up West's trumps, discarding your losing heart on dummy's fourth trump. Now run your diamonds.

This is a pretty example of "dummy reversal" play.

Answers.

1. [c] A player does not like the way the cards were shuffled [Law 11].

2. False. This comes under the proprieties, and not under a specific law.

3. A new deal may not be demanded. When the wrong deck is used a new deal may be demanded during the deal only. Once the last card is dealt out, the deal is official [Law 14].

4. [d] The offender is barred for one round [Law 5, a].

5. There is no penalty. The bidding continues regularly because West condoned the out-of-turn bid by passing [Law 22, Sec. 2].

6. The offender is deemed to have doubled four spades, and the partner of the offender is barred for one round [Law 22, Sec. 4].

7. False. The penalty applies unless the offense is condoned by an opponent's overcall [Law 22, Sec. 3].

8. [b] North may cancel the improper bid. Only the opponent who first bid the suit last bid by his side may cancel the improper bid [Law 22, Sec. 6, Par. C].

9. True [Law 25, Sec. 1].

10. [c] The card is replaced in the player's hand and he is responsible for any revoke made by him due to the card being missing. However, he may not be penalized more than two tricks for established revokes made with a missing card [Law 33, Sec. 3].

11. [a] There must be a new deal [Law 33, Sec. 2].

12. False. The proper lead stands and the other lead becomes a penalty card [Law 26, Sec. 7].

13. [b] One trick penalty. Only tricks won in play after the revoke [including the revoking trick] are subject to penalty [Law 27, Sec. 4].

14. [a] Down one. See answer to question 13.

15. [c] The right to call attention to an opponent's revoke [Law 30, Sec. 2].

Night Fun.

By Eleanor Jewett

Jack Frost is abroad,
That smart little elf—
Very full of his job,
And full of himself!

He climbs to the top
Of the highest of trees
And slides down the trunk,
Spilling paint, if you please!

Sometimes he takes care
As he colors the leaves,
But more often laughter
Is hid up his sleeves.

He paints just for fun!
And he skips with delight
From maple to oak
In the chill of the night.

A FRIEND IN NEED

If you are in need, perhaps I can help you. If you have household articles or clothing you no longer use, please let me place them with needy families. By Sally Joy Brown.

There is, at present, a great need of children's clothing of all kinds. Various organizations are making an effort to care for children of school age, but it is questionable as to whether they will be able to meet the heavy demand. Many youngsters of pre-school age were confined to the house during the previous winter because of lack of clothing, and will face the same confinement this year unless we can help them.

There are five children in the B. family, living on the southwest side of the city. The father is unemployed and they are receiving relief. At present, no arrangement has been made for clothing for children in such families. The boy 11, and girls 7, 4 and 2, all need apparel and shoes.

Mrs. M., a caseworker, has requested clothing and a stroller for the two year old son of a woman who is blind. Her husband has been unemployed for some time, and they are living on a very meager pension. The family also lacks sufficient bed linen and blankets. The worker will be glad to call for any articles offered.

Mr. L. was recently laid off WPA and the family now is on relief. All of the youngsters are in need of clothing, which the agency is unable to supply. There are boys 8 and 5, in need of shoes size 13 and 9, and girls 4 and 2, requiring shoes size 7½ and 5½.

The address is on the south side of the city. The parents will be glad to call for clothing readers care to donate.

Mrs. C., on the north side of the city, is in need of clothing for her boys aged 6 and 3, and for twin girls 4 months old. The family is on relief, and as they live in a basement flat, it is necessary that the youngsters have warm clothing if they are to avoid illness during the winter.

● ● ●

Mr. S. recently obtained work at a small salary after a long period of unemployment. The family recently moved into unfurnished quarters because of their inability to find furnished rooms at a rental within their means.

They are in need of a rug and furniture of almost any kind, including chairs and a table. They lack a child's bed for their baby, now sleeping uncomfortably in a buggy which she has outgrown. Can some north side reader help them?

On the House

By Louise Bargelt

There is an interesting new faucet on the market which contributes to the comfort of kitchen living. This faucet increases the air content of the water which passes through it and because of the myriad air bubbles thus formed several worth while results are achieved. First, there is no splattering or splashing when the faucet is turned on at maximum volume and high pressure. Then too, this heavily air laden water gives the feel of soft water no matter how harsh the local water supply may be, and richer and more active suds are obtained from less soap chips or flakes. And if there's an odor to the water, such as chlorine, this, too, is largely carried away by the same air bubbles.

A new paint is available which can be used on new plaster and other surfaces which are often considered hard to cover, such as the porous surfaces of some insulating wall boards. This paint dries in an hour and no lingering odor remains so that a room can be decorated and lived in the same day. It comes in paste form and in many pastel colors as well as deep and brilliant colors. By proper mixing of colors practically any desired shade can be obtained. Moreover it has a high light reflection value and the colors have a soft, glareless sheen.

There are ways of making a room quieter if sounds from above disturb you. One way is to line a ceiling with heavy insulating sheets set on one-inch furring strips, which are nailed to the plaster. Still another way is to have the spaces between ceiling and the floor above filled with mineral fill. This can be blown in. It can also be blown into walls. Such treatments will not make a room sound prof, but it will help to make it less noisy. In the same way, if a basement game room is "noisy," cover walls and ceilings with materials which absorb sound waves.

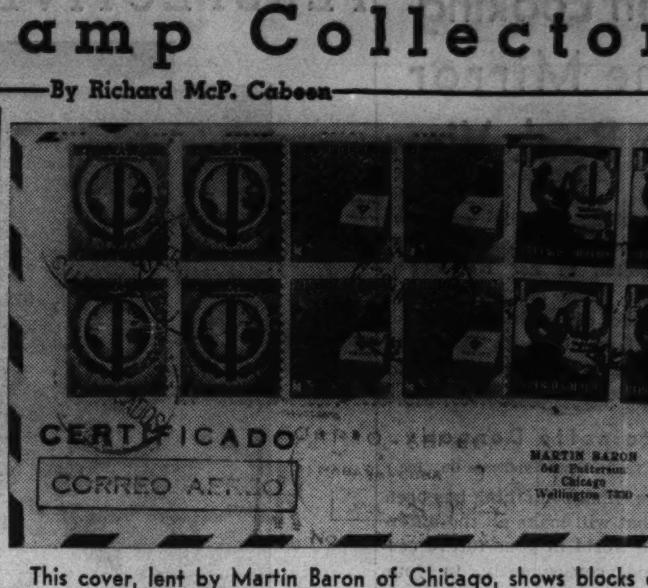
The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen



This cover, lent by Martin Baron of Chicago, shows blocks of four of the recent cigar issue of Cuba. The issue is mentioned in an adjoining column.

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning values. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, as the Stamps and Coins advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

A description of the ordinary 1 cent domestic postal card bearing the portrait of William McKinley in red was given in a recent column. This card was placed in use in 1911 and after three years was replaced by a card of the same size, that is 3¼ by 5½ inches.

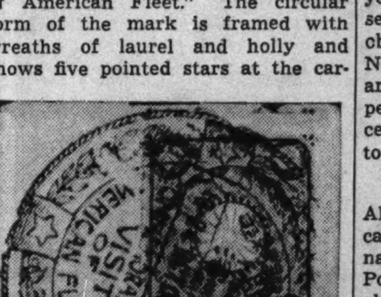
The card issued in 1914 was printed in green and shows a profile portrait of Jefferson, facing left. This design is similar to that used for the filing size Lincoln postal card, except that the elliptical medallion containing the portrait is almost circular, and the base of the design is a straight line.

The portrait is very squat and thick necked and almost completely fills the medallion leaving a minimum of colorless background. The band surrounding the medallion is complete and bears two inscriptions, one above reading "U. S. Postal Card," and another below with the value inscription "One Cent." The base of the design contains a small curved ribbon scroll with the caption "Jefferson," flanked at either side with a numeral "1" on an oval tablet.

In the left portion of the card and aligned with the bottom of the stamp design is the direction "This side of card is for address." This is in small Gothic capital letters and is enclosed in a single line frame with hollowed out corners. The cardboard used for this issue is listed as buff and yellow buff, and there should be considerable variation in the color and thickness for this is the regular card in use today.

During the long period in which this card has been current, one attempt was made to improve the design but without success. In this case the die was recut and coarsened throughout. This was not satisfactory and was in use only a short time with the result that it is fairly scarce.

An early example of interesting Japanese commemorative cancelations has been provided by Clement Cooper of Chicago. This postmark was applied at Yokohama and is dated 18-24 October 1908, and bears the inscription, "Commemoration of Visit of American Fleet." The circular form of the mark is framed with wreaths of laurel and holly and shows five pointed stars at the cardinal points. There is no indication of any of the typical Japanese forms such as the chrysanthemum, orange or cherry blossoms, etc. An inscription in Japanese ideographs appears near the top. At the time this postmark was applied Mr. Cooper was a marine on board the U. S. S. Ohio.



Following the precedent established in 1937 when the sugar industry was advertised on its postage stamps, Cuba has issued a special series of three stamps to glorify Havana cigars. Only a few countries have had the temerity to advertise their products in such a pictorial fashion on their postage stamps. Costa Rica was a notable example with its coffee stamps.

The motif used on the 1c and 2c values is a panetela shaped cigar with a victory wreath composed of sprays of palms at the left and laurel at the right. The caption reads "Tabaco Habano." On the 1c value a native holds this symbol aloft; on the 2c stamp it is superimposed upon a globe indicating its world-wide use. The 5c value is divided diagonally after the fashion used for the sugar series of 1937, and shows growing tobacco at the upper left, and a box of cigars at the lower right.

The Stamp Specialist is a new philatelic publication which will appear in October from the offices of H. L. Lindquist, New York publisher of the weekly magazine Stamps. The Stamp Specialist is said to be a new departure in philatelic lines. It will appear quarterly and will be bound permanently in stiff boards. The subject matter will include exhaustive studies on stamps or issues; technical articles on the materials which go into stamps and on printing processes, etc.; compilations of philatelic information for reference use; illustrations of pages from famous collections, and stamp statistics relating to the current trend in collecting and to market values.

International Philatelic week will be observed from Nov. 12 to 18, this year. An attractive poster stamp or seal has been prepared and may be obtained from Alice C. Westphal, 3008 North Whipple street. The stamps are priced at 1 cent each, or 50 cents per hundred, postage extra. All proceeds from the sale of the seals goes to charity.

It's a Help to Me, Says—

Mrs. Raymond Dare, St. Louis, Mo.: I've learned several neat ways to get my own dishes back from church suppers, etc. I mark my initials on surgeon's tape with indelible ink and stick it to under side of dish. Or I use varnish stain to make a mark which will last at least till dishes are washed and back home again.

* *

Laura M., Chicago: I have found I can clean metal or mesh bags by taking a woolen cloth and rubbing plain soda into them. Later I remove soda with the aid of a good brush and mild shaking.

Mrs. G. T., Chicago: Here's an idea for the youngsters at Halloween which I've found successful. I sprinkle some inflated rubber balloons with powdered rosin. Then when they rub these balloons against a window pane they make a grand noise—and without any danger of broken glass.

Mrs. Barbara Brown, Springfield, Mo.: I use the sink dish rack when it comes to washing all manner of green vegetables. I invert it in the sink, place the raw vegetables atop it, and in this way I can get vegetables thoroughly clean and let plenty of water stream through them.

Joyce F., Chicago: Here's a home made formula for obliterating slight scratches from furniture. I dissolve bee's wax in turpentine and when it is the consistency of molasses I apply it with a woolen cloth.

* *

Mrs. Amos C., Chicago: When you are cleaning house this fall, don't throw away that tarnished Christmas tree tinsel. Keep it to make beautiful colors in your log fire at holiday time. Wrap it around logs. You will find that a little of it will go a long way.

Through the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

[TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

A fine French perfume, different and extremely beautiful, now scents a new cologne. The perfume is a sophisticated one, dry and spicy, and not at all run-of-the-mill type.

In the back of our mind as we muddle through the war news is the picture of a little perfume shop in Paris. It's small, smart, and heavenly scented, presided over by a French woman so charming and electric in personality she made us feel that the fiction writers who sang the praises of the Parisienne were not liars after all.

The specialité de la maison is just one perfume, a famous one in France, and a popular one. Its followers here are few, too few we think, but fastidious. It's a typical French perfume. Dry. Exciting. Just a touch exotic. Sophisticated women can wear it; others find it a mite too dashing. Our tastes, as a rule, are for bland perfumes rather than spicy ones.

This is one of our favorite perfumes, especially with furs and with dressy clothes. And one reason we've been thinking more and more of the perfume, its maker, and the little perfumed bandbox in Paris, is that just recently a cologne in the same scent came to this country.

It's extremely beautiful, and we think it will serve two good purposes. First, being a delightful preparation, it will charm American women who want a cologne that's de luxe and different. Second, since it echoes the scent of the perfume, it will serve to introduce this fragrance to a much wider audience.

The cologne is beautifully bottled. When the citrus scent that is in all cologne fades away, the scent of the perfume comes into full beauty. You'll like it if you like truly elegant perfumes. It has a dry warmth and richness that makes it classically different. And one of the best features of it is that the scent you've found is one all your friends haven't found yet. It's rather fun to have something lovely and distinctive.

Now Is the Time to Check Over Home Furnishings

This is the time to check over home furnishings and equipment to determine what articles need replacement for the months of concentrated indoor living ahead.

New attractiveness in the living room and greater efficiency in the kitchen are desirable, but comfortable beds in restful bedrooms are essential if all members of the family are going to be at their physical best this winter.

Much forethought and planning should go into the purchase of sleeping equipment. The first step is to inspect the mattress, spring and pillows on a bed separately to see which are showing wear. A mattress with a hollow worn in the center or broken down sides should be discarded because it may jeopardize health.

If there is any tendency to sagging in the bedspring, or if individual coils are bent and broken, the spring is not providing the correct foundation for the mattress. Limp pillows that feel heavy and droop when laid across the arm should be permanently retired.

Sometimes a new mattress will work wonders with an uncomfortable bed; and sometimes the mattress is satisfactory once it is given a new bedspring foundation. Lifeless pillows are enough to give any one insomnia, and it may be that just replacing the pillows will make all the difference between comfort and discomfort.

Certain types of mattresses are built to be used with certain kinds of bedsprings, so if a new mattress is being purchased, great care should be taken to get one that is suitable to the bedspring already on the bed, or vice versa.

In general, an innerspring mattress is resilient and pliable and needs a firm bedspring foundation. Either boxsprings or coil springs, the latter with specially built "platform" tops, are right for an innerspring mattress. On the other hand, a solid mattress works best with a very resilient, open coil bedspring.

Mother-Housekeeper Takes 12,000 Steps a Day

It has been estimated that a woman in her combined capacity of mother and housekeeper takes 12,000 steps a day.

More than 42 per cent of the clerical workers in England are women.

The greatest number of marriages in the United States occur now between the ages of 24 and 26 for both men and women.

Home Owners' Queries

Chicago.—[Home Builders' Editor.]—What is the best way to clean a chimney? We'd like to do it ourselves. A. M.

Answer: Fill an ordinary burlap bag with branches and excelsior and weigh with several bricks. Then tie a rope to this bag and drop it down the flue. The bricks will drag it down—and you can drag it up. Repeat process several times. You might also check on the vacuum process which you can contact through your local heating contractor. There are also "soot removers" on the market which are compounds you throw on fire and the fumes help to destroy soot in heater passage and chimney flue. Don't forget it is dangerous to burn soot in a chimney. It can get a head start and set your roof or house afire. Better call in an expert to give the chimney a good "vacuum."

Chicago.—[Home Builders' Editor.]—Which is best for floors, shellac and wax or varnish and wax? We have some floors to finish and have had shellac and wax on them, but they didn't seem to hold up under traffic. We wondered if varnish and wax would be better. J. K.

Answer: Yes, varnish is tough. Good varnish, that is, and it will take a lot of punishment. It's good insurance for floors, especially where they get a good deal of use. Then add the wax for extra protection and looks.

Duluth, Minn.—[Home Builders' Editor.]—Will you give me a mild formula for washing painted walls which I can make at home? J. B.

Answer: Mix cup of vinegar, 1 cup of kerosene, and 1 cup of hot water. Apply with cloth, wipe walls, and then wipe dry with another cloth. Check on the commercial cleaners for painted walls and woodwork. There are many of them and they are very effective.

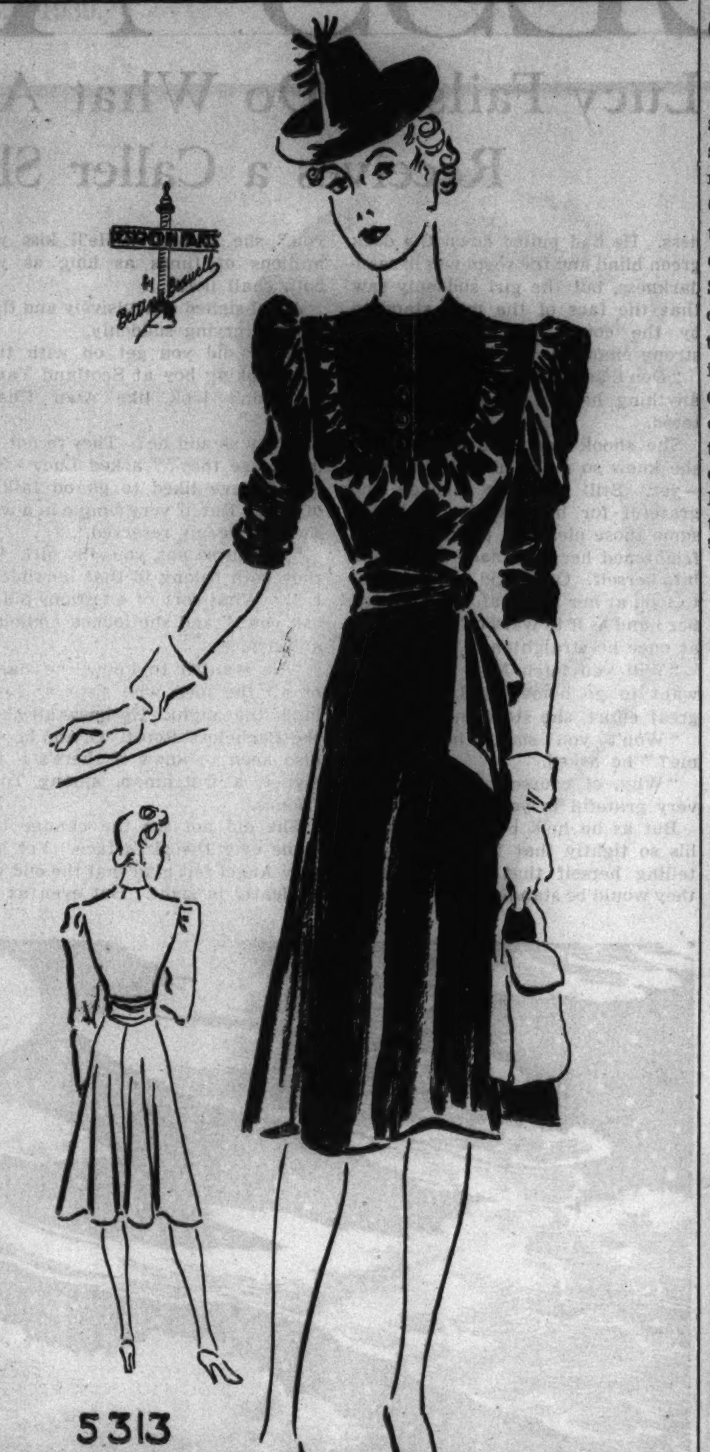
Paris Frock Revives the Elegance of Another Period



By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS [Special].—With a return to the elegance of fifty years ago, Paris fashions necessarily revived draping and shirring. Femininity rules supreme, and simplicity blends with a lot of detail. One of the more serviceable of the new-old styles is one I have had adapted for this pattern, No. 5313. Its lines are straight, slim and flattering, and all the detail is concentrated in the bodice, which places multiple shirring beneath a severely plain yoke with a half dozen buttons. The sleeves are the push-up sort that may be allowed to reach their full length, just below the elbow, or may be thrust casually above it. The shoulders are puffed high as in the plush period.

Around the waist is a self-fabric sash that knots at one side and is faced with a contrasting color. In fact, this facing is the only extraneous factor in the whole costume, the original of which is of lustrous black crêpe, the facing of carmen.

You may make this dress of crêpe, velvet, very sheer woolen or silk jersey. And the color need not be black. Paris is sponsoring jewel tones, rich browns, greens and blues, and gray is a leader, too.

Style No. 5313 is designed for sizes 12, 14, and 16; and 36, 38, and 40 inch bust measurement. Size 16 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material, with ⅝ yard of 39 inch contrasting for sash facing.

Address orders to Chicago Tribune Paris Patterns, 119 West 19th Street, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred — wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be certain to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Women Are Taking Over Men's Jobs in the Reich

Women in Germany are called on to relieve the labor shortage and take over men's jobs which they can fill. They are being trained as postal carriers and, in many cities, as street car and bus conductors, jobs not filled by women in Germany since the world war.

American women spend approximately $265 every minute of the day on perfumes, cosmetics, and other toilet preparations.

Illinois P.-T.A. Initiating Series of Conferences

With only 5,000 of the 12,000 rural schools of Illinois up to minimum standards set by the state department of public instruction, the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers this week will initiate a series of 33 conferences throughout the state. State board members leave tomorrow on the first of several weekly circle trips, with daily conferences scheduled in various communities, culminating Oct. 26 at Midlothian. The promotion of schools of recognized standing throughout rural districts will be the objective of these meetings. Mrs. Harry M. Mulberry of Chicago heads the congress.

Potato No Enemy of the Waistline, Say Specialists

The white potato, frequently shunned by persons trying to lose weight, is no more fattening than a large apple or a large orange, and provides the diet with valuable vitamins and minerals at low cost, says the New York State College of Home Economics.

A potato is only 11 to 21 per cent starch, and 78 per cent water. Foods such as chocolates and rich starch puddings that contain large amounts of sugar and fats are considerably more fattening than potatoes, food specialists say.

The college recommends that potatoes, whether baked, boiled, or steamed, be cooked in the skin. This saves most of the potato's food value. In baking potatoes, 450 degrees Fahrenheit is a good temperature if a crisp skin is desired.

RECKLESS ANGEL

By
Mrs. Belloc Lowndes

THE STORY TO DATE

● Angela Tindall, penniless young London aristocrat, has been given the nickname Reckless Angel because of her daring pranks. Ned Carvill, society jewel thief, is in love with her and hopes to marry her and make her an accomplice in the robberies he and his half-brother, George Adair, plan. But Angela is in love with Lord Bridlington, who has declared his love to her but feels honor bound to the ageing Mrs. Woolryche, an attachment formed in his youth. Angel learns from Lucy Morton, her roommate, of the gigolo with whom Mrs. Woolryche has been deceiving Brid. Angel writes Mrs. Woolryche a warning anonymous note. A fortune teller predicts a legacy which Angel receives, but she fails to discard an automatic pistol which is part of her inheritance. She takes it with her in her suitcase to the coming-of-age party of Tom Crofton, son of Lord and Lady Crofton of Longlands Manor, to which affair Angel has secured invitations for Ned Carville and George Adair. Brid arrives at the party with Mrs. Woolryche. She is the sister of Lord Crofton. The older woman's possessive attitude toward Brid angers Angel. During a sleepless night Angel, taking the pistol, goes to Mrs. Woolryche's room to frighten her into giving Brid up. A burglar is there after the woman's famous emeralds. He strikes the pistol from Angel's hand. Mrs. Woolryche awakens and screams. The intruder shoots. Angel, thrust out of the room, leaves the pistol behind. In the morning the murder and robbery are discovered. Tom Crofton sneaks Angel into the murdered woman's room. But her gun is gone. Angel's anonymous note to Mrs. Woolryche is found and published. Joan Fletcher, another guest, had seen Angel's pistol. Alan Chart, her fiance, is at Scotland Yard. Joan invites Angel and Lucy to her engagement party, enabling Alan to search their apartment, confirm the anonymous note as Angel's, and find the pistol holster. To get Angel to elope with him, Ned tells her that a French crook he knows did the robbery, took Angel's gun, and if caught will accuse her of the murder. Angel refuses to flee. Without explaining, Angel writes Brid that she can't see him again. The stolen emeralds have been seen on a rajah and are being traced to the burglars. Angel is questioned by Major Waite at Scotland Yard. He believes her to be an accomplice.

MAJOR WAITE told himself angrily that Angel Tindall was making it very difficult for him to help her to escape the results of her own folly. She certainly possessed valuable information he was determined to force her to reveal.

But he was already aware that his usual technique had failed and that Angel Tindall was quite unlike any girl he had ever questioned. He recognized something about her character that was so determined and so strong that it called out a granite-like quality in himself.

"There are certain other questions I must ask you to answer."

She braced herself for the questions she felt sure were going to be put to her concerning the story of the night when she had seen Mrs. Woolryche shot dead in the Cardinal's room. So it was that what Major Waite said took her completely by surprise.

"A friend of yours — in fact, a young lady at whose wedding you were the only bridesmaid — had a serious burglary committed in her apartment about a fortnight before her marriage."

She looked so bewildered that he could not help experiencing the admiration any intelligent man must feel for a really great actress.

"I feel sure you will not deny that the burglary in question took place as a result of certain information supplied by yourself. Further, that it may be presumed that as part of the reward for the valuable information by you the engagement ring of your friend was returned to her."

"D'you really believe that I am mixed up with a gang of burglars, Major Waite? And that I helped to steal my poor friend's wedding presents?"

Angel asked the question in what he told himself with rising anger was a bold and indeed derisive tone. It was as if the girl had recovered her nerve, her poise, and, above all, her reckless outlook on life.

She rose and faced him.

Her eyes—those strangely tinted, heavy-lidded eyes — met his bright, mocking glance squarely, and all at once he saw, he sensed, he was caught by the allure which had drawn to her in the past, and would always draw to her as long as she retained any femininity, the longing and the ardent devotion of men of very varying masculine types.

Something primitive, an urge he had not felt for years, took possession of this ruthless, cynical, and self-restrained human being. All the same he told himself that though Reckless Angel would doubtless go on defying and making fools of better men than himself for many a long year, she would not defy or make a fool of him today, however powerful her wiles and however compelling her singular and, he felt, unique gift of charm.

He came very close up to her, and she stood her ground, but he saw her face darken.

"Do you dare deny that you supplied a list—I don't know, I admit, how you procured it—of the jewels Mrs. Woolryche was taking to Longlands, to some man or men?"

"Of course I deny it, and I wonder how you dare ask me such a question. I know nothing of Mrs. Woolryche's jewels."

"Had you never heard of her famous emeralds?"

"Yes, I had heard of them," and there came a troubled, suffering look on her face.

She was recalling something Lord Bridlington had told her during his long and, to them both, painful confession. He had said that his mother had first heard of his close friendship with Mrs. Woolryche because some spiteful person had told of a parure of emeralds he had commissioned just after he had come of age.

"You knew the unfortunate woman had brought her emeralds to Longlands? You don't deny that—or do you?"

"I knew she had brought them to Longlands, for she was wearing them at dinner." And then Angel stopped suddenly. She felt she would never forget what had happened that evening, and how miserable it had made her to see Mrs. Woolryche asserting her authority over the man she loved.

"Come, Miss Tindall, you are not going to tell me you took no interest in Mrs. Woolryche and her concerns? I know you had good reason to feel a deep and painful interest in that lady. Do you deny that you typed this letter?"

Out of an envelope she had not noticed he held in his hand he drew a sheet of paper and held it up in front of her, and she saw at once that it was the sheet on which she had typed those ignoble lines, full of taunts and threats, Brid had begged her never to read.

She turned so pale that he thought she was going to fall fainting onto the floor.

"Sit down, Miss Tindall."

She shook her head and turned away, while over him there suddenly swept a feeling which frightened himself. He felt what appeared to be an irresistible impulse to take this extraordinary girl in his arms and try to comfort her in what he knew must be a torturing sense of humiliation.

But instead of doing this he wisely increased the distance between them. All the same, it was in a very tender tone, a tone no woman had ever heard from him before, that he exclaimed: "Don't look like that! You should see some of the anonymous letters so-called friends sometimes write to one another."

"I was mad to do such a horrible thing," she whispered.

He took out of the envelope which had contained the anonymous letter a sheet of ordinary typing paper. Then he held the two sheets out to her. "Here is the letter, together with a copy that was made of it."

She averted her eyes from the hateful sight.

"Would you like me to burn them both?"

She gazed at him, wondering if she could have heard that question aright.

Tears rose to her eyes, but she dashed them away quickly.

MAJOR WAITE walked across to a fireplace and, striking a match, he put the shivering flame to the two sheets of paper.

Angel followed him, and they both watched those sheets shriveling up and then becoming a tiny pinch of gray ash.

He looked at Angel fixedly. "I think you have been questioned enough for today, and I trust you won't think too unkindly of me, Miss Tindall. A man has to do his duty, you know."

She felt touched and very much surprised. It was in a way extraordinary, but she acknowledged to herself that this man was the only man she had ever met who reminded her in a way of Brid

She answered in a low, almost inaudible voice: "I shall be grateful to you as long as I live, Major Waite. I can't tell you what it means to me to know that horrible letter is burnt. I wish I could do something for you in return."

"You can do something, which I should like to feel you will do in the future."

What could he mean? He was looking at her now as she remembered Lord Bridlington used to look at her in the early days of their acquaintanceship, when he was trying to escape from the fascination, the strong allure, she cast on him.

"Try and avoid bad company," he said in a moved, earnest tone.

He knew really nothing of the younger world of London society save by repute. As was natural, he only heard what ugly stories there were to hear, and he thought far more ill of that world than it deserved.

She asked, and he was at once angered and charmed by the mischievous smile which flashed over her face, "Do you still believe I was in league with a gang of burglars?"

He remained silent, for though he would have done almost anything to please her, he could not forswear himself. Besides, she was not yet, as he regretfully put it to himself, out of the wood.

"When you've arrested that Frenchman and heard his story you will make another mistake about me, Major Waite."

They looked at one another as if measuring swords.

He said casually: "Tell me if I'm wrong in thinking that while you were at Longlands you handed that man — or one of his accomplices— your automatic, Miss Tindall?"

And then—he was not really surprised—Angel, poor Reckless Angel, gave a gasp, and he only just caught her in time to prevent her falling in a dead faint.

"What's happened? Am I in prison?"

Angel tried to sit up on the really very hard leather-bound couch on which Major Waite had laid her down after she had lost consciousness. He had pulled down the dark green blind and the room was in semi-darkness, but the girl suddenly saw that the face of the man standing by the couch was working with strong emotion.

"Don't be frightened; I shan't let anything happen to you," he muttered.

She shook her head slightly, for she knew so much he did not know —yet. Still she was touched and grateful for his promise. All the same those pleading, beckoning eyes frightened her and made her shrink into herself. Only Brid had the right to look at her like that. She put out her hand as if to ward off a blow, and at once he straightened himself.

"Will you fetch Miss Morton? I want to go home," and, making a great effort, she stood up.

"Won't you shake hands with me?" he asked.

"Why, of course I will, and I'm very grateful to you, Major Waite."

But as he held her little hand in his so tightly that it hurt she was telling herself that the next time they would be standing face to face it might be his duty to tell her she was about to be arrested for murder.

At last the two girls were home again, and though it was after midnight, neither of them felt sleepy.

When in Tom Crofton's car Angel had languidly observed that Major Waite had been very kind and her short fainting fit due to the heat and to her tiresome evening of the day before. Further, she had actually agreed to Tom's suggestion that they should go to a picture and then have dinner in his apartment. But to the unhappy girl the afternoon and evening had been like a long-drawn-out nightmare. Yet all the same, or so she told herself, better than sitting at home doing nothing but thinking, thinking, thinking.

Lucy felt dreadfully worried, for she sensed that Angel, for some reason to which she had no clew, had suddenly become horribly unhappy. So when Angel said suddenly, "I think I'll go out of doors again for a bit; it'll do me good, for it's frightfully hot tonight," she felt a thrill of fear, and, looking imploringly at her friend, she exclaimed: "I want you to know, Angel, that if anything happens to you nothing will ever make me happy again! That's just the simple truth."

"Very well, to please you, I won't go out again. But do go to bed, Lucy. It worries me to see you sitting there doing nothing."

"I don't feel like bed. But I'll start doing something," and Lucy went and took a duster she had been hemming out of a drawer.

"How absurd of you to do that when one can buy them already hemmed! I wonder if Lady Crofton knows what a house-loving, house-proud treasure she's going to get in you, my pet," and Angel's voice softened.

"I wonder if he really likes me?" said Lucy pensively. She stopped sewing for a moment. She felt happier about Angel now.

"He's never tried to kiss me. Isn't that funny?" she said in a puzzled tone.

Angel burst into a storm of tears. "That's—that's because he loves you," she sobbed. "He'll kiss you millions of times as long as you both shall live."

Angel sighed convulsively and then stopped crying suddenly.

"How did you get on with that good-looking boy at Scotland Yard? He didn't look like Alan Chart, did he?"

"Why should he? They're not related, are they?" asked Lucy. She would have liked to go on talking of Tom. But, if very simple in a way, she was deeply reserved.

"Of course not, you silly girl. But they both belong to that horrible C. I. D. What sort of questions did he ask you?" and she looked anxiously at Lucy.

"He wanted to know the names of all the men who slept at Longlands that night. He knew all about the Bachelors' Roost. O, and he was also keen to know if there's a foreigner, a Dutchman, among Tom's friends."

She did not see the change that came over the girl's face. Yet in a way Angel felt glad that the end was evidently in sight. But even as she told herself that, it was not of her own danger, it was of Brid's coming distress and disgust that she was thinking.

She exclaimed, "Look here, Lucy, can you chuck work tomorrow?"

"Why, of course I can, though Lady Belinda pretends she's quite surprised when I do turn up."

She had already made up her mind to chuck her work tomorrow. Nothing would have made her leave Angel, even for the hour tomorrow morning for which Tom Crofton had pleaded so ardently as they had said good night this evening.

"I want you to be here to answer the telephone. For once you must be ready to lie, lie, lie! Tell every one who rings up that I've gone off for the day. No, not every one, dear —if that man Major Waite should ring up I'll speak to him."

"All right, I quite understand."

"Do you?" Angel waited quite a long while watching Lucy sewing before she said: "I may as well tell you now that I've broken with Brid. I'm never going to see him again."

"Broken with Brid?"

Lucy let the duster and the needle sticking out of it slide onto the floor. "You can't have done that! It would be too cruel——" and she in her turn burst out crying, while the other stared at her, dry-eyed and despairing.

"I can't tell even you about it now. I'm too tired. Don't cry, Lucy! I'm doing right. Indeed I am."

Her voice changed. "Think of Tom, my dear, and cheer up."

But Lucy went on sobbing as if it was her heart, not Angel's, that was broken into bits.

Suddenly they heard their bell ring and on the front door there came three knocks made by a man's knuckles.

"That must be the police, Lucy!"

Angel stood up and looked round her rather blindly.

"They have come to arrest me, Lucy. I knew it would happen soon."

"Arrest you? O, dear, what have you done this time?"

Angel laughed a discordant laugh. "I have done nothing this time. I'm not a bit frightened; it will all be cleared up when I tell Major Waite the truth. I think he'll believe me. If he does I'll be free very soon. But I'm afraid it will all be bound to be in the papers."

The knocking was going on, not loudly but unceasingly. And then the bell rang again.

"I shall go down and see who it is," said Lucy. "Go and wait in the kitchen."

"Don't pretend I'm in bed. I'm quite ready to go with them. In fact, I'm glad the waiting for it to happen is over."

Angel spoke in her natural voice, and it was true that for the moment she felt less unhappy than at any time since she had dropped her letter into Brid's letter box.

She hurried off into the kitchen and turned on the light. Surely she would be allowed to take her suitcase. They couldn't expect her to go to prison with nothing — just like that. Opening the roomy cupboard, she pulled her suitcase out of it. It seemed rather absurd to take with her now the things she had bought for her visit to Longlands. But, after all, they were here, all ready, and, turning back the lid, she looked at them apathetically.

But where was the empty leather case of the automatic? She had certainly left it in here. What could have happened to it? And then she told herself that some member of the C. I. D. must have got into the apartment while she and Lucy were out and taken that tiny gun case away.

THE kitchen door suddenly opened, admitting Lucy. She looked very different from her usual happy self, but also different from the weeping Lucy of a few minutes ago.

She said breathlessly: "It's Lord Bridlington! He's waiting for you! He wouldn't come upstairs. He says he must see you alone."

"I won't see him. It's no use, Lucy." And then reproachfully, "I did think I could trust you——"

"I'm afraid you'll have to see him, dear."

"I'm determined never to see him again. Go down and tell him so."

And then all at once Angel did see Brid again. His stalwart figure filled up the narrow kitchen doorway.

He said nothing, only looked at her. Then, taking one stride to where she was standing, he gripped her right hand, led her into the lobby, and there in the darkness he lifted her up in his arms. He was a very strong man and her weight meant no more to him than if she had been a child.

When they reached the last step of the ladderlike stairs he set her down very, very gently, as if she were something fragile that might break.

Once more he took her hand, and during the moments that followed she felt as if she was a leaf swept by the wind along the cobbled pavement of Queen's Close. And when they reached the paved roadway she saw it was empty save for his big open car.

Earlier in the evening there had been a gust of hot, heavy summer rain, and the car looked weather-stained and muddy in the wavering light cast by a dim street lamp. She also noticed, without knowing that she did so, that the man now by her side was wearing a rough old country suit and that at the back of the car were two suitcases.

"Haven't you been home?" she asked uncertainly.

"Of course I've been home. That is why I'm here."

And then he turned round. "Did you really mean never to see me again?"

There was such a strain of wrath in his voice that she felt suddenly what she had never been yet—this was, afraid of him.

In a very different tone he muttered, "Angel?" and held out his arms.

Her fear of him went as quickly as it had come. But a sense of humiliation and despair took its place. At a fearful cost to herself, and for his sake and for his good, she had given him up, feeling as if soul and body were being broken on the rack. And now, only because he was stronger physically than herself, he had compelled her to see him once more and was about to subject her to another and, if that were possible, a worse ordeal.

Hardly knowing she was doing so, she made a slight movement of recoil. At once his arms fell to his sides and in a cool, cold voice he said, "I hope you agree that you owe me an explanation for wishing to end our engagement?"

Their engagement? He had only once used that formal expression. That had been the day before yesterday, when speaking of his wish to have the announcement of their coming marriage made public.

"I thought I had explained it all in my letter." She tried to make her voice sound as cool and cold as his had done.

"I don't remember any explanation in your letter. But I may have missed it, for I only read it once through, and then I burnt it. I wasn't in the house five minutes."

"Why did you burn it?" Her voice was full of reproach.

He turned on her so savagely that she shrank back, again feeling what she had never felt, afraid.

"Supposing I'd been killed on my way here? I might have been, for I didn't really know what I was doing. Then that letter of yours might have fallen into anybody's hands. But I suppose the devil looks after his own."

Then he waited for a fraction of a second. "Will you come with me, or would you rather go back to Lucy? I don't want you to come against your will."

"You think I ought to come?"

"Of course I do."

"Then I will."

Always he had helped her into his car, making quite a ceremony of it. But this time he left her to get in alone, and they drove off in dead silence.

Now and again she would look at him. It was the first time she had seen his rigid, stern face look as it looked now. On they went, faster and faster, through the empty streets, for he chose narrow byways where there was little trafic and very few lights. After a time she became aware of where he was taking her. It was to Richmond park. Strange that he should not remember that all the entrances into the park are shut at nightfall. Sure enough, as they approached the great gates at the top of Richmond hill, and the car slowed down, a park keeper came out.

"The ranger's lodge, Sir James Nutt!" shouted Brid.

"All right, sir," and the gates swung open.

He looked round at her for the first time. "Jimmy Nutt is a good-natured chap; he wouldn't mind my taking his name in vain."

They drove on past the spot where they had turned off that June night that seemed to her a lifetime ago. But at last he ran the car up a grass path and stopped it.

"Do lift me down, Brid," she whispered in a strangled tone.

"I thought you hated my touching you?"

He so ached to hold her even for a moment in his arms that he did not wait for her denial. She looked up into his face, but he turned his head away and stared before him into the semi-luminous darkness of the summer night.

At last he said quietly: "I told you that I had forgotten what was in your letter, Angel. That was a lie. Although I only read it once, every word of it is burnt forever on my brain."

She opened her mouth but found she could not speak.

"You wrote that I know nothing about your past and that you're quite unlike the girl I thought you were. Is that really true?"

"Quite true."

What she was now going through was even more agonizing than she had thought it could be. She felt like a criminal being tortured before a cruel judge.

"I suppose you used to let men make love to you?"

She shook her head.

"Are you quite sure that wasn't what you meant?" His voice was choking with jealous agony and suspense, But she was only thinking of herself, not of him, now.

"Answer!"

"How dare you ask me such a question?"

"Why don't you answer it?"

"I did answer it—long ago."

His voice altered. "Was it the truth—then?"

"Of course it was the truth. But I also told you the exact truth when I wrote that I am different from the girl you thought you loved."

"Thought I loved? What d'you mean?" he said furiously.

"What I say. The girl you believed me to be then has never existed. The real girl, the real me—Reckless Angel——"

She stopped. Then he cried, "Go on!"

"I will go on. I have done things of which I am now very much ashamed, and things have happened to me which I hoped you would never know. But they've nothing to do with – with what you seemed to think just now. That you could have thought even for a minute that sort of thing about me proves that you never really cared for me."

"Cared for you?"

He seized her arm, swept her along to a place where it was darker, under some trees.

"I call God to witness that nothing will ever make any difference to my feeling for you. You're mine! D'you mean you don't know that?"

Did he care for her enough to understand? Did he? Did he? She made up her mind to take the risk.

He said resolutely, "Let's sit down here, and tell me as much as you want me to know."

"I want to tell you everything now, Brid."

He put his arms round her.

"I love you as you were, as you are, as you will be. You do believe that, don't you?"

As only answer she laid her head on his breast.

"May I kiss you, Angel?"

"I'd rather you didn't till you know what I've done."

"Tell me quickly, then!"

Nothing mattered to him now that he knew how baseless had been the dark suspicions which had shaken him to the depths of his being.

• • •

TO ANGEL there was, there had only been, one letter in the world. So she said desperately, "I wrote that letter, Brid, and——"

He clasped her yet closer to him. "How could you bring yourself to write saying you would never see me again?"

"I don't mean the letter you burnt," she said miserably. "I mean the anonymous letter that was printed in the Echo."

She sensed his amazement and dismay.

"I've something much more dreadful to tell you——"

"Don't tell me if you'd rather not," and he meant what he said.

"You have to know it—and it's very serious, Brid."

She waited a moment, then she unloaded herself of her dread secret. "I was in the Cardinal's room when Mrs. Woolryche was shot."

In a steady voice he asked a momentous question, and as he asked it he faced up to what her answer might be.

"Did you kill her, Angel?"

"No, but it is going to look as if I did."

"Tell me exactly what happened, dearest."

After he had heard the whole story of that night and morning she said, "If the man who fired that shot is caught he will certainly try to put it on to me."

"I agree."

"That was the reason why I wrote to you as I did, Brid. It would have been so awful if I'd been arrested after every one knew we were going to be married."

"Awful? The best thing that could come to pass!" he cried. "After all, whatever happens, we are now going to face it together. Why shouldn't we be married tomorrow? I can get a special license first thing in the morning."

"You must never speak to me of marriage, Brid, till all this fearful trouble is over. Will you promise me that?"

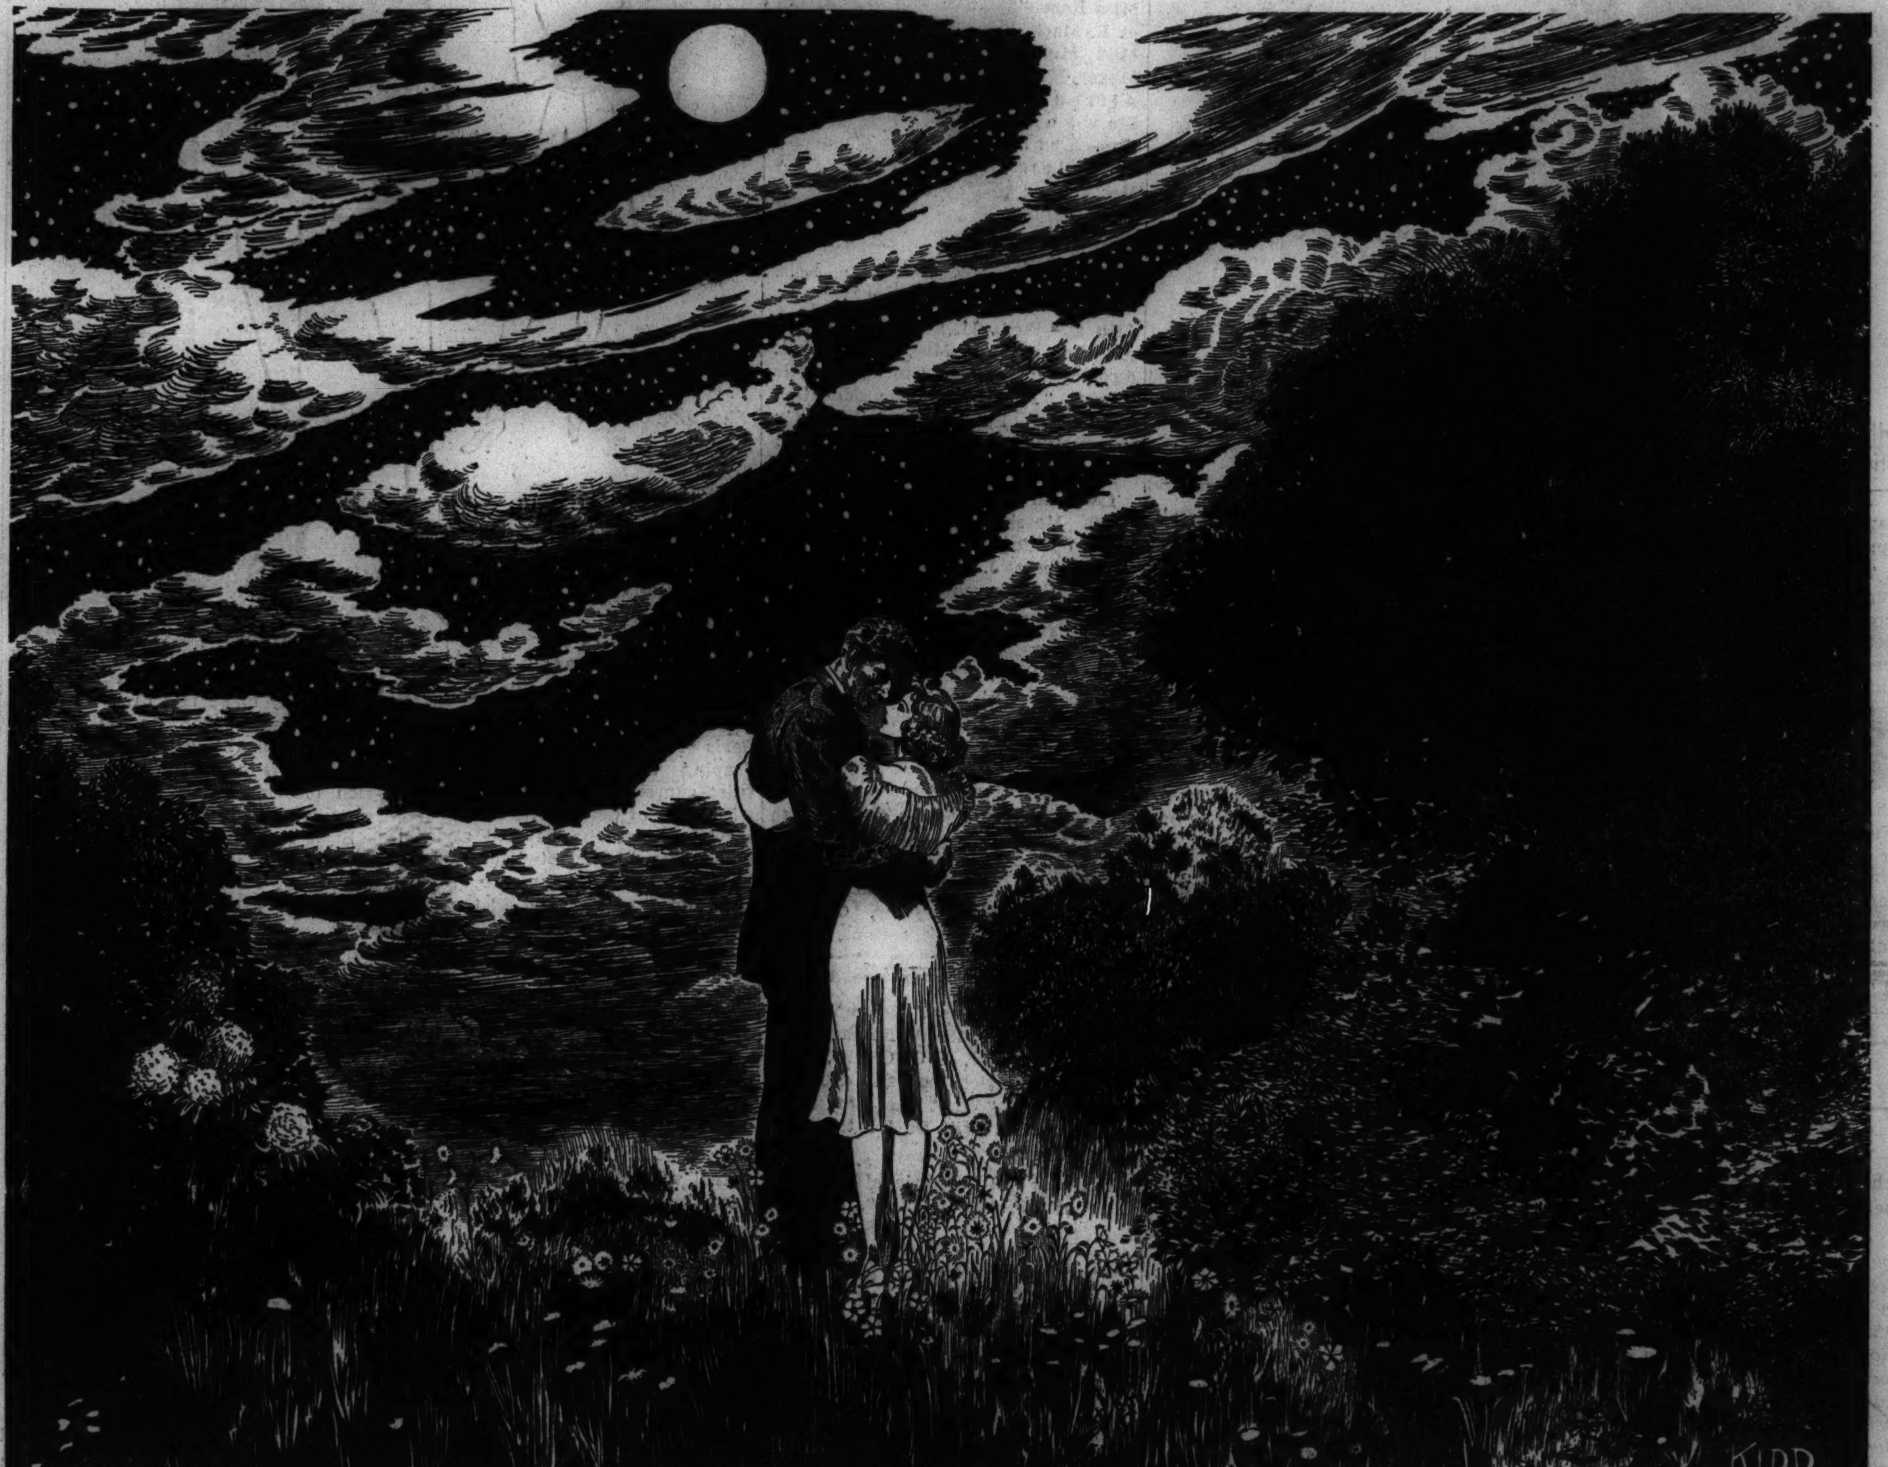
"I will." And then he said slowly: "I don't want to try to make you do anything you'd rather not do. But I wish you'd write out an account of all that happened that night exactly as you've told it to me and allow me to take it to Major Waite." He felt her stirring uneasily in his arms. "Didn't you like him? He seems to me quite a decent chap, darling, though on the cold side. But they have to be like that."

"I'll do what you ask, Brid."

"By the way, I know that Waite has that anonymous letter. He offered to show it to me once."

"I believe it's been burnt," whispered Angel in a strangled tone. And in her heart she said "Amen" to her lover's fervent "Thank God for that!"

(To be concluded.)



"I call God to witness that nothing will ever make any difference to my feeling for you. You're mine!"

Rough going today if we permit ourselves to gaze longingly at the deep end of whatever is before us. The week ahead has better background vibrations than the one just passed through, but keep a watchful glance on every possible detail.

Men Must Learn

Nature's laws have a way of going ahead and being themselves, with or without the knowledge and approval of mere humans here below. Men used to die helplessly in the past from diseases that are now understood and cured in a great majority of cases. This is not because nature's laws have changed, but because men have studied and learned those laws and how to act accordingly. Study nature.

Ethel Waters to Open Stage Season Oct. 2

By Cecil Smith.

"Mamba's Daughters," which opens the fall theatrical season at the Grand Opera house Oct. 2, adds a new and important chapter to the professional biography of Ethel Waters. Here in Chicago this gifted Negro performer has enjoyed an admiring following for quite a few years now. For some time before she rose to national prominence on the musical stage, habitués of south side night clubs had known the dusky earthiness of her voice and the sure aim with which she could project the mood as well as the music of a song.

In her first musical comedy assignments—"Africana" and "Rhapsody in Black"—she leaned toward the strident side, addressing her audience vehemently and flamboyantly, as though she wanted to secure the approval of her hearers by main force. Once her position as a top flight entertainer was sure, however, she began to tone down her style. This was an improvement, for without sacrificing either vividness or rhythmic drive, she now began to touch upon a poignant quality of suppressed sadness.

Neither Miss Waters nor any one else knew it, but the whole evolution of her career, from the cabarets of the prohibition era to the sophisticated milieu of "At Home Abroad," was to serve as a prelude to her first serious dramatic rôle.

The primitive character of Hagar in "Mamba's Daughters" [of which I shall attempt a more detailed preview next Sunday] created a casting problem for Guthrie McClintic, the director and DuBose and Dorothy Heyward, the authors. After weeks of worrying, Mr. McClintic hit upon Miss Waters as the only actress whose physical attributes and ability provided the necessary qualifications. It was a big jump ahead for Miss Waters, and a somewhat risky one. But New York gave its favorable verdict, and now we are invited to see whether we concur in the judgment.

Thirty-two Negro performers are in the cast of "Mamba's Daughters," as well as several white actors. Among them are Georgette Harvey, Fredi Washington and Willie Bryant. Perry Watkins, the only Negro scenic designer to provide the settings for a major production, created all the designs for the decors. Jerome Kern composed an incidental song for Miss Waters, "Lonesome Walls." From time to time the colored members of the cast will join in singing Negro spirituals.

The complete cast of "Tonight We Dance," by Marcella Burke and Gladys Unger, which opens at the Harris theater Oct. 9, has now been announced. In addition to Ruth Chatterton and Barry Thomson the cast includes Lila Lee, Cherita Bauer, Peter Holden, Shirley Poiret, Lyster Chambers, Jack Daniels, Marcel Journet, Robert Wallsten, Roy Johnston and Adelina Roatina. Auriol Lee, noted English actress and director, directed the production. Stewart Chaney designed the settings.

After long suspense, "No Time for Comedy" has confessed its intention of opening at the Harris theater on Nov. 6. This date unfortunately conflicts with the première of Maurice Evans' "Hamlet" at the Grand Opera house, but there is nothing to do about the conflict. In "No Time for Comedy," Katharine Cornell will be assisted by Margalo Gillmore, Francis Lederer and the New York cast.

Up in Milwaukee the Pabst theater drama festival marches into its fourth week tomorrow night with "To the End of Time," a new play by Myron C. Fagan, with James Kirkwood and Vaughan Glaser as featured players. It will be presented for a week, closing next Sunday evening.

Tonight at the Pabst theater Edward Everett Horton of movie celebrity appears for the last time in Benn Levy's "Springtime for Henry." At last Monday's opening, the audience bubbled with merriment. The comedy, which was given in Chicago some years ago, with Henry Hull in the chief rôle, is full of machine gun repartee, in which uninhibited sadism combines with high spirits. Mr. Horton, as a roué who falls transiently in love with a girl painfully addicted to "the decent thing," succeeds admirably in keeping his audience either in stitches or dangerously near to them all the time. He overplays and mugs fearfully, using the stock tricks and antics with which moviegoers are familiar—the absent-minded separation from reality, the slow response, the "double take," in which the meaning of a dirty dig sinks home only on second consideration. But he is terribly funny, and although most of us could see through him, I should be a liar if I pretended I had anything but an utterly hilarious time last Monday. Mr. Horton's three associates in the cast could be improved upon, but they managed to get by, gratefully allowing him to carry the show.

The week before last, the Pabst theater also did well by itself with a competent stock company performance of S. N. Behrman's "Brief Moment" [certainly not one of his most pointed comedies]. Glenda Farrell, the guest star of the week, delighted the patrons with her outgoing personality, her deft stage ability, and her volatile Irish temperament.

Diana Barrymore, daughter of John Barrymore and Michael Strange, has been engaged for the rôle of Ann in the Playhouse company production of "Outward Bound," now about to set forth on tour. Miss Barrymore's stage debut, a field day for reporters and photographers, took place in midsummer at Ogunquit, Me. One of the parts she essayed in her very first summer of professional acting was that of the heroine of Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet." "Outward Bound," with Laurette Taylor, Florence Reed, and Bramwell Fletcher in principal rôles, is on Chicago's fall schedule. It seems likely, therefore, that John Barrymore and his daughter will be appearing concurrently on Chicago stages.

A week ago "Leave It to Me," which we are awaiting as the first musical of the new season, wound up its New York engagement, which had been interrupted by a summer vacation and Sophie Tucker's focal part in the actors-stagehands' controversy. Before beginning its road career the Cole Porter musical will lay off once more, while the authors, Sam and Bella Spewack, rewrite portions of the book. Current events being what they are, audiences on the road will be warned that the once topical satire is no longer to be considered up to the minute. Events in Europe race so fast that topical references are out of date before they reach the footlights. Biggest contemplated change in the book: The character of Stalin is being dropped outright. When the rewriting is done, "Leave It to Me" will reopen in Philadelphia, probably on Oct. 16.

"The Farm of Three Echoes," Ethel Barrymore's new starring vehicle, announced as a Theater Guild-American Theater society attraction, will be unveiled at Princeton, N. J., Oct. 21. Arthur Hopkins has joined in the production with Victor Payne-Jennings, producer of last year's "White-oaks." For Miss Barrymore's supporting cast, only Ann Dere and Dean Jagger have been mentioned so far.

The Jack and Jill Players' Juvenile Theater Guild opens its second season in the Civic theater Saturday morning, Nov. 4. The first play, to be given every Saturday morning and Sunday afternoon in November, will be "Ali Baba." In December the young players will present Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Pirates of Penzance," and at Christmas time Dickens' "A Christmas Carol." Marie Agnes Foley is the successful director of the Jack and Jill players.

Continuing under the direction of James Bradley-Griffin, the Uptown players will open their season Oct. 13 and 14 with J. B. Priestly's ingenious drama, "Dangerous Corner." These performances, as well as the later ones in the year's schedule, will be given at the Woman's Club theater. The Uptown players have just moved their office to more spacious quarters in the Fine Arts building.

The great Bill "Bojangles" Robinson, mayor of Harlem and tap dancer extraordinary, concludes his engagement in "The Hot Mikado" at the New York fair Oct. 30. Michael Todd, producer of the much publicized swing jamboree on themes by Gilbert and Sullivan, is at work mapping out a post-exposition tour for Mr. Robinson and the show, which may include Chicago.

Not that we are going to see it, but the complete cast for Dwight Deere Wiman's new road company of "I Married an Angel" will probably interest those who saw the musical last spring. Dennis King, Vivienne Segal, and Karen van Ryn [Vera Zorina's successor, drawn from the Jooss ballet] will be starred. Others in the cast, mostly new to it, include Bobbe Arnst, Norman Roland, Dan Dailey Jr., Charles Laskey, David Jones, Isabelle Kimpal, Maude Howard, Will Geary, Diana Gaylen, Evelyn Lafferty, Marcella Howard, and Elizabeth Rutherford.

Down in St. Louis they like the summer operettas given in Forest park by the St. Louis Municipal opera. A ten week season, in which only four out of 87 performances were canceled because of rain, drew a total of 686,045 customers. The season's best draw was "On Your Toes," which attracted 63,383 patrons in seven nights. Lovers of higher culture will be pained to discover that "The Bartered Bride," which contains the best music heard all summer, interested the next to smallest aggregate audience.

Another actress who will be living in Pullman cars for a while is Cornelia Otis Skinner. This season she is returning to the monodramas which made her famous. At the same time she is writing a comedy about American tourists in Mexico.

RESUMES STAGE CAREER

Having spent more than a decade acting in motion pictures, Ruth Chatterton is at last resuming her stage career. On Oct. 9 she will open at the Harris theater in a new comedy by Gladys Unger and Marcella Burke called "Tonight We Dance."

Vaudeville

At the Chicago theater stage entertainment is being furnished by Johnny Burke, Everett West, Lathrop Brothers and Lee, Rollow and Verna Pickett, and A. Leon Adrian and the orchestra. On the screen is "The Old Maid," with Bette Davis and Miriam Hopkins. Beginning Friday, the stage show will feature two screen luminaries, Betty Grable and Eddie Rochester, colored comic.

Buster West and Lucille Page, with their "Fleet's In" act, head the vaudeville bill at the Palace theater. Other featured artists are Sibyl Bowan in "The Sketch Book," the Monroe Brothers in "Tramping Along," and the Chester Hale girls in new routines. "In Name Only," with Carole Lombard, Cary Grant, and Kay Francis, is the screen attraction.

Another "battle of swing" is in progress on the stage of the State-Lake theater, where "Fats" Waller and Muggsy Spanier are both to be heard and seen. Additional vaudeville features include the Four Warners, Gloria Faye, and Jack Irving. Nancy Kelly and Randolph Scott are starred in the current film, "Frontier Marshal."

At the Rialto theater Hinda Wausau heads the list of performers in the stage revue, "Hindu Belles." Among the many other lovely beauties appearing in the production are Peaches, Ethel De Veaux, Petite Carroll, and Carol Lord. On the screen is "Hawaiian Night," with Mary Carlisle and Johnny Downs.

Military specialties in honor of the visiting American Legion form an important part of the "Continental Gambols," to be seen at the Oriental theater. Star of the revue is Jack Fulton, radio singer. He is assisted by Sid Page and company, the Four Lavernes, Everett Sanderson and Nanon, Florence Hin Low, Frank Madden, Verne Buck, and the twenty-four dancing sweethearts. "Behind Prison Gates" and "Good Girls Go to Paris" are the motion pictures to be seen.

Symphony Will Head Brilliant Year of Music

By Edward Barry.

This is a preview of Chicago's 1939-'40 music season. An attempt has been made to bring together in this one article the most important of the many announcements which have been made in these columns in the last several months. Enough information has been released to make it possible to sketch out in broad lines, at least, the coming year of music.

The most important single enterprise is, of course, the Chicago Symphony orchestra. Between mid-October and late April Orchestra hall will hear no less than 88 concerts by this organization. Frederick Stock will assume the bulk of the year's conducting duties, with Hans Lange, the orchestra's associate conductor, taking a few of the programs. Such guests as Serge Prokofieff, Igor Strawinsky, and Georges Enesco will also occupy Orchestra hall's podium for concerts or portions of concerts.

Of the twenty-five soloists engaged for the season, the most important are Vladimir Horowitz and Artur Rubinstein, pianists; Fritz Kreisler, Yehudi Menuhin, and Nathan Milstein, violinists; Gregor Piatigorsky, cellist, and Rose Pauly, soprano. The program items already announced include Szostakowicz's Fifth symphony and Prokofieff's "Peter and the Wolf." Beethoven's Ninth symphony will receive one of its rare performances.

The Chicago City Opera company will present in the Civic Opera house a seven week season [Oct. 28 to Dec. 16] consisting of at least 50 performances of opera and ballet. A brilliant roster of singers has been announced, of which the most interesting single individual [mostly because we have never heard her] is Maria Caniglia, Italian soprano. Among the other potent names are Kirsten Flagstad, Helen Jepson, Dusolina Giannini, Rose Bampton, Edith Mason, Grace Moore, and Lily Pons, sopranos; Gladys Swarthout, mezzo-soprano; Enid Szantho, contralto; Jan Kiepura, Giovanni Martinelli, Galliano Masini, Tito Schipa, and Armand Tokatyan, tenors; John Charles Thomas, baritone, and Ezio Pinza, bass.

The last named singer will take the title rôle in the revival of Moussorgsky's "Boris Godounow," scheduled for Oct. 28, the opening night of the season. Other revivals and novelties are Wolf-Ferrari's "The Jewels of the Madonna," Verdi's "Falstaff," and Berlioz's "The Damnation of Faust," Charpentier's "Louise" will be offered at the Nov. 4 matinée with Grace Moore in the name part.

The San Carlo Opera company, having postponed its opening by a day, will begin the fall season at the Auditorium theater on Tuesday, Oct. 10, with "Aida." "Rigoletto" will follow on Wednesday, and on Thursday, Columbus day, there will be a special matinée performance of "Madame Butterfly," followed by "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci" in the evening. "Faust" will be given Friday, "Martha" [in English], and ballet divertissements on Saturday afternoon, and "Il Trovatore" on Saturday night. The second week will begin with "Carmen" on Sunday, continuing with "La Bohême" on Monday, "La Traviata" on Tuesday, "Aida" on Wednesday, "Rigoletto" on Thursday, "Tannhäuser" [in German] on Friday, "Madame Butterfly" on Saturday afternoon, and "Carmen" on Saturday night. "Il Trovatore" will bring the engagement to a close the following Sunday night, Oct. 22.

A few days after the close of the Chicago City Opera company's season the Ballet Russe will be here for its holiday season. The dates are Dec. 26 to Jan. 4, the place the Auditorium theater.

The university college of Northwestern university, which has been deep in the concert business for four years now, is planning a brilliant Auditorium theater series for 1939-'40. The first event is a concert by the Philadelphia orchestra, Eugene Ormandy conducting, on Oct. 31. This is followed at short intervals by the Littlefield ballet; Jascha Heifetz, violinist; the Boston Symphony orchestra, Serge Koussevitzky conducting; Sergei Rachmaninoff, pianist; Marian Anderson, contralto; General Platoff Don Cossack choir, and Helen Jepson, soprano. Although this concert series is given in conjunction with the university's history and enjoyment of music course, no lectures accompany the programs themselves and the general public may purchase season tickets or tickets for individual events.

An interesting shorter concert course, appealing especially to pianists and students of piano, is the musical arts series of the Adult Education council. Six Orchestra hall piano recitals, given by five established musicians and one well qualified newcomer, are packaged together and offered to the public at extremely low prices. Gitta Gradova, Rudolph Serkin, Artur Rubinstein, Thaddeus J. Kozuch, Alexander Brailowsky, and Walter Gieseking are the artists represented. Mr. Kozuch, a Chicagoan, won the right to appear in the cycle by emerging victorious from a series of auditions held by the Adult Education council last season.

The Woman's Symphony orchestra, Izler Solomon, conductor, moves to Orchestra hall this year for its entire four concert series. On the opening program, Oct. 16, Edith Mason, soprano, and Mario Chamlee, tenor, will appear as soloists. The concert of Nov. 21 is to feature Lois Bichl, the orchestra's first cellist, in a solo part. Plans for the third concert, Dec. 19, have not yet been completed. Alexander Kelberine, Russian pianist who has never appeared in Chicago, will be soloist at the fourth and last concert on Jan. 16.

A festival of ancient music is to give unusual interest to the early part of the season. Philip Manuel and Gavin Williamson, Chicago harpsichordists, will serve as nucleus of the musical groups which on Oct. 17, Oct. 24, and Nov. 1 will present in the Goodman theater programs of the music of Bach, Mozart, Rameau, Couperin, and a miscellany of English composers. Harpsichords, virginals, strings, and voices constitute the ensembles to be used. The bulk of the music which fills the three programs is virtually never heard in anything approximating its original form, and the sponsors of this ancient music festival claim quite justly that the opportunities here offered are unique.

The Goodman also will house the four concerts of the Saidenberg symphonietta, a string ensemble under Daniel Saidenberg's direction. The only announcement so far made concerns the dates, which are to be Oct. 29, Nov. 28, Jan. 9, and Feb. 7.

A series of morning chamber music concerts will be given at the Arts club by the Russian trio on Nov. 7, Nov. 21, Dec. 19, Jan. 16, March 5, and March 19. The trio consists of piano, violin, and cello, and is directed by Nina Mesirow-Minchin, pianists.

Since the concert cycles managed by Bertha Ott and Harry Zelzer were treated in detail only last Sunday, they have been relegated almost to the end of this article. Miss Ott leads off with a Fritz Kreisler recital at Orchestra hall on Oct. 15, then puts most of her emphasis on pianists. Myra Hess, Rudolph Ganz, and Serge Tarnowsky are among the artists scheduled to appear under her ægis.

Mr. Zelzer has by far the biggest dance and ballet program in the city. During the coming season he will bring to the Civic Opera house or the Civic theater Harold Kreutzberg, Martha Graham and her group, the Jooss ballet, the San Francisco opera ballet, the American Caravan ballet, and the Balinese-Japanese ballet of Devi Dja. He also promises soloists of the rank of Maria Kurenko, soprano; Simon Barer, pianist; Mischa Elman, violinist, and Jussi Bjoerling and Tito Schipa, tenors. Nelson Eddy and Jeanette MacDonald, two movie celebrities, find place on the Zelzer schedule.

Not everything in the music season is a part of series and cycles. The most important single events so far announced are the Nov. 26 concert of the New York Philharmonic-Symphony orchestra [Auditorium], and the Feb. 5 recital of Vladimir Horowitz, pianist [Orchestra hall]. The Greek opera "Perouze" will be given a Civic Opera house performance on Oct. 15.

Details of still other concert series—notably those of the Chicago Business Men's orchestra and the Civic Orchestra of Chicago—will doubtless be made public in the near future.

This season of 1939-'40 will be a good one.

SINGS WITH OSBORNE

The feminine contribution to Will Osborne's slide music is the voice of Lynn Burrows, whose "sweet swing" style was added to the orchestra at the start of its current engagement in the Marine room of the Edgewater Beach hotel.

From a Reader

In controversion of a review published in these columns of Albert McCleery's and Carl Glick's "Curtains Going Up," a survey of the little theater movement in America, the following letter reaches the drama desk:

Winnetka, Ill.

Do you share with Dr. Glenn Frank the belief that "the next great dramatic renaissance in America will come when the theater is recaptured from the producers by the people, when we become active enough in mind and rich enough in spirit to begin the creation of a folk-drama and a folk-theater in America"? If you do, I am wondering at the lack of enthusiasm in your brief review of "Curtains Going Up."

When I put down this survey of the little theater movement all over the country I felt that the renaissance of the theater is imminent. How can it be otherwise when fifteen million people are participating as creators and audience in this resuscitation of the living drama? From coast to coast, in towns and villages and cities, curtains are going up in stores, in old stables, in remodeled morgues [something symbolical here] and in modern Greek temples of drama that are the last word in theater design, built and supported by the communities that were determined to have them—why, the thing is stupendous!

It seems to me that this tremendous urge for dramatic expression that has swept over the country since "the road" surrendered to the movies is one of the healthiest, most significant cultural movements of our time. Who knows in what little town right now there may be a group some day to rival the Abbey Players, the Moscow Art theater? It was the Provincetown players who gave us Eugene O'Neill. And along with this cultural development goes something else. Percy Mackaye has said, "With community drama there is participation; there is creative expression; there is neighborly ritual. . . . Neighborliness in a little town may beget the neighborliness of nations."

I cannot agree with you that "Curtains Going Up" is given to "an over-generous amount of backslapping." The authors certainly have not attempted to evaluate the performances of the two hundred little theaters whose brief history they present. But they have told in a highly readable way of their zeal, their persistence against great odds, their courage and their determination to keep alive the spoken drama. IRENE M. AFFLECK.

Sees Prospect Grow Brighter for Opera Here

By Cecil Smith.

For the last few weeks I have kept my typewriter in a state of suspended animation so far as the Chicago City Opera company is concerned. Several times I have been on the verge of writing one thing or another about its plans and hopes, only to reject the subject as being improperly timed.

Paul Longone, since 1933 the impresario of opera in Chicago, died suddenly last month, just before his projected return to this city to start final preparations for the fall season. Each of the last six seasons of opera in Chicago had been almost wholly of his planning. Now that he was no longer in charge, what would become of opera in Chicago?

The effect of Paul Longone's death upon the destinies of local opera seemed too far-reaching to permit light or uniformed treatment. Consequently I took the only safe course and said nothing until I had had ample opportunity to investigate the immediate operatic situation as thoroughly as possible.

Bereft of the services of his general manager, Jason F. Whitney, president of the opera company, quickly found himself besieged with the names of suggested successors to Longone. Many people, some with conceivable qualifications and some without, wrote and wired and telephoned their eagerness to lay themselves upon the altar of civic opera in Chicago, and even, if need be, to serve as general managers themselves. Other more prominent candidates modestly disdained to proffer their own names, while their friends and adherents sought to make contact with the opera management on their behalf.

With the 1939 season quite close at hand, Mr. Whitney and his colleagues of the operating committee were both harassed and confused by the deluge of proposals coming their way. They decided to take what now seems to me to have been a most normal course, and to appoint no successor whatever to Longone. A public statement announced that Mr. Whitney himself would take over managerial control of the company. A later press release named J. Charles Gilbert, already associated with the opera house property, as his assistant.

When these decisions were made public, some people feared that Mr. Whitney had bitten off more than he could chew. In the past, they pointed out, Longone had made virtually all artistic decisions. He had hired singers and conductors and he had cast all the operas. Mr. Whitney had signed the contracts, to be sure, but he preferred to let Longone's more extensive experience rule over his own opinions in most artistic matters.

WILL CONDUCT OCT. 31

Eugene Ormandy will conduct the Philadelphia orchestra when it opens Northwestern university's History and Enjoyment of Music series at the Auditorium theater on Oct. 31.

[Rembrandt Photo.]

Since I am trying to deal with the operatic situation with complete frankness, I may as well admit that I was one of the skeptics who wondered whether Mr. Whitney had acquired enough technical knowledge of operatic management to carry through the execution of a successful season. I think Mr. Whitney understood my mood. At any rate we soon found ourselves together in a luncheon table conference, the first of several conversations which have reassured me and given me optimism about the future of local opera.

Perhaps it was a difference in our native backgrounds, perhaps it was an insurmountable separation of temperament, but I never felt that I could get at or understand Longone's intentions or his methods of operation. I think I do understand a good deal of both Mr. Whitney's intentions and his methods of operation. And I believe that the prospect for opera in Chicago is brighter at this moment than at any time since the collapse of the elaborate Civic Opera organization. Every question I have asked, Mr. Whitney has answered straightforwardly and unambiguously, and I am convinced that he wishes to approach the opera public with equal candor and integrity.

Most of the 1939 season was planned by Longone before his death. He brought together the roster of singers and devised the schedule of performances for the season. He hired the conductors, stage directors, and technical men. It looks like a good season, with attractive revivals of such operas as "Falstaff," "The Jewels of the Madonna," and "Louise," with a strong personnel of leading artists.

Mr. Whitney will carry through this carefully devised season, and carry it through effectively. But much more important is the fact that he is already thinking about the 1940 season, and about permanent opera in Chicago. He is convinced that opera need not lead a hand to mouth existence here, and he is laying the groundwork for an opera company that can be more than a "flag station" for Metropolitan singers.

His vision of 1940 includes many significant changes. He wants to find a way to keep the leading singers in town throughout the season, to be on hand for more rehearsal times and to develop a sense of belonging to a permanent institution. He wants to hold impartial public auditions in the spring, so that winning contestants will have an entire summer to prepare their rôles. He wants to build up a strong, selective, and probably small, company of secondary singers, and to abolish the custom of handing out one or two insignificant rôles to a host of inexperienced and unproven young singers, just to propitiate as many clubs, groups, and vocal studios as possible.

To train his selective company of secondary singers he would like to find a stage director of the very finest capacity, and to give him several months to prepare the ensembles and the stage action of the forthcoming operas. To his company of resident, rehearsing principals and carefully trained secondary singers he hopes to add a refreshed chorus and a better prepared orchestra. With intelligent modern lighting to create illusions, simpler and more inexpensive new stage settings can replace some of the worn out old ones with greatly enhanced artistic effect. The company can plan costs on the basis of several years' operation, scattering its overhead expenses over a longer period.

In order to exonerate Mr. Whitney from any future charge of having promised all these reforms complete and unabridged in 1940, I must remind you that these are at present no more than the things he wants to do. To some extent better planning will bring better opera. But to quite a large extent only more money from guarantors and 100 per cent instead of 75 per cent houses can turn the trick. If the present season goes well—and there are many reasons to trust that it will—it will then be up to all of us to work together toward a real restoration of permanent opera in Chicago.

Notes of Music and Musicians

"Fierce Was the Wild Billow," by T. Tertius Noble; "Holy Art Thou," by Handel, and "I Sought the Lord," by Stevenson are the anthems to be sung by the Central church chorus under William Hughes' direction in Orchestra hall this morning. Selections by Faulkes, Russell, McAmis, Schumann, and West will be offered by the organist, Archer Lambuth.

Tonight, at 7:30 o'clock, the Metropolitan church choir, directed by J. Wesley Jones, will offer its first music festival of the fall season. Nelson W. Woodley, tenor, and Dorthea Ullman, coloratura soprano, will be the soloists. The concert will be held at the Metropolitan Community center, 4100 South Park way.

In connection with the national convention of the American Legion, meeting in Chicago this week, several contests will be held among bands, choruses, and drum and bugle corps today and Monday. Total prize money to be awarded amounts to over $5,000.

On Oct. 8 a new opera in English will make its appearance on the radio. Titled "Columbus," it tells the story of that noted mariner's first voyage across the Atlantic. A Hungarian archduke, Joseph Franz, said to be an authority on Columbus, has written the libretto, and the music has been supplied by his countryman, Eugen Zador. The radio performance will be the first anywhere. Among the participants will be Robert Weede, baritone; Jan Peerce, tenor; Lorenzo Alvari, bass; Martha Lipton, contralto, and the Radio City Music Hall Symphony orchestra, directed by Erno Rapée. Details as to time and station will be found on the radio page for Oct. 8.

According to New York papers, Sibelius week is being celebrated throughout the nation during the next seven days, but as far as we know most of the homage to the Finnish composer will be paid in the eastern metropolis. The highlight of the celebration will be an all-Sibelius concert on Thursday night in Carnegie hall, played by the NBC Symphony orchestra under the direction of George Schneevoigt, conductor of the Finnish National orchestra and close friend of the composer. Two movements from the "Lemminkainen Suite" will be given their first American performance at this occasion. "Lemminkainen in Tuonela" and "Lemminkainen and the Maid of Saari." The other two movements of the suite, "The Swan of Tuonela" and "The Return of Lemminkainen," are already quite well known in this country.

The Paramount motion picture studios have announced their intention to release next month a documentary short film concerning the Bennington School of the Dance, made during last summer's session of that organization at Mills college, Cal. The film was made by American Pictures, Inc., under the direction of a former member of the Bennington college faculty, Ralph Jester. It will appear under the title, "Young America Dances," and a thread of story is said to tie the various camera shots together. To what extent the noted members of the dance school's faculty—Martha Graham, Hanya Holm, Doris Humphrey, and Charles Weidman—appear in the film is not yet known.

To celebrate its sixtieth anniversary, occurring this season, the St. Louis Symphony orchestra is sponsoring a $1,000 prize contest for a new work by an American composer. The work must be of a symphonic nature and must not have been performed or published before. It should be not less than 10 nor more than 30 minutes in length, and the composer is free to choose the form of his composition. Contestants must be American citizens. Besides being awarded a monetary prize, the winning work will be given a performance by the orchestra at the end of the 1939-'40 season. Of the three judges to function in the contest, only two have been chosen—Vladimir Golschmann, conductor of the orchestra, and Rudolph Ganz, one of Mr. Golschmann's predecessors. The third judge will be announced shortly. All manuscripts must be submitted not later than Feb. 1, 1940, to the manager, St. Louis Symphony orchestra, Municipal Auditorium, St. Louis, Mo. Full details regarding the contest may be secured at the same address.

To those who may have become alarmed when it was stated in these columns last Sunday that Jan Kiepura, Polish tenor, had gone to join his country's army, we now address a word of comfort. When he offered his services to his native land at the outbreak of the war he was urged by the government to fulfill his artistic commitments in America. Mr. Kiepura has decided to do just this, and is now making his way to these shores.

The Austin Symphony orchestra of Chicago, organized last year, is seeking to expand during the new season and is looking for musicians who would like to play with the ensemble. Paul Vernon, director of several local choral societies and of the Cosmopolitan Symphony orchestra, is the conductor. The first rehearsal will be held at 8 o'clock on Oct. 5 at the Austin Academy of Fine Arts, 631 North Central avenue.

Good Morning!

Bad business—that of arranging other people's lives for them!

All the old philosophers say so, and you've probably found it out for yourselves—for most of us get the idea at some time or other that we could run things better than heaven. It's to be hoped that the realization of your human limitations was not brought home to you in the prolonged and tragic fashion which becomes the lot of Delia Lovell.

It is through Delia that her cousin, Charlotte Lovell, becomes an "old maid." And thereby hangs a most dolorous tale.

This picture, adapted from Edith Wharton's book and Zoe Atkins' play, stars Bette Davis; but I'm inclined to agree with another reviewer who found that Miriam Hopkins almost stole the show. Miss Davis' work often seems stereotyped—Miss Hopkins' never so. The latter's facile performance is a beautiful thing to see and invests the picture with the glamor which has made it "box office." [I think.] Neither characterization is sharply etched, however. There is a blurring that leaves the observer unconvinced and dissatisfied.

The opening scenes take place during the war ridden days of 1861 in a sumptuous home, where Delia Lovell is about to be married to one Jim Ralston. Married, not to the man she loves the best, but to him she thinks it's best for her to marry. He to whom her heart really belongs had gone away two years before and not been heard from since; and Delia has made up her mind that she will provide herself with what every woman wants—a mate, a home, and children. . . .

A telegram is handed to her. Clem—that's the chap who had gone away—is coming home—that day. . . .

What to do! Her cousin Charlotte—who, unbeknown to anybody, loves Clem, too—volunteers to meet him at the station and break the news. . . .

Well, the long and the short of it is that Charlotte essays to comfort Clem—who, shortly, goes away to war, never to return. And there comes a little Clementina, born while Charlotte is on a trip out west, ostensibly to recover from supposed lung trouble. . . . She returns to establish a home for foundlings—in order that she may have her own baby with her without arousing suspicion. . . . And then—she becomes engaged to Joe Ralston. . . .

Delia learns the truth; Delia, who had never stopped loving Clem; Delia, whose heart is torn with jealousy by the knowledge that her cousin, and not herself, is mother to the child of the man she had longed to marry. Delia will not permit Charlotte to wed her brother-in-law. Delia will arrange it so that she shall have in her own home the child she wishes were her own. . . .

And eventually her old maid sister and Tina become inmates of her house. By now Delia is a widow. To Tina, as to her own children, she is the adored "Mummy." "Aunt Charlotte," bitter and gray—sharper of tongue to Tina than to the other children, that Tina may never guess the truth—is housekeeper and thorn in the sides of all. . . . Delia has evolved this Lady Frankenstein—and Delia has her to live with. . . .

A fine supporting cast, splendid staging, costuming, and photography, and most intelligent direction and dialog lend distinction to the piece.

See you tomorrow.

Rodgers and Hart.

Gladys Hurlbut has been engaged by Dwight Deere Wiman to supply the book for the forthcoming Rodgers and Hart musical comedy in which Vera Zorina will be starred. The authoress has not been represented on Broadway since the days of "By Your Leave." This season, besides the musical comedy, she will see her play "Ring Two" produced by the eminent George Abbott. Likewise, the composer and lyric writing team of Rodgers and Hart will have another show reach New York this year. Their second item is known as "Too Many Girls."

First Performance.

On Oct. 26, 27, and 29 Josef and Rosina Lhevinne, distinguished two piano team, will play a Mozart concerto in F major for two pianos with the New York Philharmonic orchestra at Carnegie hall. This is believed to be the first performance of this work in America. Mozart originally wrote the composition for three pianos and then rearranged it himself for two.

Garfield Returns

Absent from Broadway since he appeared in "Golden Boy," John [or Jules] Garfield is expected to return this season in a production of Albert Bein's "Heavenly Express." Kermit Bloomgarden, either by himself or in association with the Group theater, will present the play, Robert Lewis will direct, Boris Aronson will do the scenery, and a number of players from the Group will participate in the acting. A fantasy about hobos and the railroad, the Bein play has been on the verge of Broadway production several times. Lee Shubert, Eddie Dowling, Delos Chappell, and others have had options on the script. Experimental productions have already been given of the work at Scarborough, N. Y., the Hedgerow theater, Moylan-Rose Valley, Pa., and the Cleveland Playhouse.

Fiske Opens; Colony Club Steals Show

The Dwight Fiske who made his fall debut at the Colony club last week had been here before, but the Colony club that made ITS debut at the same time hadn't, and it stole the show.

During a long dark summer Hanns Teichert and a flying squadron of decorators tore out walls, renovated garages, moved kitchens, and applied paint with artistic hands. They came up with a lavish room in smartly modern decor. Teichert's symbolic murals of famous world colonies form the motif of the powdered copper and chartreuse room. Indirect ceiling lighting of complimentary "surprise pink" completes a setting that is no more like the old Colony than was Fiske's opening performance like his triumphs of last winter.

The Fiskal policy of entertainment, illustrated by such Satyrnalian sonnets as "Mrs. Pettibone," or "Ida, the Wayward Sturgeon," has always been to skip leeringly and hilariously around the edges of the mud puddle. When Mr. Fiske wrote the ill-advised "Dr. Cinnamon" and "Mrs. Webster" which featured his opening performance, he fell in.

Lew Fidler's swing band is back at the Colony, alternating with a sparkling rhumba orchestra new to Chicago — Fernando Canay's. Chef Henri is again in charge of the kitchen. Promised for future entertainment are Tony and Renée DeMarco on Oct. 6; Cross and Dunn Nov. 3, and Sophie Tucker Dec. 1.

That man from the madhouse is here again after nine years of banishment to outlying clubs. It was that long ago that Ralph Cook amused downtown Chicago with his antics as a Texas Guinan comedian, and now he is the star of the fall opening show at Harry's New Yorker. Cook is the only perpetual motion machine no one ever tried to get a patent on, and his zany zeal as an emcee puts the New Yorker show over at a fast clip. When "Cookie" isn't hypnotizing a necktie into rising out of a brass cuspidor to the silent wail of a plumber's plunger, Florenza, Eva Bastien or Jackie Cornell are doing exotic dances of varying interest; Betty Atkinson is doing a neat little song and dance; Cecil Blair goes into an acrobatic routine; tall, blonde Virginia Gibson is singing; or the Winnie Hoveler girls are performing some well conceived and neatly executed dance ensembles. Nino Renaldo furnishes the music.

A compact and effervescent little floor show, backed by the music of the Biltmore Boys and their orchestra, is the current contribution of the Stevens hotel's Continental room to Chicago's night entertainment program. The Biltmore Boys superimpose a pleasing musical pattern upon a foundation of good rhythm, with danceable results, and Louise Martell, a Texas girl, takes good care of the straight vocals.

New shows last week:

Harris and Shore, comedy dance team that had a popular run at Chez Paree last winter, returned Friday to head a new supporting cast for Harry Richman and Abe Lyman's band. With them are Bob Williams and his performing dog, Red Dust, and the Royal Whirlwinds, a roller skating team. Both acts are making their debut at the Chez.

Boswelling the Bistros:

Earle Smith, five night a week accompanist for Maggi McNellis at the Buttery, spends a sixth evening across the street in the Pump room, where he and Al Pliner and their orchestra do the honors on John Kirby's Monday night off. . . . The McNellis, incidentally, will be known simply as "Maggi" in her New York engagement at the Monte Carlo. . . . As an antidote to war blues, Milt Herth, now in his fifteenth week in the Hotel La Salle's Blue Fountain room, swings his organ music to such nonsensical tunes as "The Little Man Who Wasn't There," or "Churchmouse on a Spree," or "Big Dipper." . . . The Edgewater Beach will keep Will Osborne's slide music in the Marine Dining room until Oct. 14, when Bill Bardo comes in for four weeks. Bardo will in turn give way to an Edgewater Beach product, Ted FioRito. . . . Nick and Vicki Collins, tap team, are doing the "Poet and Peasant" in the Hotel Sherman's Dome bar. . . . Sights in the groove: Harry James [Panther room] and Jimmy Dorsey listening to Muggsy Spanier and Billie Holliday in the Off-Beat room of Three Deuces. Spanier, incidentally, is making a stage appearance at the State-Lake this week, and will follow with a midwest tour before returning to the Hotel Sherman. Jimmy McPartland replaced him in the Off-Beat room. Roy Eldridge is due back there in a few weeks.

Do High School Pupils Analyze on Sound Basis?

Should your children attend a college or a university? Practical information which can help you select the best school for your sons or daughters is given in the book, "Higher Education," by Dr. John Evans of THE TRIBUNE. *Get your copy at either of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, or at Tribune Tower, 435 North Michigan avenue. By the Rev. John Evans.

Can a capacity for critical thinking about social problems be developed in high school and preparatory school students? This is a question held to be sufficiently moot at Cornell university to call for a three year study to find the answer. Moreover, the university obtained a grant from the general education board to pay for the studies.

The complaint is frequently made against leaders of various youth movements that the youngsters are merely regimented into various opinions along social, economic, or religious lines; that hero worship of the 'teen age makes a follow-the-leader technique almost inescapable for the young folks. To join a big parade is to put the capacity for critical thinking in the ice box. And what normal youngster is not susceptible to the big parade?

But believing that the welfare of a democratic state depends upon the capacity of its citizens to form independent judgments on a rational basis—and, if necessary, fall out of stride with the parade—Cornell became interested in developing methods and materials which will contribute to this end. The materials to be used in this experiment will consist of content around problems at present included in the high school social studies curriculum.

To train the pupil in critical thinking these materials will be arranged to encourage him to evaluate evidence and draw conclusions.

The experiment will seek to discover not only whether modifications can be made in the soundness of judgments arrived at by the pupils, but also whether a capacity for critical thinking so engendered will manifest itself in out-of-class and even out-of-school situations.

General direction of the experiment, both as to preparation of materials and supervision of teaching in coöperating high schools, will be in the hands of Prof. Frederick G. Markham of the history department and Prof. Howard R. Anderson of the graduate school of education. After the first year of preparation of materials, preliminary tests of their effectiveness will be made during the second year.

The final year of the experiment will be marked by cumulative tests which will eventuate in first hand studies of whether or not there has been a transfer of the pupil's in-class experience to his out-of-class experience.

Profs. Markham and Anderson contend that power in critical thinking, in the final analysis, can be said to have been truly developed only if it functions in everyday life. They add that the pupil needs capacity for critical thinking to vote wisely in school elections and to interpret what he hears on the radio or sees in the motion picture.

"Trained to react critically when reading the printed materials appropriate to social studies classes, a pupil comes to use the same technique when reading newspapers and magazines," Prof. Markham declared.

The university reports encouraging results of similar methods used in the university itself during the last few years.

Steel 'Hair'

Joseph Primavera, violin maker of Philadelphia, recently brought forth a violin bow made of stainless steel "hairs." The conventional bow is made up of approximately 110 selected hairs from the tails of Siberian horses. For a long time experimenters have attempted to produce bows of metallic hairs, using silver, aluminum, steel, and other metals, all without success. Mr. Primavera, himself, has spent at least ten years trying various alloys before he hit upon the special stainless steel wire, or "hair," which he uses in the perfected bow. The "hairs" are one two-thousandths of an inch in diameter, and about 150 of them are used for each bow. Oddly enough the new bow weighs only one-third as much as the ordinary one. The value of the new discovery lies in the uniformity with which the new bows can be constructed.

World to Honor Woman "Ahead of Era"

By Betty Browning

SHE started life a red-haired tomboy who fought with her fists those who teased her about her hair. A few years later she broke off her engagement because, as she humorously put it, her fiancé "has the will of a Napoleon, I have the will of a Queen Elizabeth; when an immovable meets an indestructible object something has to give way."

At 32 she became the first woman college president. She resigned in a clash over principles with her former fiancé, who coincidentally had become president of Northwestern university, with which her college was connected.

Then she turned down offers of distinguished teaching posts to work for an unpopular cause—and literally to go hungry. Within ten years, in the face of ridicule and powerful opposition, she had won support for her cause in more than fifty countries.

A daughter of pioneers, she pioneered in her turn for temperance, woman's suffrage, the eight-hour day, a living wage, and arbitration of labor disputes—in an era when to most people they were merely strange expressions.

These are some of the reasons why the hundredth anniversary of Frances Willard's birthday next Thursday will be celebrated the world over. Most of the 450 American schools and institutions named for Miss Willard are observing the aniversary. The Congressional library at Washington,

Traveler Tells of Race with War

By Cousin Eve

NEW YORK.—Joy unspeakable took me for a ride when we went aboard the Ile de France at Havre. In our race with war we seemed to have won. M. Mercier, now at the front, had allotted us a cabin on A deck and we were apparently all set. Our luggage, unlike tons of others, was intact and neatly piled about, and there was nothing but to sail at the appointed hour, 2 o'clock.

Grand Duchess Marie was next door, and after she was safely in with cameras and luggage she asked me to lunch and we went down to the vast gray-and-white marble salle à manger. Baron Hubert Le Jeune, an interesting French friend of hers, joined us at table. The baron, a slight, dark man, is the general American representative of the French national railways, and he seemed entirely depressed, if not sunk. The grand duchess was more lovely than ever that day under a wide-brimmed red-and-white sailor. And she, too, was transported with ecstasy at being on the Ile de France, so I couldn't see why the baron was so low in his mind. However, his news was that Germany had invaded Poland at 11 o'clock, and the fat was in the fire. France surely would seize the Ile for war purposes, and we would be dumped out on French soil. So, after all, I had lost the race and war had won, as usual.

We ate very little lunch. The grand duchess whispered that she hadn't kept a centime in French money, and my 120 francs wouldn't last long, so we laid a few plans for the future, which looked at this time extraordinarily black. There were already 2,000 American passengers and about 200 pet dogs aboard ship, and with complete mobilization all the dock hands and porters would probably vanish, so there was a fat chance that we would have to be evacuated with what we could carry.

There was a terrific problem what to leave and what to take, for it was hopeless to expect ever to find our precious belongings again. So our heads were buzzing with thoughts about absolute necessities. The weather was very warm, but it would soon turn cold, and who could say where we would land?—perhaps in some rude village without the ordinary comforts of life.

Grand Duchess Marie and I knew Captain Thoreux of the Normandie, who has a house on the heights at Havre. And we planned to find him, knowing he would welcome us until we could reach the Norman châteaux of our friends. When we had mentally got ready for evacuation, which would be a costly, exasperating, and rather heartbreaking matter, word came that the Ile de France would sail soon. There was, however, no sailing hour, and rumor was that we might be delayed three days. Blue coated poilus with bright bayonets guarded all the gangways, so no one could leave the boat. Then began the most nerve wracking time of all—war was upon us, and Havre with its vast oil and maritime stores would be blown out of the water—and we were caged prisoners!

Race with War Described by Sea Traveler

But Baron Lejeune set our minds at ease about that. England, with the advent of war, would take over Havre and all of Brittany, and that afternoon a British admiral had come aboard with his staff, and it was certain that we would pick up 400 passengers at Southampton.

In the meantime, aboard ship everything was smoothly perfect. Deck chairs were out, delicious food was served, the service was beyond compare, and everything was ideal. Neither did it seem crowded. One had to pinch one's self to realize that war was in the offing, so quiet were the voices of the stewards, so absolute the discipline.

But for the terrific wait of 26 interminable hours, it might even have been enjoyable. Suddenly, at 3 o'clock, a crowd of new passengers and lap dogs came aboard on the promenade deck, those who had tickets on the Normandie, and also a travel stained group that had been turned back to Geneva when the Savoia had "engine trouble."

I got to know the seascape and harbor at Havre almost as well as the Lord's prayer, but the only real discomfort was at night when stewards slapped great iron pancakes over our portholes. Then the huge ship was in utter blackout except for lugubrious blue lights in the corridors, on deck, and with a faint glow in the lounge. All this care suddenly made me remember U-boats and the hideous submarine warfare, which is the favorite German method. Between a choice of that and air raids over the oil tanks and maritime things surrounding us, there didn't seem to be much choice. But we couldn't flee our lovely Ile de France. So there we were, and there we stayed. I read books at once, and tried to forget, while Grand Duchess Marie decided that drowning after all might be a rather pleasant experience.

The purser, meanwhile, was having his troubles. Strong men came and wept in his office. They wanted freedom and were willing to pay for it, to cancel—but sail they must on a neutral boat. There were women, too, making odd excuses to buy precious liberty. One said she had been fitted only once on her important winter clothes and wanted to go back to Paris and have more fittings. Another had left all her jewels in the Ritz safe and longed to return for them. But the purser was adamant, and all passengers had to learn then and there the virtues of patience.

Our day and hour of sailing had been advertised all summer, and was perfectly well known to the U-boat commanders, so delay, after all, was imperative. Among the late passengers who came aboard were Lady Mortimer Davis, who has a wonderful penthouse apartment in Paris, Place des Invalides, rue Fabeet. Her silver and jewels she had carted hastily to the bank, the war took her housemen, and her French women servants had all vanished to the country, so there was nothing for it but to return to Montreal.

We sailed at tea time for Southampton. The rumor was that 400 Americans would climb aboard. At 10 o'clock we were edging, or rather inching, into Southampton water in darkness as dense as Egypt's blackest cat. Capt. Fontaine asked me afterward how did I enjoy the hair raising details of this adventure. The Ile de France was entirely blacked out, and how the pilot found us one can't imagine. Not the faintest hoot or whistle did we give, but the pilot boat bore straight for us. They shouted a word of English to the captain's bridge, then cried "cheerio," and steamed away. The harbor was mined in every direction, and we were anchored seven hours for transfer of passengers. They came out in four tenders at 5 a. m. and were transported with gratitude. They had waited 12 hours on the dock, and owing to our blackout thought we had sailed without them. Walter Edge, former senator and ambassador to France, came on with his family, and Gregor Piatigorsky with his; also Nathan Milstein, the violinist.

Sixteen women found neat beds on the library floor. Forty men had cots in Grand Guignol, the children's theater. There were beds on the starboard covered deck, in gymnasium, and many who were thankful for deck chairs with soft pads and warm blankets. A monstrous thunderstorm raged all night, and there were none to say if lightning and mines are affinities. We sailed at dawn. Chamberlain declared war on Germany at 11 a. m. France followed suit, and we were 3,000 nautical miles from safety, in a sea dotted with U-boats.

Where the captain navigated us we never knew. Our speed was tremendous; the waves were large and black. From the mild channel weather, it became cold and wintry. Heavy mists lay over the face of the waters and instead of the usual deep blast of the fog horn, came a mere falsetto hoot that would have disgraced a ferry boat.

There were no records of the day's run, nothing to go by.

There was a boat drill which passengers took seriously on Monday at 4 o'clock. All the members of canot 24, including the grand duchess, Mrs. McKay LeRoy and the Piatigorskys were there. And they all learned to adjust the "brassieres de sauvetage" as they call life preservers.

There were many collegians among the refugees, and they danced a bit after dinner in the dusky lounge. For oldsters, the lowbrow game of bingo was organized. People who were traveling with portable radios had an earful until they were confiscated.

There was great enthusiasm among the passengers about the magnificent way the captain, officers, and crew carried on, as if it were an ordinary crossing in the line of duty. One day the grand duchess decided to do something about it and let this gratitude take tangible shape. She is an ardent Francophile and knowing that all of the ship's personnel would return shortly to France for war service, she planned a tactful collection. The men to be benefitted were those engineers, firemen, stokers, electricians, sailors, cooks, and helpers who never share passengers' tips. In their absence their families would be evacuated from Havre to the Midi, and perhaps many of them never would meet again.

Grand Duchess Marie formed a small committee, including Walter Edge, Lady Davis, Mrs. Frank Mason, M. Piatigorsky, Felix Wildenstein, the art collector, and the writer. The grand duchess sat in a secluded salon with a huge mahogany sea chest in front of her on a table. It had a slit, and while she knitted, smiled charmingly upon the procession of donors, the great sum of 85,000 francs was given in three hours.

The next day, the grand duchess and her committee were invited at noon to take the aperitif with the captain, whom we never had seen during the perilous voyage. We were then in American waters, having passed Nantucket light and everybody was breathing more freely. Capt. Fontaine made the nicest little speech of gratitude, then gave each of us a handsome bronze medal to remember the Ile de France by. Not that any one who crossed on that gallant ship is ever likely to forget her. Capt. Fontaine parried all questions as to joyride we had been having in the Arctic circles, and even laughed at me when I told him that according to the sun we had traveled southeast some of the time.

Early one day we had passed the Nieuw Amsterdam going east. This fast Dutch boat was trimmed up like a Christmas tree with great colored letters all the length of her great hull. Then we knew we were on the lines of travel. We ducked sharply into quarantine at night, after a day in jade blue waters and tiny wavelets, and never did quarantine look so delightful. Even the usually boring seance with the passport men seemed new and fascinating, specially as one of them grabbed my passport from me and slapped it onto a pile of passports 6 feet high.

"You can get it back from Mr. Hull," said he with a satirical grin. Even the customs men seemed to have more heart than usual and were uncommonly polite. I daresay they thought we didn't have time for much shopping in Paris, so we didn't get the third degree.

The first woman I met had crossed on a Dutch boat, The Statendam. In midocean they had come upon and picked up two life boats full of the crew of a freighter whose wreckage was floating nearby. The commander of the German U-boat had signaled the crew to come aboard for a drink and this is what he had to say before diving from the scene. "Stay right here and the Statendam will come along in a few hours and pick you up."

And so we came home after a summer on the brink of the volcano!

Woman Called 'Ahead of Era' to Be Honored

D. C., and libraries throughout the country, by resolution of their national association, are featuring books by and about her.

The grave of Miss Willard's mother in Rosehill cemetery, over which the daughter's ashes were scattered at her request, will be marked Thursday by the Chicago chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution. Miss Willard was a charter member of the national organization and of the Chicago and Fort Dearborn chapters. The Woman's Christian Temperance union, the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, the Illinois Woman's Press association, and Alpha Phi sorority, with all of which Miss Willard was vitally associated, will be represented. Mrs. Jacob F. Zimmerman, the Illinois Daughters' former state regent, will speak and Mrs. Edward W. Lewis, also a Daughter, will sing a hymn written by Miss Willard.

Two of the most picturesque celebrations will center in Evanston, Miss Willard's home during her most fruitful years, and in Churchville, the upper New York state town where she was born.

Willard week will be observed in Evanston with pilgrimages of school children to Rest Cottage, the two storied house with gables and "gingerbread" trimmings which is maintained just as it was when Miss Willard lived there. The bicycle she learned to ride in her fifties, true to her girlhood love of sports, still stands in the hall, as she might have left it last.

Dr. Ernest Fremont Tittle, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Evanston, which Miss Willard attended, will devote his sermon today to her. The Evanston Historical society has a special exhibit. Evanston newspapers are issuing commemorative editions.

The Woman's Christian Temperance union has arranged to hold its 65th annual convention this week at Rochester, N. Y., in order to visit its founder's birth place in nearby Churchville next Thursday. Most of the buses and taxis in the city will be commandeered to take the 3,000 delegates to the little house that now is a state shrine.

From this house Miss Willard's father, manager of a store, took his family to Oberlin college in Ohio, first co-educational college in the country, where he and his wife both studied, he with the ministry in mind. But ill health forced him, instead, to turn farmer, and brought him and his family by wagon and carriage to Wisconsin. To the farm near Janesville, where "Frank" Willard grew up and where as a child she persuaded her family to sign a temperance pledge and paste it in the family Bible, the W. C. T. U. members and others interested recently made a pilgrimage.

Climax of the seven day convention, which opens Wednesday, will be a dinner Thursday evening when representatives of organizations in which Miss Willard was a moving spirit will describe her contribution to each. This program will be broadcast on a coast to coast network. Listening in at anniversary celebrations held simultaneously throughout the country will be the 10,000 local units of the W. C. T. U. A majority of these Frances Willard herself organized in her untiring journeys about the country in the course of a single year.

Also on Thursday, throughout the world, units of this organization will hold special observances. Contrary to general belief, Miss Willard did not actually organize the Woman's Christian Temperance union. Her indignation at the treatment of the first women workers for temperance, interested her in the cause. The temperance movement began at about the time she resigned as president of the woman's college of Northwestern university.

Investigating with characteristic thoroughness, she visited leaders in the east, even, for the first and last time, entered a saloon with the intrepid temperance crusaders, knelt with them on the sawdust strewn floor, and led them in prayer. Then, with equally characteristic resolution, she adopted this cause in spite of the disapproval of family and friends, and went to work without a salary, trusting in the Lord to provide.

It was only after she became ill through overwork and undernourishment, and her brother protested, "You've put a chip on your shoulder and dared Omnipotence to knock it off," that his sister gave in and confessed to the temperance leaders that she was dependent on her own efforts for support. By return mail came a check for $100, and, Miss Willard commented humorously, "My faith was met upon the Heavenly Father's basis, not upon the one I had prescribed for Him."

When the W. C. T. U. offered her the national presidency at the first national convention in 1874, she refused it on the ground of inexperience. But she wrote its famous Declaration of Principles, which states, "We believe in a living wage, in an eight hour day, in courts of conciliation and arbitration . . ." and again: "We believe that God created both man and woman in His own image, and therefore we believe in one standard of purity for both men and women, and in the equal right of all to hold opinions and to express the same with equal freedom."

It was through her interest in temperance that Frances Willard espoused woman suffrage. She became convinced that only through the votes of women could their homes and children be safeguarded. That was her eloquent appeal as she spoke up and down the country.

At first her own organization rebelled at so revolutionary a proposition, but not for long.

As Susan B. Anthony, the great suffrage leader, expressed it, Miss Willard was "an unequaled educator of conservative men and women to a belief in equal rights." Soon temperance and woman suffrage were inextricably interwoven in the W. C. T. U.'s program.

With Miss Anthony she founded the National Council of Women, and became its first president. She helped to organize the original chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution in Chicago. She was a founder of the second chapter of Alpha Phi sorority, formed at Northwestern university, and later became national president.

She was a charter member of the Illinois Woman's Press association. The National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs was an outgrowth of her activities. She was one of the first women lay members to be elected to the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church. In her last years she was made a trustee of Northwestern university, which she had left with such painful regrets early in her career.

At the time of her death, in 1898, she was perhaps the most famous American woman. Her cause had been lifted from public scorn to world-prominence. Most of what she believed in and worked for was to be the proud achievement of later generations.

"There must be explorers along all pathways, scouts in all armies," she wrote of herself. "This has been my call from the beginning, by nature and by nurture."

Settlement Aid to Give Fashion Show Tuesday

By Judith Cass.

The auditorium of the New Trier High school, which recently was redecorated, will be spotlessly shining for its first big party, a fashion show the Winnetka board of Northwestern University settlement will give there next Thursday afternoon. Miss Virginia Ballard has been selected to take the part of the bride in the feature which always brings to a close the parade of fashions. Her attendants will include Miss Jean Wolcott as maid of honor and Miss Janet Musselman and Miss Ann Loeber as bridesmaids.

Miss Wolcott's mother, Mrs. Ryland A. Wolcott, and Mrs. William O. Coleman are giving a tea for the models and assistants on Wednesday afternoon at Mrs. Coleman's home in Winnetka. A trip to Sun Valley will be a prize at the show.

Mrs. Hugh Foresman is to have charge of decorating the tea tables in the auditorium. Assisting her will be Mrs. Arthur Sullivan and Mrs. Samuel McCaulley of the Winnetka Garden club and Mrs. Bentley McCloud of the Kenilworth Garden club.

Among those giving luncheons on the day of the show are Mrs. Donald Defrees, Mrs. Ernst Von Ammon, Mrs. George Booth and Mrs. John Hooker, whose party will be at the Indian Hill club. She will serve cocktails first at home.

One of the models, ushers, or other young women assisting at the show will have an opportunity to try her hand at being an air hostess, for arrangements have been made for one of the girls to be an assistant hostess on a flight to and from New York. She will have a stopover in New York to attend the fair, a college house party or a football game. Mrs. John L. Irving, pretty Patricia Forsythe Kelly until her marriage, will wear a hostess uniform at the show and will assist in the selection of the girls.

From a preview of the young women who are to take part in the Service club revue this fall, one would say that the performance will reach a new high in good looks. Thirty-six prospective performers, each with more than an average share of beauty, gathered last Tuesday at Miss Emily Goehst's to meet the Service club board.

Among those were several pretty buds of a season or two ago who finished their schooling last June and so are able to dance in the show for the first time. In this classification are Miss Georgette Hill and Miss Natalie De Clerque, tall and slim blondes; and Miss Sally Korrady, Miss Frances Orcutt and Miss Kathleen Kelly, vivacious brunets. Miss Kitty and Miss Evelyn Lawrence, debutante sisters who occasionally dress alike and who have a strong resemblance, will cause some confusion both behind and over the footlights, without a doubt.

Among the debutantes in the choruses will be Miss Caryl Harrison, Miss Anne Stuart, Miss Byrd Littlefield, who already is known by her long, flowing "glamor girl" type of bob; Miss Barbara Buchanan, Miss Virginia Skinner, Miss Mardo Pattou, Miss Elizabeth Stenson, Miss Caroline Floto, and Miss Elizabeth Gillespie.

Miss Jacqueline Wing, who played at the Coach House theater in Oconomowoc this summer with Miss Goehst, will be featured in a number of skits. Miss Frances and Miss Margaret Gethro, who are known to Mirror audiences, and Miss Jane Hailand, whose smile has created a furor among the board members, are other new faces. Miss Jean Holmes, Miss Lorraine Roach, Miss Joyce Cavanaugh, Mrs. William Pope, and Miss Elizabeth Stover are still others.

The revue will be the club's 25th annual one. It will be presented on the night of Nov. 4 at the Auditorium theater. Afterward the troupe, the audience, and other friends of the club will be invited to a cabaret in the grand ballroom of the Palmer House. The cabaret is one of the gayest parties of every winter. It was given in the Red Lacquer room last year and over 200 guests were turned away. In order to avoid such a disappointment this winter Mrs. George H. Shields III. and her committee have taken the larger ballroom.

The young men who will give their time to the revue this fall will meet the feminine members of the cast at a first rehearsal to be held the night of Oct. 3. Carl Bingham Jr. and Mrs. Robert A. Morris, the former Miss "Ibb" Tennant, already have written several new songs for the show.

Mrs. Richard A. Vanderwarker is to be the production manager. Others who will operate behind the scenes, leaving the glory and the curtain calls to the newcomers, are Miss Mary Lou Laird and Mrs. John Cameron, who are in charge of advertising; Mrs. Henry Sincere, Mrs. Peter Fortune and Mrs. John L. Irving, the ticket chairmen; Mrs. Robert Cavanaugh, the box chairman, and Mrs. G. Gaylord Olmsted Jr. and Mrs. John J. Goodwillie, who are in charge of publicity and billboards, respectively.

The newly decorated Gold Coast room of the Drake will have its first dancing party of the season on Saturday when the Alumnæ association of the Sacred Heart of Chicago and Lake Forest and the students of Barat college give a Watteau ball. Mrs. Cushman B. Bissell is chairman of the large committee in charge of the party, to which it is hoped every one will wear an appropriate costume. The proceeds will go to the scholarship fund.

At the Saddle and Cycle on Saturday night there will be a gay dinner-dance for the benefit of the North Avenue Day nursery. Mrs. Sidney S. Gorham Jr. is chairman of the committee that has planned the annual affair.

The Onwentsia also will be the scene of a jolly dinner-dance Saturday night when the Mill Creek Hunt will hold a subscription party there. It is a preliminary to the annual hunter trials on Sunday in Millburn. The trials will be held on fields owned by the Austin H. Niblacks and Mrs. Benjamin Leslie Behr.

Still another dinner-dance on Saturday will be one the Evanston-North Shore Smith club will give as a scholarship benefit in the Marine dining room of the Edgewater Beach hotel.

WILL WED JURIST'S SON

Mr. Wilson is the son of Chief Justice Francis S. Wilson of the Illinois Supreme court, and Mrs. Wilson. Miss Gruner is a graduate of Mary institute. Mr. Wilson is a graduate of Dartmouth. No date has been set for the wedding.

An Italian Villa in the Midwest Is Alta Vista

By Rose Cour.

Alta Vista, the summer home of Col. and Mrs. William Nelson Pelouze, at Lake Geneva, is arrestingly Italian. The architect, the late Howard Van Doren Shaw, was an ardent student of Italian villa architecture and undoubtedly considered the wooded hills about Lake Geneva similar to those surrounding many Italian lakes and felt that the setting was most appropriate for an Italian villa.

As one approaches the house from the woodland area of the estate, which is comprised of ninety acres, one suddenly becomes aware that the American scene has changed. Just ahead is a circular Italian "green garden," that enchanting combination of clipped green hedges, primly shaped evergreen trees, marble balustrades and benches, fountain and fish pool, and great stone jars and vases containing arbor vitae. Adding to the beauty of the garden is the rich green velvety sweep of well kept American lawn.

The garden façade of the house rises chastely from the green garden, unbroken by porch or other protuberance except the characteristic tiny Italian balconies of the second floor windows, stone balustraded, except the center balcony over the carriage entrance which is wrought iron. The grey plastered walls, the tile roof, the whole dignified structure has a quality of austerity and majesty.

The Italian influence is more than ever apparent in the high-backed monastery chairs that stand in the vaulted loggia and the wall light brackets which might have come out of an ancient Florentine villa. Just beyond the loggia is the "garden room," an arcadelike room that runs the depth of the house and opens with many long windows and French doors upon another vista of lawn and trees and blue lake beyond. This garden room, despite its cool neutral toned walls, black window casings and grey tiled floor, is neither gloomy nor cold as it is warmed into life by the lovely color of Chinese blue rugs, the rose clusters in the window drapes, the red and white gladioli on every table, the red geraniums growing in the numerous stone flower boxes, but most of all in the paintings that hang upon the walls.

There are deep dark colors in the picture of a Spanish cavalier that hangs above the piano, and more delicate colorings in the handsome three-quarter length portrait of Mrs. Pelouze on the east wall, but the bit of color that most catches the eye is the vivid red of the evening wrap in the portrait of Medora Pelouze, now Mrs. Bruce E. Adams. This portrait is on the west wall and overlooks the long loggia that runs the length of the house on the north side.

Other large paintings, all set in handsome deep gold frames, adorn the walls of the living room, which opens from the garden room, and the library, which adjoins the living room. Most of these are excellent copies of famous paintings found in Italian and French art galleries.

The most arresting picture in the room, however, is an oil painting covering most of the east wall. The subject is the trial of Mary Fisher, Quaker, during the Salem witchcraft delusion and was painted for Mr. Gale by T. D. Matteson, an artist well known in America almost a century ago.

This picture, as well as most of the others in the house, was among the articles saved in the fire that destroyed the first summer home owned by Col. and Mrs. Pelouze at Lake Geneva. This was the old O. W. Potter home, one of the earliest of the lake shore mansions built in the 1880s, and purchased by the colonel in April, 1919. Mrs. Pelouze, who was just recovering from a serious illness was moved from Chicago to the estate in June and in September, 1919, the house burned to the ground. It was impossible to save the building but by concentrating all efforts upon removing the household effects, most of the furniture and personal belongings of the family were carried out and deposited on the lawn in a great circle beyond the reach of the flames.

The new house was begun almost at once on the same site and was finished the following year. Contrary to the style of the old home, the new one was built to take full advantage of the lake views.

With all its look of an ancient Italian villa, Alta Vista has one touch that is purely and wholly American,—the stars and stripes that float from the giant white flagpole on the east lawn.

Art Season Still Convalescing from Summer

By Eleanor Jewett.

The art season definitly has not yet recovered from the summer holidays. There is little of interest going on in the various galleries about town just now. The clubwoman's bureau, Mandel Brothers, has had as active a summer as any of our galleries and it is still keeping the flag bravely flying. A new exhibit opened there on Sept. 19 to continue to Oct. 7.

It is an amusing and delightful exhibit, showing the work of at least two artists with whom Chicago is on pleasantly familiar terms. The entrancing sketches of children by Peggy Palmer Burrows need no introduction, and with her series of these Mrs. Burrows is showing a group of recent water colors and a few of her peculiarly illuminating caricatures.

Mary White Palmer [which makes this a "mother-and-daughter" show, Mrs. Palmer being the mother of the talented Peggy Burrows] is represented by a group of oils which includes flower studies, still life and portraits. Mrs. Palmer is a member of the All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts and her work is noted for its charm and the sensitive quality of the color.

The third exhibiting artist is perhaps a little less well known; she is Florence Gray, the sculptor. Miss Gray is an outstanding member of the Lorado Taft group. She is really a discovery of the late famous Chicago sculptor, for, when Mr. Taft visited the Duluth High school at one time, he was so impressed by the ability of this young student that he invited her to come to Chicago and work with his studio group. Miss Gray came and later worked with Albin Polasek at the Art institute and studied in Europe.

Florence Gray was represented in the Hall of Science at A Century of Progress Exposition and this year at the Golden Gate exposition in San Francisco she has thirty-eight figures of notable men in medical history. Her intensely interesting portrait head of Horace Mann, the great educator, has come to be nationally known. She recently executed a large memorial of the three founders of the Dwight institute which is to be dedicated at Dwight this month.

The Chicago galleries, 215 North Michigan avenue, have opened their first exhibit of the new season with a showing of paintings by Frederick Ogden and a group of 30 paintings recently shown at the Iowa state fair at Des Moines. The landscapes by Mr. Ogden are in the first gallery. They are painted in meticulous and picturesque fashion, reminding one of the English painters of an earlier century on the one hand and of our own Hudson river school of painters on the other.

There is something reassuring about these landscapes. They are eminently sane, sound, intelligent, and a sincere expression of art. As illustrating one type of painting they are without peer; one is confronted by a smooth course in greeting any one of them. One need not like them, but, for those who appreciate atmosphere and friendly detail, the very English "Morning Ride" will make the exhibition well worth seeing.

The Iowa state fair evidently saw representative paintings by most of our gifted Chicago painters. You will recognize nearly every one of the 30 pictures which were sent there. A number of them are older works by artists who are continuing to produce good stuff from year to year. Othmar Roffler, for instance; J. Jeffery Grant, Frederic Tellander, Anna Lee Stacey, Jessie Arms Botke [Cannot some means be found to force Mrs. Botke to send us a one-man show again? Living in California so long has made her nearly a stranger to Chicago, to our loss!], Julius Moessel, Walter Krawiec, Carl Hoerman, Leslie Buck, Edward T. Grigware, Arnold Turtle, James Topping, and C. Curry Bohm are among those represented. The exhibit is good, but fails to be exciting because we know the pictures too well and, secretly, feel an urge to know "What is he painting now?"

The WPA Illinois Art gallery, 211 North Michigan avenue, is a close neighbor to the Chicago galleries. It is showing an exhibit of prints. There was no one in the gallery when I dropped in and for a very good reason: the show is lamentably bad. It is "modern art" again, macabre, bitter, melancholy. It seems such a waste of money, paint and paper for the government to continue when the harvest reaped is eternally the same.

The Anderson galleries, 530 South Michigan avenue, have had word from Frank O. Salisbury, the noted English portrait painter whose stunning canvases are known to most of us. The Paris salon invited Mr. Salisbury to send a picture this year and his response was the full length portrait of the king of England in coronation robes, a painting that was seen in Chicago last fall at the Anderson galleries. The salon gave Mr. Salisbury the gold medal and "hors concours" on it.

Adam Emory Albright writes from New Harbor, Me., that he has been painting all summer along the rocks and expects to be home in Warrenville soon with a group of new pictures.

The Parnassus gallery, 817 North Rush street, is showing sculpture by Alfred Lenzi and water colors and gouaches by John M. Cadel.

The All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts announces the fourteenth annual exhibition of work by members will open at the Stevens hotel Nov. 18, to continue to Jan. 31. The jury will meet Nov. 1 at 10:30 o'clock at the Stevens.

Rabbi Berman Is to Address Jewish Meeting

First hand impressions of Europe in recent weeks will be reported by Rabbi Morton M. Berman, rabbi of Temple Isaiah Israel, at the first large open meeting ever held by the Chicago division of the American Jewish congress tomorrow evening at the Covenant club.

Rabbi Berman recently returned from Europe, where he was a delegate to the 21st World Zionist congress and visited the countries now at war. He has been active in the American Jewish congress, and was associated with its national president, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, in the pulpit of the Free Synagogue in New York for many years. Rabbi Berman also will discuss the deliberations of the Zionist congress. This meeting will be free to the public. No solicitation of funds will be made.

The Chicago women's division of the American Jewish congress will hear Daniel J. Lee, Chinese vice consul, speak on "China's War of Resistance and Democracy" at its opening meeting at 2 o'clock tomorrow at the Palmer House. Plans for the organization's annual Chanukah breakfast, to be held Dec. 11 at the Palmer House, also will be discussed.

The Chicago Youth division of the American Jewish congress will make plans for the year at a meeting of the executive council Tuesday evening at 185 North Wabash avenue.

Mrs. William Dick Sporborg.

Mrs. William Dick Sporborg of Port Chester, N. Y., one of the country's most dynamic women leaders, will speak at the first general meeting of the National Council of Jewish Women, Chicago section, at 1:45 o'clock tomorrow at the headquarters, 185 North Wabash avenue. Her subject will be, "There's Work to Be Done."

Ever since, as a 15 year old volunteer, she organized a settlement house club for girls, Mrs. Sporborg has been active in civic affairs. She was president of the first junior section ever formed by the National Council of Jewish Women, and also headed the senior section in New York.

As legislation chairman of the General Federation of Women's Clubs she directed that organization's campaign in favor of pure drug and food legislation and against narcotics. She also has headed the New York City and the New York State Federation of Women's Clubs. Last winter she headed the delegation of women observers to the Pan-American conference at Lima, Peru.

At the meeting tomorrow Mrs. Harry J. Myerson, as chairman of the membership rally to be held Oct. 9 in the grand ballroom of the Medinah club, will describe plans for that event. Louis Adamic, author, will speak. Admission will be limited to members who bring one or more new members. One thousand new members is the goal of the council.

Members will submit questions in writing, and Mrs. Hannah Soloman, Mrs. Ignace Reis, Mrs. Benjamin Davis, Mrs. Harry L. A Conversation overheard in front of The Fairfax

A couple, who were apparently apartment hunting, paused in front of The Fairfax last Sunday, and seemed on the point of coming in when one said to the other, "Oh, that's probably more than we can afford," whereupon they continued on their way.

It is true that The Fairfax does have an air of luxury, refinement, dignity. This was the atmosphere its builders strove to impart. This is the atmosphere the management maintains, and which guests admire and enjoy—but—rentals here are not unreasonable, rather are they considered "good values."

You can afford to come and see these "values" in 1, 2, and 3 room furnished apartments.

Catholic Club to Celebrate 46th Birthday

Seven charter members and eight others who have been members for 45 years will take part in the 46th birthday party of the Catholic Woman's league at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the organization's lounge, 410 South Michigan avenue. This oldest of Catholic women's organizations in Chicago was founded as an outcome of the Chicago World's Fair of 1893.

Mrs. Thomas Clyne.
[Koehne Photo.]

During its first year the league organized St. Elizabeth's Day nursery in a five room flat on the north side. The institution since has expanded into a three story brick building and playground with a full educational and recreational program for adults as well as children. St. Anne's Day nursery, also on the north side; St. Mary's settlement, in the stockyards district, and a protectorate which helps men and women, boys and girls to solve their personal problems are other projects of the league.

This afternoon each decade of the league's development is to be described by a member conversant with that period. A candle will be lighted for each year of the league's history. Since Mrs. William E. Gallagher, charter member and former president, is ill, Mrs. Edward L. McKinney, first vice president, will read for her a poem composed by the late Mrs. Mary McMahon, a charter member, describing the origin and first years of the league.

Next Mrs. J. L. Murray, another charter member, will cover the 1903-1913 period. Mrs. Jeremiah J. Delaney, a former president, will recall the years from 1913 to 1923, and Mrs. George W. Hanson, another former president, the 1923-1933 period. The last six years will be reviewed by Miss Helen M. Ganey, immediate past president.

Other charter members, besides those mentioned, who will be present are Mrs. P. W. Anderson, Mrs. Theodore W. Buhmann, Mrs. Homer Gross, Miss Harriet B. Lutz, Mrs. J. L. Murray, and Mrs. T. J. Sullivan. Members since 1894 who will be present are Mrs. J. W. Brooks, Mrs. Arthur Hauxhurst, Mrs. James J. Kelly, Miss Fannie E. Lynch, Mrs. J. W. McDonald, Mrs. M. H. McGovern, Miss Anna Ratty, and Miss Katherine A. Riordan. Mrs. Thomas Clyne has arranged the program. Miss Marie A. Martin heads the league.

The Rebecca Parker club will give a luncheon for Mrs. Henrietta Munsterman, worthy grand matron of the Order of the Eastern Star, Friday noon at the Lake Shore Athletic club. Mrs. Mildred Young is general chairman for the luncheon, and Mrs. Elizabeth Johnson, 707 North Latrobe avenue, is receiving reservations. Mrs. Bess Warmington of Evanston is president of the club.

A harvest breakfast will be held by the Association of Chicago's 1933 A Century of Progress Horticultural exhibition at 12:30 o'clock Saturday at the Laurence Adler estate in Joliet. The breakfast will be served on the lawn and in the lodge. Mrs. Walter Eriksen will be in charge, with Mrs. A. E. Grinton, Mrs. Frederick Hill, and Mrs. B. Scotland assisting. Mrs. William T. Bruckner, president of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Paul Steinbrecher, president of the Chicago Drama league, and Mrs. Richard Barr will be special guests. Mrs. Wallace B. Combs is president of the association.

Former women students of the University of Illinois and their friends will be guests at the fall round-up of the Chicago Illinae club Saturday afternoon at the Lake Shore Athletic club. When Chicago Was Young:

Poles Without a Homeland Held Nation's Centennial.

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend, Julia Boyd, of New York.

Chicago, May 3, 1891.

Dear Julia: It is a beautiful Sunday in Chicago. We have had dinner with Sandy and Martha at their Dearborn avenue home, and have held the darling twins in our arms. Happy little ones, to have been born in this free land!

This reflection is prompted by our attendance this afternoon at a patriotic meeting at Central Music hall, where Poles of Chicago and vicinity are celebrating the hundredth anniversary of the Polish constitution, rather a sad celebration, since Poland's name has disappeared from the map of Europe, its land snatched by the greedy hands of Russia, Austria, and Germany. It was quite moving, I thought, to see these people who so passionately love their country, yet can no longer think of that country as a homeland.

I should probably have missed the meeting if a client of Will's hadn't sent him tickets and urged him to attend. We were much delighted with the "Polish Independents," a regiment dressed in uniforms worn in Poland in Kosciusko's day. The hall was filled for the occasion, with E. L. Brodowski, president of the Polish National alliance, presiding, and Judge Murray F. Tuley acting as permanent chairman. He called on Judge Tuthill, who spoke of the courage of the Poles in defending their homes against the encroachments of invaders. Justice La Buy told the story of Poland, dwelling on the part that Catherine of Russia had in forging its chains. Gov. Fifer sent a letter from Springfield. A fighter himself, the governor assured the Poles that America valued brave citizens who, though they love the land of their birth and mourned its wounds, are yet devoted to the land of their adoption. Many speakers used the Polish language, but occasionally I could hear names which I recognized, as Pulaski or Kosciusko. The latter's name revived the memory of an old couplet:

"Hope, for a season, bade the world farewell,
And freedom shrieked, as Kosciusko fell."

It bothered me because I couldn't remember where the lines occurred, but I looked them up and found Thomas Campbell wrote them in "Pleasures of Hope." Certainly America has cause to honor the name of Kosciusko. A true democrat, of the type of Jefferson and Lafayette, he gave his services to a land struggling to establish a republic—not with hope of reward, but for love of the cause of freedom. It's pleasant to recall that he was given the thanks of congress, the privilege of American citizenship, a pension and lands, and the title of brigadier general in the American army. I was interested to find that he paid a second visit to America and lived in Philadelphia for more than a year, returning to Europe in May, 1798.

We've had Mrs. John Sherwood of New York here in Chicago the past week. She gave a series of lectures on society subjects at various houses. I attended the first one at the home of Mrs. George Dunlap, northeast corner of Dearborn avenue and Oak street. Her talk was wise and witty, her subject being, "Why American Girls Marry Abroad." She began by saying that Pocahontas was the first American girl to marry abroad and that she acquitted herself with credit, when, as Mrs. John Rolfe, she went to England. Mrs. Sherwood ended with the expression of her opinion that American girls could find nowhere such fine husbands as in their own country.

Many fashionables were present. Mesdames Franklin MacVeagh, A. C. McClurg, T. B. Blackstone, Potter Palmer, and Ralph N. Isham were some I saw.

And now, my dear, hoping your household is quite well, and that you are feeling yourself again, I am, yours devotedly,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOT NOTES.

By the terms of Poland's constitution [1791] absolute religious toleration was granted and class distinctions abolished. But it was not long before the partitioning of the country was complete, Russia, Austria, and Prussia each annexing a share, and the name of Poland was erased from the map of Europe, not to reappear for more than a century. Tadeusz Kosciusko [1746-1817] came to America in 1776 to fight for the colonists out the Revolution. He returned to Poland in 1786 and in 1794 was made dictator and commander in chief of the insurgent army in the rising against foreign oppressors. His army defeated the Russians at Raclavice, but when the latter were joined by the Prussians, the Poles were overwhelmed and "freedom shrieked, as Kosciusko fell." Taken a prisoner to Russia, he remained there two years. On his release, he made his way to England and thence to America, where he lived until the alien and sedition act was passed by congress.

The Tomb in Lincoln Park.

[Most readers of this column know that Lincoln park was originally a cemetery. The Couch mausoleum still stands in the park, mute testimony to the early use of the ground.—Editor.]

It stands aloof, neglected, with its guard
Of woven wire and posts . . . undignified,
As if to mock death's majesty and pride.
Dry leaves and grasses heap the tiny yard;
The rusted gate, still served by rusted lock,
Intrigues a careless passerby or two.
They scan it idly. "Couch," they read. "Now, who Was he, to set his tomb within a park?"
They do not know this ground, where children play,
Was given by the dead who once slept there,
To serve the living for a playground, where
They throng in summer for a happy day.

O, sumacs! Cluster close against its gloom,
And shield with greenery this forgotten tomb.

Main Emotion in Paris Now Is Curiosity

By May Birkhead.

PARIS If any emotion can be said to dominate Paris at the moment, it is curiosity. With war heavily engaged on France's eastern frontier, and Paris having undergone air raid alarms, that may seem strange, but it is a fact. Parisians are athirst for real information, and they want no ersatz. At half past 3 one morning, stung from sound sleep by the wailing shriek of the sirens, some got up, turned off the elertcity, gas and water supplies, and calmly returned to their beds. Others got out of their gas masks and quietly made their way to the cellars. They wanted to be outside to listen to the booming of the anti-aircraft guns, to determine, if the planes dropped bombs, where they might have fallen. To be cut off underground from knowledge of what was taking place was the korst torture apparently, that any one suffered. Early in the week, in spite of urging in the papers, hardly any one was seen carrying gas masks in the street, but after the first raid alarm followed by another shortly before noon, nine out o ften in the streets had their masks. But Parisians do not want to go to the cellars, or to spend much time there, where they can exchange impressions, but get little fresh news.

The memories of the last war are too vivid for reports of sensational advances or miraculous apparitions to be received with anything but skepticism. The French behind the line are wasting little time nursing their sense of outrage. They are figuring how they can, each in his own way, aid in the war. But it is a kind of cold, impersonal resentment, and partly at themselves, for not realizing earier, and acting on, the danger.

The great tragedy of war has its lesser tragedies. Abandoned dogs are seen straying around the streets. Yesterday one of our American friends went to a photographer's small shop to get pictures of herself for the new permits of circulation and sojourn with which every one must soon be provided. In the shop was a little poorly dressed woman who had a cage with two singing birds. She wanted the photographed, and to get the best possible effect of relief she had placed white cotton at the back of the cage. "If they are killed by gas or bomb splinters in one of the raids," she remarked, "I want to hace pictures of them so that I can remember them always as they were when happy." The photographer snapped them and she went out, her gas mask over her shoulder, her singing pets in their cage, and the owner with fresh courage in her heart.

At one of the dwellings on the left bank of the Seine nearly every lodger, when the war broke out, was away on vacation. One of them, a woman, har left her gold fish, during her absence of some weeks, with the concierge on the ground floor. The day this lodger returned she had the satisfaction of seeing her goldfish pets safe, and turned her thoughts to getting the necessary protection against threatened air raids. In the middle of the night, when the first alarge sounded, she hurried to the cellar, like the others in the house, and if she thought of her pets, regarded them as safe in the concierge's lodge. On coming up from the cellar when the "all clear" sounded, she looked for her goldfish, and found that they had been devoured by the concierge's cat, who was still standing over the bowl and licking his chops.

Performance of "Smilin' Thru" to Be Benefit

Weather permitting, a full moon and a garden theater will add their magic to the poignant ghost scenes of "Smilin' Thru" when benefit performances of the play are presented next Thursday and Friday evenings.

The open porch of Mrs. Robert F. Bensinger's home at 1145 Sheridan road, Glencoe, will be the stage, and the audience will be seated on the lawn. Members of the dramatic department of the Chicago board of education adult education program will give the play both evenings at 7:45 o'clock. Tickets will be on sale at the gate, or may be obtained through Mrs. Herbert Paschen of Winnetka and her committee.

This is the first benefit to be sponsored by the women's division of the Salvation Army in the new season. Proceeds will be contributed to the Army's home and hospital for unwed mothers. Mrs. Charles S. Clark, a vice president of the board, is general chairman. Assisting Mrs. Paschen with ticket sales are Mrs. Thomas J. Fleming of Chicago, Mrs. Robert F. Mrs. Clark is to be one of the principal speakers at the tenth anniversary party of the Women's World League for Hungary of the Middle West at 4 o'clock this afternoon at International House, 1414 East 59th street. Mrs. Clark is honorary president of the organization. Laszlo Medgyesy, Hungarian consul, also will speak.

Tableaux will present outstanding women in Hungarian history in authentic costume and there will be a buffet supper and dancing to music of a gypsy orchestra. Mrs. Herbert Lahr and Miss Yolanda Horkay, singers, and Alice Landgraf, pianist, also will be presented. Mrs. William A. Fuzy of Hammond, Ind., is grand president of this organization. The East Chicago-Indiana Harbor chapter is coöperating in arranging the party.

Each month the board of the organization meets at the Blackstone hotel to plan ways and means of raising funds for this work. Miss Betty Lohmueller heads the association.

A card party will be given for the benefit of St. Joseph's Home for the Friendless at 2:30 o'clock today at the home, 739 East 35th street. Mrs. Mary E. Dunn is chairman. Mrs. Joseph Herrmann is president of the guild of the home, which is sponsoring the event.

Women Voters to Consider Timely Topics

Mrs. Louise Leonard Wright.

Neutrality, political parties and their function, a petition to permit voting on the city manager plan, and schools for women jurors will be among the timely topics considered at the annual autumn department days of the Illinois League of Women Voters this week. Northern Illinois members will attend the meeting Tuesday in Judson court of the University of Chicago; central and southern Illinois members, the meeting Thursday at the American Legion billet in Pontiac.

Departmental conferences from 10:15 to 1 o'clock on both days will precede a noon luncheon at which Mrs. Louise Leonard Wright will discuss "Problems of a Neutral." Mrs. Wright, chairman of government and foreign policy for the National League of Women Voters, has been a student of foreign affairs since college days at the University of Minnesota, where, for a short time, she was history instructor. She has traveled extensively in the near and the far east, has been a delegate to the Institute of Pacific Relations, and studied much of the year 1936-1937 in Geneva, Switzerland. Last winter she went to the Lima conference in Peru as the only woman adviser to the American delegation. She is the author of pamphlets on "American Neutrality" and "Toward a Collective System." Mrs. Wright is the wife of Quincy Wright, professor of international law at the University of Chicago.

With an eye to the conventions next spring, the League of Women Voters has adopted as one of its projects for special action this year a study of political parties. League members are being urged to seek election as delegates to these conventions.

A petition urging that citizens be permitted to vote on the question of a city manager for their city will be circulated by local leagues throughout the state.

Still another special project will be jury schools, which are to begin in October. The League of Women Voters was among the organizations which led the fight to win for Illinois women the right to serve on juries.

Last week the Cook County League of Women Voters, through its board of directors, directed to Ald. H. L. Brody, chairman of the committee on judiciary and state legislation of the city council, an appeal for a "thorough and impartial" investigation of the aldermanic elections in the 43d and 45th wards, "in order to reenforce the faith of the voters in the power and integrity of elections."

Preparatory to launching an enlarged program throughout the middle west to combat religious and racial prejudice, the woman's committee of the Chicago Round Table of Christians and Jews will outline plans at its first meeting of the season at 10:30 o'clock Wednesday at the Chicago Woman's club, 72 East 11th street. The meeting, to continue through luncheon and until plans are completed, will be conducted by Mrs. Willett H. Cornwell, former president of the Chicago Woman's club, who is new chairman of the committee.

Mrs. Arthur R. Williams, former president of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers, has been made director of the midwestern expansion campaign.

Organizing a study group, scheduling speaking engagements for a round table discussion team composed of a Catholic, a Protestant, and a Jew, and planning monthly luncheon programs for the entire round table membership will be among the committee's activities. The annual Institute of Human Relations is scheduled this year for April 11.

Mrs. Frank P. Hixon, chairman of the committee from its organization three years ago until last spring, now is honorary chairman. Mrs. Richard M. Hallinan, Miss Lilace Reid Barnes, and Mrs. Irving S. Florsheim are vice chairmen; Mrs. J. A. Teach, secretary.

Next Saturday Miss Barnes, as president of the Chicago Young Women's Christian association, will have charge of the dedication of the new Martha Harris lodge, recreation hall at the "Y's" summer camp, Sagawau, near Lemont, for Girl Reserves.

Mrs. Hermon B. Butler of Winnetka, co-worker with the late Miss Martha Harris on the Y. M. C. A. board for many years, has written an inscription for a plaque to be affixed to the building. It was through a bequest of Miss Harris that the erection of this lodge and other buildings for the use of high school girls vacationing at the camp was made possible. Mrs. Butler also has written a tribute to Miss Harris' services to the organization, which will be read at the dedication exercises.

Miss Barnes briefly will review the history of the Chicago association and particularly of its camp activities, and Miss Helen Ryan, Roosevelt High school girl who heads the city-wide interclub council of Girl Reserves, will speak for the 31 Chicago clubs on "What Camp Sagawau Means to Me." Tea will be served and the Girl Reserves will sing. Mrs. Roy Sorenson, chairman of the metropolitan Girl Reserves committee, has arranged the dedication exercises.

Volunteers Aiding the Red Cross in Bandage Making

Some 2,500 volunteer workers have enrolled with the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross within the last fortnight to help make surgical dressings and bandages for hospitals in the European war zones. The total number of workers on this project now approximates 7,500. Production units are being established throughout Chicago and its suburbs.

Chairmen of these groups now are receiving instruction in the making of dressings at Red Cross headquarters, 616 South Michigan avenue. These leaders first are training in the making of dressings and bandages for Chicago hospitals and welfare organizations. As they become more proficient, they are trained to make dressings of the special gauze required for military dressings. Such dressings are made according to specifications supplied by the French and Polish Red Cross societies. Following the instruction period, the leaders will start production in their respective units.

A. H. McLeods Return After Bridal Voyage

By Ruth Billheimer.

PASADENA, CAL.

Joining the ranks of travelers now safe in the bosom of their family are Mr. and Mrs. Albert Harris McLeod [Laura Wheeler], whose honeymoon in Europe was spent happily oblivious of the approaching crisis. They knew nothing of the real gravity of the situation until they arrived in London from Scotland three days before their Aug. 31 sailing date.

The young McLeods arrived in Pasadena Tuesday evening after two days with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert W. Harris of Chicago, at Kamah, the Harris country estate at Lake Geneva. They had crossed the Atlantic on the Netherlands mail liner Johann van Oldenbarnveld and spent nine anxious days on the water.

Mr. McLeod and his bride will make their abode temporarily with her parents, the Louis McLaughlin Blankenhorns in Arden road, until they locate a place of their own.

Leaving Pasadena for the Armour ranch at Santa Ynez, Cal., the Donald Armours are now settling themselves in the northern valley. The 3,000 acre ranch is a part of the land purchased after the world war by Mr. Armour's father, the late M. Cochrane Armour of Chicago, and was used for cattle raising. Now it is chiefly farm land and yields quantities of sugar beets, alfalfa, and grain.

It is, incidentally, just across the Santa Ynez river from the John J. Mitchell ranch which was purchased from the late Mr. Armour.

And speaking of the Armours, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Leffingwell Goss [Jean Ericson] have decided to remain in the United States instead of going to Paris in these unsettled times, and will live in Pasadena. In fact, they will occupy the lodge house of the old Armour place in Linda Vista avenue. The bride's mother, Mrs. Chester Ericson, has been occupying the big house on the hill all summer . . . the house in which the wedding reception was held in July.

Mrs. William C. Free is back in California after her usual summer at Chautauqua and is spending a week or so at Manhattan Beach before establishing herself in her Pasadena home for the winter. Mrs. Philip Schuyler Doane has just been announced as Pasadena's Christmas mother, a service once performed by Mrs. Free.

Although they are keeping well out of the public eye, Mr. and Mrs. Gregson Barker [Mary Lou Nichols] are believed to be honeymooning at this point in the Nichols' South Hudson avenue home.

News from Southern California's "frontier" towns — San Diego and Santa Barbara—tells of the departure for Evanston of Dr. and Mrs. Richard Hollington after a visit with their daughters, Mesdames George Murch and Marston Burnham in San Diego; of the decision of James Copley, son of Col. Ira Clifton Copley of Aurora, Ill., Coronado, and Los Angeles, to make his home on the west coast; of the visit to San Francisco's International exposition of Miss Harriet McLaughlin, Chicago social registerite, with Miss Katherine Harvey of Montecito.

We learn also of the convalescence of Mrs. Arthur Meeker at her Montecito home, Constantia, following a severe illness; and that Arthur Meeker Jr. and his nephew, Ambrose Cramer Jr., plan to return here from France in October. Mr. Meeker has been at his Swiss villa at Lucerne and Mr. Cramer in Vevey.

The John J. Mitchells have said farewell to their Santa Barbara friends for the winter with the promise, however, to return for Christmas if Mrs. Mitchell's mother, Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, comes west for the season.

They Sho' Have Rhythm at the Voodoo Dances

By Anson Brown.

PORT AU PRINCE, HAITI.

Voodooism, or the black magic worship of the Haitians, is a reverberation of the religious worship once practiced in deepest Africa. When the original slaves were brought over to the Antilles in the sixteenth century, they brought with them their incantations, their adoration of the dead spirits, and their feverish dances.

Compared to the latter, a jitterbug is as lifeless as a statue. Compared to the former, Cab Calloway's choristers would not stand a chance. Although it is hard for the white man to understand what or whom the natives are worshiping, he knows one thing about them: They sho' have rhythm.

There is a small hotel up in the hills behind Port Au Prince, only a few minutes' drive from the "beggars' city," and the temperature is 15 degrees cooler.

One evening I clambered up out of the heat and had dinner there and afterward sat on the front porch, swatting mosquitoes and smoking a cigaret while the sun set. I wasn't even aware of any rhythmical beat in the air, but my foot kept tapping up and down. Then I heard them. Drums! Drums rolling their beat up from the valley.

The darker it became, the louder turned the maddening throb.

[It gets you, you know—that boom, boom, boom in your head. You want to yell, or stuff your ears with cotton, or turn on a radio so loudly that it blasts you from your chair.]

The deeper the night, the more penetrating the cadence. It vibrated the very air I breathed.

Deciding to investigate, I set out with my flashlight down the hill behind the hotel and was immediately plunged into the tropical thistles. The night was already black, and as I walked along the path hemmed in by towering trees the light turned up large, scampering lizards and caused the tree frogs to cease momentarily their squealing whistles. The jungle at night is spooky enough, without the thought of a prevalence of snakes.

The path led toward the drums and it wasn't long before I could hear the voices chanting with the beat. Underfoot the moss was slippery. Once, in regaining my balance, I grabbed a tree trunk, and something squirmed out from under my hand.

I soon saw the glow of the fire and switched off my light. Not that any harm would befall me upon being discovered, but it would spoil everything. I wanted to see a voodoo dance in the raw. [If what I saw was raw, I'll take mine well done!]

I sat down on a rise near the path about 20 yards from the dancers and was hidden among some small trees. Even the trees seemed to vibrate from the throbbing.

In the middle of the clearing was a large fire and squatting around this were thirty men and women, chanting. They were all stripped to the waist, except one woman who acted as priestess. She led the hi-de-ho's, and was followed by the others. Four drummers, each with a huge tom-tom, pounded the goat skin membranes with the flat of their hands. It was one of the best drilled choral groups I've ever heard.

For a long time they sat and sang, while I swatted mosquitoes. A vague moon lighted up the valley; the palm trees above were silent. Each melody faded into another a little more quickly until the singers were worked up to a fever pitch.

Thus began the dancing—not hula-hula, but fast gyrations as man and woman—black bodies casting strange shadows from the blazing fire—whirled around the clearing. Some fell exhausted, only to rise again in another moment. Boom ta, boom ta. The whole thing was uncanny.

Suddenly the rhythm stopped and the dancers dropped to the ground. Then the drums started once more, very fast and soft. The priestess in her white sheet advanced to the center with a live chicken—so help me, this is the truth, but it almost turned my stomach over—twisted off the head of the chicken, drank of the warm blood, and cast the twitching body into the fire, while all the dancers rose to their feet, whooping and yelling.

After it was all over, they faded into the darkness like dying smoke, and I scrammed back up the hill. I had been an unknown spectator at an ancient rite of the Negroes.

No Hysteria in Bermuda, Says Official Visitor

New York, Sept. 23 [Special].—A three-man mission from the Trade Development Board of Bermuda, a governmental body for the development of tourist business, has arrived here by airplane to make arrangements for procuring passenger ships to replace the Queen of Bermuda and the Monarch of Bermuda, which have been requisitioned by the British admiralty for war service.

The mission consists of Sir Stanley Spurling, M. P.; W. J. H. Trott, M. P., member of the Bermuda executive council, and K. F. Trimingham, member of the Bermuda legislative council.

The Queen of Bermuda was taken off passenger service at the outbreak of the war, while the Monarch was taken off last week. Each operated on a five day service during the tourist season and carried 700 passengers each.

At present the coral islands can be reached only by airplane or by ships from Halifax via Boston.

"Americans planning a vacation in Bermuda," Sir Stanley said, "can be assured of the same conditions that existed in peace time. There is absolutely no trouble, and we do not expect any. Stories of barbed wire entanglements and so forth are ridiculous."

Most of the communities of western Michigan mark the roads to the various scenic spots. Usually the colors are at their best in October.

Ani-tsagi (It's a Game) to Be Played at Fete

Asheville, N. C., Sept. 23.—The corn, turning brown in the fields along the Oconalufty river valley, and the brilliant flare of leaf colors in the forests on the nearby ridges are signals to 3,000 Indians to begin preparations for their harvest festival at Cherokee, N. C.

For several decades the eastern band of Cherokees, living in the shadow of the Great Smoky mountains near Asheville, have held their fair on the early autumn. This year the dates are Oct. 3 to 6.

There are to be the usual dances, along with displays of Indian handcrafts, agricultural products, pottery, and basketry. Sports contests will include archery and blow gun competition. Teams of braves are to compete for the annual championship in ani-tsago or Indian ball, grandfather of lacrosse.

Ani-tsagi is played on the field somewhat similar in size to a football gridiron, with green wands marking the goals at each end. Each player is armed with two ball sticks, shaped like small tennis rackets, with which he must pick up the tiny ball on the ground and carry it to the opponent's goal. Stripped to trunks and eagle feathers, the warriors play with bloody earnestness.

Queen of North to Be Crowned Next February

By Frederic Babcock.

MARQUETTE, MICH.

Michigan's Upper Peninsula will have another "Queen of the North" contest this winter, and Sault Ste. Marie will be the scene of her coronation. This was decided here Tuesday, along with the decision to form a winter sports council representing all parts of this widespread vacationland.

Meeting at the call of the Upper Peninsula Development bureau, 65 delegates got under way a movement to give northern Michigan its proper place in the field of ice and snow sports. Virtually every motion with that in view was carried by unanimous vote.

Pointing out that Sault Ste. Marie will have its new ice palace, seating between 3,000 and 4,000 spectators, ready for the approaching season, John R. Merrifield, secretary of the chamber of commerce there, made a strong bid for the 1940 coronation. Representatives of the Houghton-Hancock district countered with the statement that the Michigan Technical institute at Houghton has been holding a winter carnival for several years and therefore is in a position to play host to the queen in a big way.

When it became evident that the "Soo" invitation would be accepted, the Houghton-Hancock group withdrew its bid, but served notice that it would be back next year with a demand for the 1941 crowning. Marquette served a similar notice. The friendly rivalry was taken as a sign of the intense interest already being aroused in the project.

The queen will be chosen in the course of the winter sports at Sault She. Marie in mid-February, and will be crowned on the final night of that celebration.

Decision to form the council followed talks by W. H. Treloar of Ishpeming, Mrs. G. C. Meyland of Marquette, President Philip Spear of the Marquette Chamber of Commerce, Clarence Bullock, city recreational director here, and George Grenholm, recreational supervisor, and Chester Ross, National Youth Administration supervisor, of the Upper Peninsula. The details will be worked out by a committee composed of one representative of each community.

"In these times of trouble and conflict the public needs recreation more than it has at any other time in the last twenty years," Mr. Grenholm said. "The winter program of each town and city should not be for a week or a week-end, but for three months. You have the natural setting for winter sports; it is up to you to provide the facilities."

George E. Bishop, secretary of the bureau, advocated a year-round program. Instead of concentrating on either summer or winter activities, he said, northern Michigan would do well to try to draw visitors throughout the twelve months. Right now, he added, with both the hunting season and the forest coloring season at hand, the peninsula is nearing one of its most attractive periods.

Before the one-day conference closed the delegates got together and agreed on the dates of this winter's carnivals. Those dates are:

Houghton-Hancock, Jan. 10, 11, 12, 13.
Iron River-Stambaugh, Jan. 26, 27, 28.
Escanaba, Feb. 2, 3, and 4.

THE FESTIVAL OF ARTS.

Crete, Ill., Sept. 18.—To the Travel Editor: This summer while visiting on the west coast, I was a spectator at the eighth annual Festival of Arts held at Laguna Beach, Cal., the home of many artists and craftsmen.

The setting for the festival is beautiful. There, in an outdoor bowl, surrounded by the hills of Laguna Beach, beneath the eucalyptus trees, and cooled by sea breezes, one can see a highly unusual art show.

The artists of the community exhibit their handiwork, whether it be wood carving, painting, sculpture, or ceramics. The guests have an opportunity to mingle freely with the artists, to discuss their problems and techniques with them, and to admire or perhaps make a purchase of a piece of work.

The "Pageant of the Masters," a series of authentic reproductions of famous and beloved masterpieces of the ages, and posed by living models, is an exceedingly clever and remarkable thing. This performance, I've been told, is not duplicated anywhere else in the world. Mr. Ropp is the director, and the characters are portrayed by citizens in dramatizing such works as Gainsborough's "Blue Boy," Lawrence's "Pinkie," Raphael's "Sistine Madonna," Whistler's "Mother," Millet's "Angelus," and Da Vinci's "Last Supper." Altogether a repertoire of 45 masterpieces has been prepared for presentation. Of this group the "Last Supper" is the most popular, and it inspires great reverence among those who see it.

This letter has been written with the view of informing travelers of this spectacle so that, if the occasion presents itself, they too can attend.

TRAVEL IN TEXAS.

Chicago, Sept. 15.—To the Travel Editor: A number of your contributors have related their experiences in traveling through Texas. As I am thinking of leaving for the west coast this winter, with a stopover of several months in San Antonio, or any Texas city of the approximate size of San Antonio, I am eager to hear from tourists who have included this spot in their itinerary. What is the climate like; what are the prospects of employment for a secretary; living conditions [within reason or what], and what are facts that may be helpful in making my decision? My address is 720 Rush street, Chicago.

[MISS] DOROTHEA J. TOFIELD.

PAGING MR. WARNER.

Chicago, Sept. 15.—To the Travel Editor: Last year you asked: "Where shall Mason Warner go next?" And we fail to have him in your paper at all. Where did he go? Why not Scotland, North Ireland, and the Isle of Man? No matter where he wrote from, we always enjoyed his articles in the Travel section.

V. ROBERTSON.

MAIL FOR SHUT-INS.

Chicago, Sept. 19.—To the Travel Editor: I'm a shut-in at the Municipal sanatorium, and would like to hear from those on the "outside." Cards and letters would be much appreciated. My address: 5601 North Pulaski road.

LILLIAN SCHUMACHER.

Fort Sheridan, Ill., Sept. 5.—To the Travel Editor: My mother has been a shut-in for the last seven years, most of which time she has spent in bed. She has arthritis. She would appreciate the kindness of travelers who might take the time to send her a card or letter from the interesting places they visit, and also be grateful to you for placing her name on your "mail for shut-ins" list. Her name and address: Mrs. M. E. Scroggin, 530 Oakwood avenue, Webster Groves, Mo.

Tannenberg—Drama of the World War

Big German Victory of 1914

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

IN THE supreme headquarters of the German army at Coblenz on Aug. 21, 1914, a telephone rang sharply and insistently.

A faint and shaky voice on the far end of the wire asked for Field Marshal Moltke, chief of the general staff. The voice speaking from the distance was that of General Prittwitz, commander of the German 8th army in East Prussia. Prittwitz had cleared the line from Wartenburg, his headquarters, to tell his chief that the German army in East Prussia had been roughly handled the day before at Gumbinnen by a superior Russian force under General Rennenkampf. He told Moltke that because of the heavy odds he intended to withdraw his army to the line of the Vistula river, possibly even farther.

"But you must hold the Vistula at all costs," shouted Moltke.

That this could not be guaranteed Prittwitz explained, pointing out that the river was low and fordable in many places and that his army was only a mere handful as compared with the Russian forces.

Then and there Prittwitz sealed his doom as a military leader. Moltke at once began looking around for his successor.

The next day a retired and aging general residing in Hanover received a telegram from the kaiser asking if he were prepared for immediate service.

"I am ready," Hindenburg wired in reply.

Under these circumstances was resurrected for the emergency and thrown into the war on the front facing Russia the famous military genius, Paul von Hindenburg, whose appearance in East Prussia, a country that he knew by heart, marked the turning of the tide against the Russians.

Long before the beginning of World war the Russians and the French had worked out a plan of coöperation. Knowing that the Germans in the event of hostilities would move quickly against France, the military men of Paris and St. Petersburg conceived a program that would split the German forces. Russia's part of the program called for an immediate penetration of East Prussia to lighten the pressure on the French front.

And so when war came Russia was ready to play its part, a tragic rôle indeed, as was shown when the final curtain was rung down on the East Prussian campaign of 1914. But for the battling Russians 800 miles away the first battle of the Marne might not have been an Allied victory.

Russian plans for a quick advance into East Prussia involved considerable movement through that part of Russia which now is Poland. The territory in East Prussia in which fighting subsequently occurred is about the same in its general terrain as Poland. The military problems of 1914 in East Prussia and Poland were about the same as those of armies operating in Poland today. The theater of war in the campaign under discussion was a land of undulating plains between the Vistula and the Niemen rivers. It presented no difficulties to maneuvering such as later were encountered by the Russians in the Carpathian mountains, far to the south, although as a natural defense line for the Germans in East Prussia were the Masurian lakes, a series of irregular bodies of water extending from north to south about fifty miles.

Two great Russian armies were to be pushed into East Prussia as soon as possible after the declaration of war, the 1st army, under Rennenkampf, from a line along the Niemen river; the 2d army, under General Samsonov, from a line along the Narew river.

Rennenkampf and Samsonov were supposed to be the pick of the Russian service, but unfortunately they were bitter personal enemies. Their immediate superior was General Jilinski, chief of the general staff and commander of the northwestern front.

The 1st army under Rennenkampf poured across the frontier from Russia on Aug. 17 and 18. Composed of six and a half divisions of infantry and artillery and five divisions of cavalry, it was an imposing fighting force. Aiming toward the territory north of the chain of the Masurian lakes, its plan was to advance to the so-called Insterburg gap, a forty-three-mile section of open country down which ran the Insterburg-Allenstein railway, to draw the Germans as far east as possible. The object of luring the enemy to the east was to lay it open to attack in the rear by the 2d army under Samsonov, which was to advance at some distance south of the lakes to the line between Rastenburg and Allenstein.

Rennenkampf

To oppose the two great Russian armies, each of which was larger than itself, was the German 8th army under the aforementioned Prittwitz. The German plan was to throw this army at whichever Russian army appeared in East Prussia first, crush it if possible, and then, by employing the splendidly organized railway system of this region, to shift quickly and strike the other Russian army.

Prittwitz, however, did not carry out the plan to the fullest. He dispatched his 20th corps under Scholtz to the southeast to await the arrival of Samsonov's army and hold it. His 1st corps, under François, he ordered forward to delay Rennenkampf. And his 17th corps, under Mackensen, and his 1st reserve corps, under Von Bülow, he held in reserve.

François insisted upon striking Rennenkampf with the full force of the German army. Prittwitz was reluctant to alter his plan. François continued to insist. Finally Prittwitz weakened, allowing the reserves to advance and join the 1st corps.

Following an indecisive action at Stulluponen on Aug. 17, the Germans on Aug. 20 met the Russians on a line just east of Gumbinnen, directly east of Königsberg and north of the lakes. Seven German divisions were opposed to eight of the Russians. The difference in the strength of the two armies was greater, however, than the numbers of divisions would indicate, since a Russian division contained sixteen battalions, as against only twelve for a German division. The Germans were superior in artillery.

François' corps surprised the Russians on their right at dawn, driving them back seven miles. Bülow's 1st reserve corps made progress on the enemy's left, but Mackensen's corps in the center was badly whipped.

Rennenkampf claimed this battle at Gumbinnen as a victory, on the strength of the whipping administered to the German center. He had inflicted heavy losses on Mackensen's troops. He had held the field after his wings finally had refused to budge farther, and he had seen the Germans retire.

Prittwitz, nicknamed the fat soldier, was not of the stuff required for this warfare on a colossal scale. While his officers urged him to renew the attack on Rennenkampf, even without recalling the 20th corps, he took it upon himself to telephone to Moltke, and was replaced by Hindenburg. As chief of staff of the eastern army under Hindenburg, German military headquarters chose Major General Ludendorff, famous for his resourcefulness and his heroism at the taking of Liége. Hindenburg and Ludendorff met at Hanover and together journeyed eastward by rail, arriving at Marienburg, where Hindenburg on Aug. 23 took over command of the 8th army.

In the meantime hourly reports had been arriving at the German supreme headquarters from the western front to the effect that all was going well with the advance against the French. It was decided to detach six corps from the armies in the west and send them to East Prussia to help stop the Russians. Two corps, the 11th and the guard reserve, could be sent at once, but the other four, being engaged, could not be spared until later. Actually only the two that were immediately available were sent.

"Thus," according to the Rt. Hon. Winston S. Churchill, an authoritative chronicler of the war and today once more first lord of the British admiralty, "the wheeling wing of the Schlieffen plan was weakened at its most critical moment by the withdrawal of the two corps, which otherwise in a fortnight would have filled the fatal gap at the Marne."

While they were withdrawn from the western front during the pivotal advance into France which had been worked out years before by Count von Schlieffen, and thus took no part in the first battle of the Marne, the two corps in question arrived in East Prussia too late to have a part in the next battle fought there—they rendered no service anywhere at one of the most crucial periods of the war.

On Aug. 21 and 22, three days behind Rennenkampf, who still was holding his position near Gumbinnen, Samsonov with his five army corps (more than 200,000 men) crossed the frontier of East Prussia. The Russian 2d army, after marching nine days through a desertlike region (purposely left desolated by the Russians as a defense against German invasion), streamed into German territory on a wide front, hungry, worn, and footsore. Most of its supplies had been left far in the rear.

Jilinski all the while was urging Samsonov to hurry. It was the Russian plan, it is well to recall here, for Samsonov's army to swing up from the southeast and west of the Masurian lakes to cut in behind the German army as it faced Rennenkampf. The Russian 2d army was well across the frontier when Hindenburg arrived at Marienburg on the 23d and took command of the Germans. Samsonov's right was near Ortelsburg, while his left was between Neidenburg and Dzialdowo (Soldau). The German 20th corps was just north of Neidenburg.

The German army that had opposed Rennenkampf on the 20th had vanished from before his front the following day. The 17th corps and the 1st reserve corps already were fifteen miles away, moving in a southerly direction. The 1st corps was entraining twenty miles away for Königsberg. Rennenkampf did nothing. In fact, he did nothing until Aug. 23, when he got his troops in motion and slowly moved westward along the Baltic shore. There is an explanation for the inactivity of Rennenkampf during those three days. Jilinski did not want him to advance too hurriedly and drive the Germans too far west. He wanted Rennenkampf to wait until Samsonov would have time to come up and attack the enemy in the rear.

But Rennenkampf, while he was waiting for this master stroke to be carried out, apparently lost all contact with the Germans. Through the aid of his five divisions of cavalry, 20,000 men, he could have kept himself informed as to the movements of the enemy. The Russian scouting both on land and in the air was pitiful. There virtually were no Russian planes to spy on the enemy, and the cavalry activities were poor even for Russia.

On the same day—Aug. 23—that Rennenkampf started his leisurely march toward the west, Samsonov's center, composed of the 13th, 15th, and 23d corps, moving toward the northwest, contacted the German 20th corps, which had been reinforced by a landwehr division and a fortress detachment. The German 1st corps, which had been sent by rail around by Königsberg, had not yet come up, nor had the other two German corps that had fought at Gumbinnen.

The engagement between the Russian center and the German 20th corps was hard fought. Slowly the Germans recoiled before the attack, pivoting back until they presented a curving line just east of the town of Tannenberg.

On the 24th and 25th, as Samsonov was hammering the Germans before him, Rennenkampf was reporting that the enemy was in retreat ahead of his army. Jilinski was urging Samsonov to hurry.

On the morning of the 26th Samsonov's army was disposed as follows: His center of two corps, the 13th and 15th, was advancing northwesterly and was close to a line between Allenstein and Hohenstein. On his right was one corps, the 6th, and the 4th cavalry division, at Rothfleiss, two days' march from the center. On his left was the 1st corps and the 6th and 15th cavalry divisions, near Koschlau, one day's march from the center. The 23d corps at the time was moving into the gap between the center and the left. Samsonov believed at this stage of his advance that the Germans flying in front of Rennenkampf already had crossed his owr front on their retirement to the Vistula and that he had been toc late to cut them off.

As he moved forward he actu ally, without knowing it, wa widening the distance betweer Rennenkampf and himself. Hi army was in sore straits, hi supply system was broken down and he was ill prepared for bat tle. To make matters worse, h was sending out orders to hi corps commanders by wireless— orders that were picked up an easily decoded by the enemy.

The new German comman had injected life into the army that had been so poorly directe by Prittwitz. Hindenburg an Ludendorff, both of the fightin type, were preparing to launc a death-dealing blow at Samsor ov. Fortunately for them, thei plan had been well worked ou before their arrival on the scene Col. Max Hoffmann, genera staff officer of the 8th army, a ready had carried out man steps facilitating the concentra tion desired by the two generals

In order to fall upon the Ru sian 2d army with the greates force available for the purpos the German command had bee bringing its troops down fror the north by forced marche Only a thin screen of cavalr had been left in front of Renner kampf's army.

On the morning of Aug. 2 both flanks of Samsonov's arm were attacked. François with hi 1st corps struck at the Russia left, but, being without most o his artillery, which had not ye arrived, he contented himsel with driving in some of the Ru sian outposts. The next day h launched his attack in earnes At daybreak a heavy artiller bombardment of the Russian 1s corps at Uzdowo created consic erable consternation, finall throwing the Russians into panic. By 10 o'clock that morr ing the Russian left had va ished—it had been completel routed.

The rear of Samsonov's ce ter now was exposed, and Fra çois marched toward Neide burg. He found no oppositio there, and by the night of th 28th his van had reached Musch aken, eight miles east of Neide burg. By the night of the 29t the entire road from Neidenbur to Willenberg was in Germa hands. The next day the Ru sians, coming from Mlava, a tacked and retook Neidenber But on the 31st the German again captured the town.

The attack on the Russia right wing on the morning o Aug. 26 was made by the Ge man 17th and the 1st reserv corps, which had been pulle away hurriedly from their pos

Pasternak, Unsung Genius Among the Film Makers

By ED SULLIVAN

Hollywood.

IN A TOWN notable for the number of personal publicity agents to each square acre it is inevitable that "geniuses" should be acclaimed at the drop of a hat. A high-powered exploitation campaign takes care of that. So it is remarkable that one of the real geniuses of the town should be known scarcely at all to the moviegoing public. I'm referring to Joe Pasternak, Universal producer, who has turned out five Deanna Durbin smash hits in a row—"Three Smart Girls," "One Hundred Men and a Girl," "Mad About Music," "That Certain Age," and "Three Smart Girls Grow Up." As a result of that phenomenal record of producer and star the mortgage was lifted from the Universal studios.

Pasternak, a bundle of emotion and instinct, emotion disciplined by fine taste, has handled Deanna Durbin with rare adroitness. You can search in vain through all of her pictures to find one jarring note. Not only that, but he has taken her through the "awkward age" without sacrificing one whit of her box office magnetism.

Who, then, is Pasternak, the man with the odd name?

Joe Pasternak is an immigrant boy from Hungary, one of a family of eleven children who were supported frugally by the bookkeeper father of the brood. When Pasternak was 17 years old the family finances were further complicated. The war had come to an end, and in the rush of soldiers to civilian life the father was thrown out of work. Young Joseph was sent to America in the steerage class to relieve the strain.

DEANNA DURBIN

Because his uncle lived in Philadelphia, Joe went there, and his first job was in a belt factory, punching holes in leather belts. For each gross of belts he punched Pasternak received 6 cents. He worked with enthusiasm. At the end of the first week he had earned $11. It was a lot of money to a boy who had seen the privations and starvation visited upon Hungary during and after the World war.

From then on Pasternak went through a procession of jobs that were varied, to say the least. In New York he got a job plucking chickens in a wholesale butcher shop. He got 5 cents a chicken. He plucked 'em as fast as he could until his hands became so numb that he could hardly move his fingers. Then he quit, and this time he found a more congenial post as a busboy in a cafeteria in the Roaring Forties. For eight solid months Pasternak collected $12 a week, and saved enough money to study for the stage.

Motion pictures then were being produced in the east at the Long Island studios of Paramount, so Pasternak, inflamed by the idea of a dramatic career, determined to get a job there. He did. He became a busboy at the Paramount commissary at $15 a week. After three months the ambitious youngster was promoted and became a waiter. At last he was in his element. He was the contact man between the kitchen and the great names of the movie screens. The first time he served Gloria Swanson he dropped a salad and it just missed landing in her lap.

Allan Dwan, who was directing the Swanson pictures, took an interest in the ambitious young waiter. Within the year Pasternak, to his incredulous delight, was acting as Dwan's first assistant at $45 a week. It was too good to be true. Paramount closed the Long Island studios.

Pasternak trekked to Hollywood. There was nothing for him. He had a little money left. He made a two-reel comedy with El Brendel, and Director Wesley Ruggles was so impressed with Pasternak's work on a limited budget that he engaged him as his assistant at Universal.

The studios at Universal City were in turmoil. The Carl Laemmle régime was nearing an end, in confusion, and Pasternak was convinced that he'd get his walking papers. In this confused atmosphere, in 1936, the Universal executives told him to make a "B" picture with a youngster named Deanna Durbin who had been released by M-G-M. Pasternak had one chance in a thousand of striking oil on a "B" budget, but the chap who was accustomed to short rations from the time he was born wasn't at all dismayed. Under his magical touch, husbanding assets at every step of the route, he got more mileage out of his budget than any director ever had achieved before. "Three Smart Girls," made economically, was the sensation of the Hollywood year. Durbin had arrived. So had Pasternak. So had the director he brought from abroad, Henry Koster.

When Hollywood stopped chuckling over the feat of the unknown producer in confounding the traditions of the town it was agreed smugly that lightning had hit once but never would hit again. "He's a one-picture sensation," the colony agreed. Pasternak smashed home hit No. 2. Then hit No. 3, No. 4, No. 5. He took time off to turn out the successful "The Underpup" while preparing Deanna's sixth picture.

That is the story of Pasternak, more competent and less known than ninety-nine out of one hundred Hollywood biggies, because he has a genius for everything but self-exploitation.

How Scott Took Mexico City

The Successful American Invasion of 92 Years Ago

● A full color reproduction of a painting depicting General Scott's entrance into Mexico City, the event described in Captain Corpening's article. appears on page one of today's Picture Section.

By CAPT. M. M. CORPENING

THE FIRST faint streaks of dawn creep over the peaks of Tlaloc and Telapon, over lofty, snow-capped Iztaccihuatl and Popocatepetl, slowly bringing into view, down on the plain in the Valley of Mexico, the slumbering capital, wrapped in a silence that now at any moment may be shattered by the roar of cannon and the sharp fire of musketry.

At Garita de Belen, on the southwest outskirts of the city, United States artillerymen stand sleepily beside their pieces, awaiting the order to begin the bombardment.

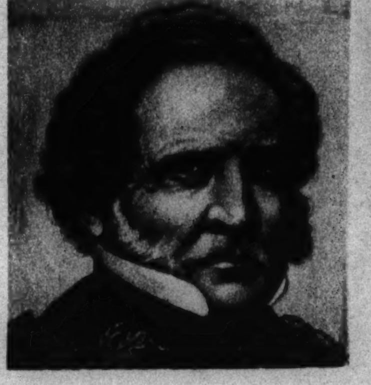
But before the guns can go into action, to resume the fighting that was climaxed yesterday in the storming of the heights of Chapultepec, a messenger approaches carrying a white flag. He is directed to Brig. Gen. John A. Quitman, to whom he delivers an invitation to the Americans to enter the city.

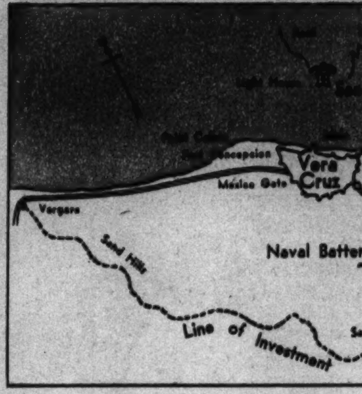
Apparently there is to be no more fighting here, but the general dare not take a chance. He first must assure himself that there is no deception. When at last he is certain that it is safe to proceed he moves forward to the citadel, that big bulk of a fortress on the west side of the capital, where the Americans had expected to meet stout resistance.

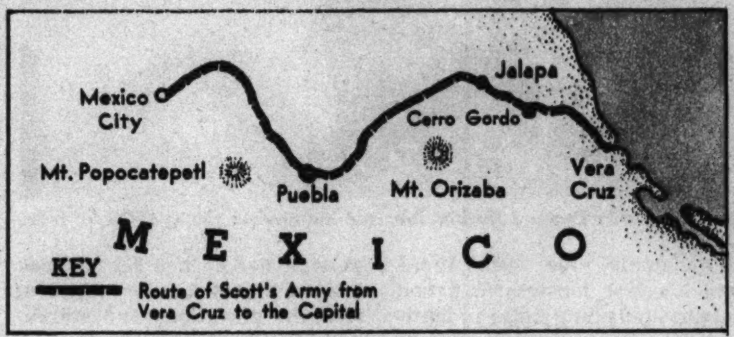
Then begins the triumphal entry, Quitman and Brig. Gen. P. F. Smith proceeding afoot at the head of Smith's own brigade, some companies of marines, the New York volunteer infantry, and E. J. Steptoe's battery.

People in the city awake and pour out to watch the foreign victors. Balconies and housetops are alive with them. They gaze wide-eyed at the tall soldiers from the north.

Into the plaza upon which the palace faces march the Americans. Capt. B. S. Roberts of the rifles, at 7 o'clock and under a bright sun, hoists the American flag on the palace flagstaff.







Hardly has the breeze opened up the folds of the flag before there comes to the ears of the soldiers in the plaza the sound of galloping hoofs. Then immediately into the square rides a group of mounted men, troopers of W. S. Harney's dragoons and members of the commanding general's staff. Within their midst is the general himself, Winfield Scott, veteran of Queenston, Lundy's Lane, and the Seminole wars and victor of Cerro Gordo and Churubusco.

The general rides a big bay horse. He is resplendent in a spick-and-span uniform that is weighted down with heavy gold epaulets—a contrast to his unkempt army. He rides bareheaded along the line of troops while a band blasts the air with martial tunes.

Then he dismounts and climbs the broad stairway to the entrance of the palace, his long sword clanking at every step.

In just this manner did the United States military forces under Scott occupy Mexico City on Sept. 14, 1847—ninety-two years ago.

From the beginning of hostilities with Mexico in the spring of 1846 Scott, the commanding general of the American army, deemed it advisable personally to enter the conflict. It was his plan to capture the seacoast city of Vera Cruz and with this as a base march his army to Mexico City. He estimated that the minimum number of troops necessary for the success of the undertaking would be 15,000, with a third of them regulars.

To make up his army he took from Gen. Zachary Taylor, who was campaigning in northern Mexico, 4,000 regular and 4,000 volunteer infantry, two light batteries, and 500 regular and 500 volunteer cavalry. The rest of the complement of 15,000 were to be volunteers raised immediately in the United States.

Congress, however, neglected until the end of February, 1847, to authorize these volunteers, despite the eagerness of Scott to go forward with his plans. The general had been informed of the growing prevalence of yellow fever along the Mexican coast and felt that he should be in Vera Cruz with his army no later than the first of February. But he was delayed and did not sail from Tampico, which was in American hands, until Feb. 20. He selected the Lobos Islands, just off the coast between Tampico and Tuxpan, as his initial base of operations and as a place for assembling his forces. Here he made arrangements for naval coöperation with Commodore David Conner, commander of the American fleet in Mexican waters.

Thereafter all sorts of delays were encountered—delays for which even to this day historians have not held Scott responsible. Arrived March 2 with still an absence of 2,000 troops and a shortage of transports, lighters, and war materials. A point, Anton Lizardo, about twelve miles below Vera Cruz and more than 200 miles from Lobos Islands, was chosen as a landing place. This point lay just opposite the reef and island of Sacrificios.

On March 9, although still not fully prepared for the operation, the Americans launched their attack. Naval guns opened fire on the beach at Anton Lizardo and the sand hills beyond, but, much to the surprise of the Americans, they met with no opposition. All troops were landed by means of surf boats without incident. A complete line of investment immediately was established, with batteries trained on Vera Cruz. The American lines in front of the city extended a distance of about seven miles.

Owing to delays in obtaining material and equipment, offensive action by Scott's army was not in order until March 22. Then the general called upon the defense commander, Gen. Juan Morales, to surrender. The demand was refused, and the American batteries opened fire upon the city and the strong fortress of San Juan de Ulua, which stood on a rocky island about three-quarters of a mile offshore. The fort replied. Among the American batteries employed in the bombardment was one constructed by a 40-year-old officer of engineers, Capt. Robert E. Lee, who was destined to fill a major rôle in America's next war. And one of Lee's fellow officers who conducted himself in a valiant manner during Scott's campaign was the man who in the Civil war was to direct the opposition against him—Lieut. Ulysses S. Grant.

U. S. Grant at 21.

Four days of bombardment on the part of the Americans netted a surrender proposal from Gen. José J. de Landero, who had succeeded Morales in command. Terms were agreed on the following day and the city and fort, 5,000 prisoners, and 400 guns were turned over to Scott's forces. The American loss in the taking of Vera Cruz was 67 killed and wounded. Major credit for the small casualty list and success in battle goes to the navy, the offshore guns of which provided the really effective fire.

Similar strategy on a bigger scale recently was repeated in the Japanese capture of Shanghai. In the Shanghai operation airplane bombs received credit for the damage, but this observer found that the shells that produced the havoc came from naval guns.

The capture of Vera Cruz was just a small beginning to General Scott's undertaking. With virtually no transportation facilities, Scott faced a great problem. This was the 300-mile trail leading westward across the Terra Caliente, up through the mountains, over the great plateau, and into the Valley of Mexico, where lay the capital, the historic city of Montezuma. The present highway connecting Vera Cruz and Mexico City is that very trail modernized.

Numerous one-day troop stands and fortified haciendas provided some opposition to General Scott's advance, but his big handicap was lack of suitable quartermaster equipment. He was short of draft animals, wagons, and a proper quartermaster organization to keep food and supplies abreast of his advancing troops. In spite of all this he succeeded, winning victories at Cerro Gordo on April 18, at Contreras-Churubusco on Aug. 15 to 25, and at Molino del Rey on Sept. 8.

Although he was successful without the services of an efficient quartermaster organization, the importance of such an organization cannot be overstressed. This was shown in the recent civil war in Spain. Gen. Francisco Franco's victory was due primarily to his organized and efficient quartermaster department. His troops were untrained and inexpert with weapons of all kinds, but when noon or night came food was ready for them, while loyalist Spain was going hungry.

Carrying little food with him because of his lack of wagons and draft animals, Scott fortunately proceeded a great part of his way through territory in which local food was abundant.

After his defeat by General Taylor at Buena Vista on Feb. 23 the Mexican general, Antonio Lopez de Santa Anna, decided to return to Mexico City to strengthen its defenses against the threatening army of Scott. Santa Anna was back at the capital by March 20, just a few days before the surrender of Vera Cruz, but his forces were divided, some of them still in the north.

Slowly the troops of Scott approached Mexico City. Jalapa was taken, Puebla was taken, the battles of Contreras and Churubusco were fought. Within sight of the capital the Mexicans were defeated at Molina del Rey. Then came the smashing American victory at Chepultepec. And in the midst of all this, in his retreat back upon his capital Santa Anna had found a thoroughly disheartened and demoralized people.

It is not difficult for an organized force, even though limited in strength and numbers, to subdue disorganized resistance. While General Scott deserves great credit for efficiently fulfilling an assignment, his famous (in military circles) "fixed opinion" seems today to have been somewhat extravagantly worded. This fixed opinion was uttered by him in defense of the United States military academy at West Point when critics would have abolished it at the close of the Mexican war. It goes thus:

"I give it as my fixed opinion that but for our graduated cadets the war between the United States and Mexico might and probably would have lasted some four or five years, within its first half more defeats than victories falling to our share; whereas in less than two campaigns we conquered a great country and a peace, without the loss of a single battle or skirmish."

"Attack on Chew House" in Color

THE LARGE stone residence of Chief Justice Benjamin Chew of the Supreme court of Pennsylvania figured prominently in the battle of Germantown, fought Oct. 4, 1777, between an American army under General Washington and a British army under General Howe.

As General Wayne, commanding the American left wing, was advancing in the village of Germantown, six miles northwest of Philadelphia, six companies of the British 40th regiment under Lieutenant Colonel Mulgrave took refuge in the Chew dwelling, barricading its doors and windows. Wayne left one of his regiments to guard the house and continued his advance.

When the American reserve force, following about a mile behind Wayne, arrived at the Chew house, Washington consulted with his officers as to what should be done about the barricaded Britons. General Knox spoke up, saying it was "unmilitary to leave a castle in the rear" and advising that an officer be sent with a flag to summon the enemy in the Chew house to surrender. Lieutenant Smith of Virginia was assigned the duty. He approached the house and was fired on and killed.

Thereupon General Maxwell's brigade with four pieces of artillery attacked the house. The attack was still under way when the Americans in the advance, running into a heavy fog and being thrown into confusion, were forced to retire. The American reserves, still in the vicinity of the Chew house, were attacked by British troops under Generals Grey and Agnew and compelled to fall back.

The dense fog and the delay at the Chew house were the main factors in the failure of the Americans to drive the British out of Germantown. The American army fell back to its camp at Skippach creek, fourteen miles away, and Howe deemed it wise to retreat into Philadelphia for greater safety.

The KNIT-TEX TWEED KNOCKABOUT MODEL...$30

There Has Never Been A Topcoat Like This Ever Designed Before—Actually Improves Your Appearance No Matter What Your Build And Is Amazingly Comfortable.

No matter how much you weigh or how little, no matter how tall or short, this coat will not only improve your appearance but you will be more comfortably dressed than in any topcoat you have ever worn.

The secret of this coat lies in a new designing principle applied to the shoulders, shoulder seams and upper sleeves. This principle not only improves the appearance of the upper part of the coat, but causes the garment to hang with a trim front and with smart fullness in the back.

The width of the armholes enables you to slip into and out of the British Knockabout* as easily as a raglan, and the fuller skirt gives you remarkable comfort in either walking, driving or sitting.

The Knit-tex Tweed fabric is made entirely of imported British wool and as a result the coat looks more like $50 than $30.

The Growth of Trick Flying

● This is the third of a series of articles describing the history of aviation and flying technique. Another will appear in an early issue.

By WAYNE THOMIS

UNTIL Lincoln Beachey appeared on the scene it had been enough to satisfy spectators just to fly an airplane. Beachey was the first showman in the barnstorming and exhibition business who gave additional thrills by his antics in the air. Hearing that a French airman named Pegoud had succeeded in looping, Beachey determined to try the maneuver himself. Once he succeeded, he found that the loop actually was one of the simplest and easiest maneuvers.

The whole point of a loop is that it must not be made so loosely that the airplane stalls at the top. It is possible that an inverted spin might develop from such a stall. And in Beachey's day the stall was not understood. The pushers didn't drop a wing and begin to spin; they just hung stalled in a sort of slow and uncontrolable dive until they crashed.

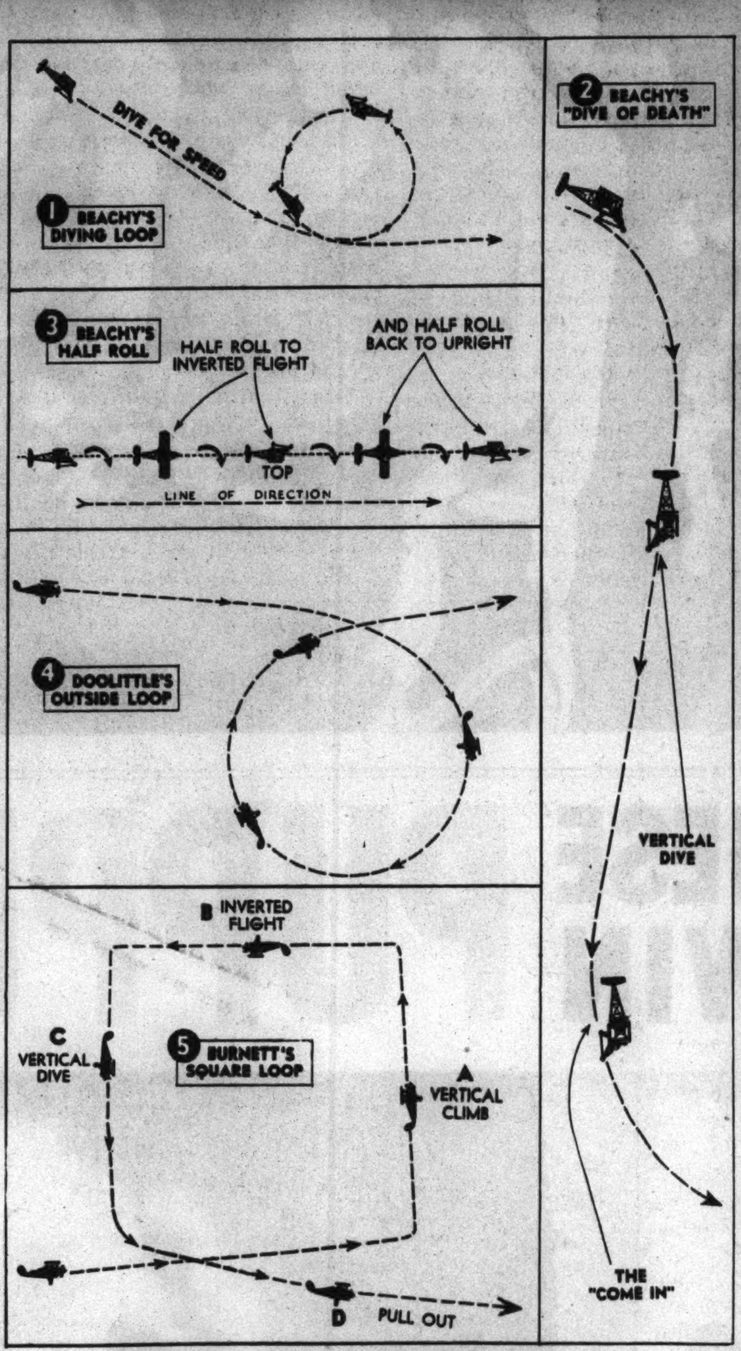
Diagram No. 1 shows how Beachey made his loops. The long dive was necessary because of the relatively slow cruising speed of the pushers. Beachey's top speed was about 65 miles an hour. He had to wait until he gained another 35 miles an hour speed before beginning the loop proper.

Shortly before a Chicago air meet in 1914 Beachey had been flying in California in his Curtiss biplane at 3,000 feet and above a cloud layer, when his engine quit. The plane began to sink and approached a stall, but as it did so Beachey pushed forward on his elevator controls and pointed the nose downward in a 45-degree angle dive.

"I thought I was gone, but I . . . found I had complete control. Every wire in my ship was whining and groaning. As I got close to the ground I leveled off and made a landing on the far side of the field. I was so scared I could hardly step out of the plane."

That long power-off dive was the beginning of what Beachey called his "dive of death." Finally he was making vertical dives of a thousand feet or more and pulling out very gradually. He even made what he called the "come in" during the dive. This was done just before the pull-out. Pressing forward on the controls, he increased the dive slightly beyond the vertical and then eased it out level. Diagram No. 2 shows the vertical dive and the come-in.



Diagrams illustrating stunts described in this article.

For a long time Beachey had been anxious to attempt inverted flight. He began talking of it to his friends and mechanics about 1912. He made his first attempts at it in practice flights in 1913 and had practically perfected a stunt which he used in 1914.

Beachey's first experiments were made at the top of his loop. Instead of holding the controls all the way back, so that he dived out of the inverted position, he pushed forward, holding the nose of his ship horizontal. After several attempts he found the gliding angle of his ship in its inverted position and was able to stay inverted for twenty-five to forty seconds at a time.

At first he recovered from the inverted position by pulling the wheel control used on the Curtiss plane back so that he dived out to an upright level position just as he did in the last half of a loop. But later he used the ailerons to roll out of the upside-down position (diagram No. 3). Beachey was probably the first man to use the roll as part of his exhibition flying.

It was in 1914 that the spin began to be understood for the first time. The stall and resultant uncontrolable dive had taken the lives of many flyers. Orville Wright, at that time busy with his school and factory at Dayton and his stunt teams throughout the country, is believed to be the first man who understood what happened in a stall and discovered what to do about it.

Maj. Doolittle

Lieut. Williams

Back in the gliding days the Wright brothers, when their glider began to slow down, would push the nose of the plane down to pick up safe speed. Orville's later study of the stall was made because a number of men had been killed in Wright planes. He finally worked out charts and lift curves that showed that at high angles of attack (with the nose of the plane and consequently the wings tilted upward in the line of flight) the plane would slow down and stall.

His studies also showed that when stalled the only way to recover was to push the nose down and recover speed. If attempts were made to pull the nose up before flying speed was regained the airplane would simply stay in the uncontroled dive. This discovery did not become general knowledge until 1916 and 1917.

Fundamentally Beachey's experiments covered the entire field of stunt flying. Little if anything has been added. The masters of aerobatics in the United States—Tex Rankin, Mike Murphy, Squeak Burnett, Joe Mackey—merely combine one or more of the original Beachey maneuvers into a highly polished routine.

A few new items have cropped up For instance, in 1925, with a high-powered pursuit plane, Lieut. Jimmy Doolittle—now Major Doolittle—achieved the first "outside loop." In the loops that Beachey made, it will be seen by referring to Diagram No. 1, the pilot was on the inside of the circle. In Doolittle's loop the pilot was on the outside of the circle (diagram No. 4).

Lieut. Al Williams of the marine corps achieved the first inverted "falling leaf." This maneuver is a series of shallow side slips, alternately made to the right and the left. Williams did them in an inverted position and started the current vogue for doing all sorts of maneuvers inverted. Rankin or Alex Papana of Rumania can do snap and slow rolls from an inverted position and return, can make figure eights in inverted flight or loops in inverted flight.

Squeak Burnett has a new maneuver. He calls it the square loop. It consists of the usual inside loop, but the sides are square. He flies straight up, makes a right-angle turn, and holds his altitude in inverted flight, then pulls abruptly into a vertical dive and eases out at the bottom. Diagram No. 5 shows Burnett's square loop.

Oil on Troubled Faces

And a rich lubricating oil is a weapon against "old" elbows.

Ancient Beauty Secret Is Revived for Moderns

By ELEANOR NANGLE

OILS ARE the oldest beauty aid. The ancients believed in them for cleansing, soothing, and softening the skin, and down through the ages no quarrel has been found with this belief.

We are apparently a dry-skinned nation. Every complaint about oily skin is matched with nine or ten about dry skin. Diet has something to do with it. So do climate, temperament, and temperatures.

What to do?

Do as the ancients did. Use oils and lots of them. Beware of the factors that deplete natural oil, such as too harsh soaps, anemic diets, and room temperatures too high and too dry.

You can't rout wrinkles once they've arrived. But you can keep them away. How? By oiling and then oiling the skin some more.

One good plan is to supplement your usual cosmetic routine, which involves the use of bland soaps, softened water, and rich creams, with the daily application of an oil, a good oil created for the sole purpose of lubricating the skin, of helping restore to it some of the precious oil which is sapped from day to day.

One such oil is the product of a chemist who has tried long and lovingly to duplicate in an oil that could be applied externally the essential and invaluable natural oils of the skin. How successful she has been in this the scientists would have to say. All we know is that the oil is a humdinger as a soother and softener of parched skin.

It's a light oil but (as results will show) a rich one. A thimbleful does for face and neck. For dry, rough hand skin, for chafed elbows, for the fine-lined territory around mouth, forehead and eyes, it's not necessary to use more than a few teaspoonfuls.

As winter approaches the value of this oil increases. The complexion that cannot weather cold and wind and steam heat is in greater need than ever of an efficient lubricant that helps to restore the fast-vanishing oils and guard the skin against still further oil depletion.

Tannenberg—World War Drama

tions in front of Rennenkampf. The attack was a complete surprise. The Russian 6th corps fell back in confusion, losing 6,000 men and sixteen guns. By the night of the 27th the Russian right was thirty-two miles south of Rothfleiss and hopelessly demoralized. The rear of the Russian center now was exposed on the other flank. The German 17th corps continued south, while the 1st reserve corps moved in closer to Allenstein.

The Russian center, the 13th and 15th corps, moved forward toward the Allenstein-Hohenstein line, the German center, the reinforced 20th corps, falling back. Then on the 27th the German center struck hard, smashing into the Russian 15th corps and meeting a withering fire in return. The Russian 13th corps at this time gave no support to the other unit of the center.

On the 28th the Germans renewed the attack. The Russian 15th corps began to fall back, while the 13th corps made an attempt to come to its support. The 13th corps, however, by this time was attacked in the rear and had its hands full.

When night fell the two Russian corps of the center were on a line from Grieslienen to Waplitz, and hard beset by the enemy. Hoping to save themselves, they began a withdrawal that speedily turned into a rout. Caught in the forest of Grünfliess, they attempted to fight their way through to the south of Muschaken and to the north of Kaltenborn. The Germans held. On the 30th and 31st the greater part of the two corps surrendered. According to "Ludendorff's Own Story," the widely circulated report that thousands of Russians were driven into the marshes to perish is a myth. There were no marshes anywhere near the scene of the tragedy of Samsonov's center.

Samsonov, when he saw that his army was being badly beaten, left his headquarters at Neidenburg and, riding away to the south on the night of Aug. 28-29, separated from his staff and shot himself to death.

The fighting from Aug. 26 to 30 has been given the name of the battle of Tannenberg. It has been likened to the battle of Cannæ, in which Hannibal in 216 B. C. vanquished the Romans. In both Cannæ and Tannenberg the armies that eventually were victorious presented arching centers toward the enemy. As the enemy attacked the centers gave in, drawing the enemy into traps. At the same time the enemy flanks were attacked, completing the encirclement.

The result of the fighting at Tannenberg was the total annihilation of two Russian corps and the reduction of the three other corps to half their original strength. The Germans claimed that they had taken 125,000 prisoners in this battle. Russian maps which fell into German hands were grossly inaccurate. In following them the Russians marched to their deaths. Most of what was left of Samsonov's shattered army streamed back toward Warsaw, leaving Rennenkampf to face the music.

Jilinski's idea was that Rennenkampf's army should assume a defensive position in East Prussia until a new army could be formed and marched to its support. The idea, on the other hand, of the brilliant Ludendorff, backed by that of his chief, Hindenburg, was that Rennenkampf should be smashed immediately and driven back into Russia, or preferably, if possible, turned northward and pinned to the Baltic coast.

The victory of Tannenberg was scarcely completed before the Germans were making ready to strike Rennekampf. Ludendorff's plan was to have Goltz, with two and a half divisions, face in the direction of the flight of the demoralized army of Samsonov and check it if it attempted to return to attack; to have François, with three divisions and a cavalry brigade, swing around the south end of the chain of the Masurian lakes at Johannisburg, with the object of turning Rennenkampf's left; to push Mackensen, with two infantry divisions and two cavalry divisions, to the east through the gap in the chain of lakes at Lötzen to aid François in striking Rennenkampf's left; and to move the main German army of eight divisions directly on the Insterburg gap, while the Königsberg garrison was making a demonstration against the Russians, who by this time were maintaining a rather loose blockade of Königsberg.

The two German corps that had been withdrawn from the western front, the 11th and the guard reserve, had arrived in East Prussia. The German line, running from northwest to southeast, was made up of the following corps: Guard reserve, 1st reserve, 11th, 20th, 17th, and 1st. Opposing it on a line running from northwest to southeast were the Russian corps in this order: 26th, 3d, 4th, and 2d. The 20th was in reserve.

Rennenkampf's line on Sept. 2 stretched from the sea near Libau to Angerburg, at the north end of the lakes. The Russian general has been criticized for extending his line to too great a length. It covered a distance of sixty miles, much too far, it has been pointed out, for the twelve divisions that made up his four corps. Subsequently he further lengthened his line by extending part of the 2d corps in a southerly direction to cover the Lötzen gap.

On Sept. 4 Goltz seized Mlawa, and thereafter held in check small units of the shattered army of Samsonov that attempted to advance. François on the night of the 5th was close to the

Grapes Lead Canning Parade

By MARY MEADE

NO JAMS or jellies are more popular than those made with fresh, plump, lusciously purple grapes. Few are easier to make or look prettier on the shelf and on the table.

Peaches, pears, plums, and apples are going into the preserving kettle these days along with grapes. Some of the jams and jellies will be poured into fancy jars and tied with ribbons to be saved for Christmas gifts. Others, for home use, will go into assorted small containers. Odd jars and glasses of all shapes and sizes may be utilized.

Frosty looking purple grapes make wonderful jams and jellies.

Ever try pear and ginger jam? It is really delicious.

Grapes, apples, and plums contain enough pectin and acid to jam thickly and jell firmly with no other ingredient but sugar and the little water needed to cook them. Pears contain pectin but lack acid, so lemon juice or commercial pectin usually is added. Peaches make good jam with sugar but won't jell at all unless you add pectin in some form. Apple juice and commercial pectin are the two favorite forms.

Commercial pectin comes in powdered form or as a liquid. With it you use almost twice as much sugar as you would in recipes for fruit jellies which don't require pectin. But you also get more jelly. The cooking period is very short, as you may see by this typical recipe:

RIPE PEACH JELLY

(Six medium glasses)

2½ cups peach juice
3½ cups sugar
1 box powdered fruit pectin

To prepare the peach juice, pit and crush thoroughly (without peeling) about 2½ pounds ripe peaches. Add 1 cup water, bring to a boil, and simmer, covered, for ten minutes. Add a few crushed peach pit meats during cooking for flavor, if you like. Place fruit in a jelly bag and extract juice. If there is a slight shortage of juice, add a small amount of water to the pulp in the jelly bag and squeeze again. Measure sugar into a dry dish. Measure juice into a three or four quart saucepan. Place over high heat. Add powdered pectin, mix well, and stir until mixture comes to a hard boil. Pour in sugar at once, stirring constantly. Bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard one-half minute, stirring all the while. Remove from heat, skim, pour quickly, and seal at once.

GINGER AND RIPE PEAR JAM

(Jelly consistency; eleven glasses)

4 cups prepared fruit
½ to 1 cup diced crystalized ginger
7½ cups sugar
1 bottle fruit pectin

To prepare fruit, peel, core, and crush or grind about 3 pounds ripe pears. Measure sugar and fruit into large kettle, add ginger, and mix well. Bring to full rolling boil over high heat, stirring constantly, and boil for one minute. Remove from heat and add pectin. Stir and skim by turns for five minutes to cool slightly, to prevent floating fruit. Pour quickly and paraffin at once.

"Mary Meade's Best Jams and Jellies" contains all the other recipes you could possibly want. Here are some of the ones made without added pectin (there are recipes with it, too): Tutti-frutti marmalade (quince, apple, peach, pear, and lemon), peach and orange marmalade, plain and spiced peach and pear jams, wild grape and crab apple jam, grape jam, grape jelly, plum jelly, peach preserves, damson plum conserve, and Blue Ridge jelly, a glorious combination of apple, quince, cranberry, and grape.

Gems of American Eloquence

● American eloquence has played an important part in the history of our country. From a long list of famous speeches The Tribune is selecting gems of American eloquence which are being presented in this, the Graphic Section, every Sunday. The content of these speeches is important both historically and politically. Men and boys learning to speak in public will find in them helpful lessons. Speakers and writers can learn a great deal from studying their style. This is the sixteenth of the series.

THE twenty-third annual dinner of the Republican Club of the City of New York was held on the hundredth anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln. Among the speakers at the dinner was Booker T. Washington, noted Negro educator and president of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial institute. A forceful public speaker, this man, who had been born a slave, delivered a touching tribute to the man who had freed the slaves. It follows in part:

"You ask that which he found a piece of property and turned into a free American citizen to speak to you tonight of Abraham Lincoln. I am not fitted by ancestry nor by training to be your teacher tonight, for, as I have stated, I was born a slave. My first knowledge of Abraham Lincoln came in this way: I lay sleeping one morning on the dirt floor of our slave cabin; I was awakened by the prayers of my mother kneeling over my bed as I lay wrapped in a bundle of rags, earnestly praying that one day Abraham Lincoln might succeed and that one day she and her boy might be free. You give me the chance, gentlemen of the Republican club, to celebrate with you and the nation tonight the answer to that prayer. Says the great book somewhere, 'Though a man die, yet shall he live.' If this be true of the ordinary man, how much more is it true of the hero of the hour and the hero of the century, Abraham Lincoln. One hundred years of the life and influence of Lincoln is the story of the struggle, the trials, the triumphs, the success of the people of our complex American civilization. Interwoven into the warp and woof of this story is the moving story of the people of all races and colors in their struggles from weakness to power, from poverty to wealth, from slavery to freedom. Knit into the story of the life of Lincoln also is the story of the success of the nation and the welding of all creeds, colors, and races into one great composite nation, leaving each individual separate group free to lead and live its own special social life, yet each a part of a great whole. If a man die, shall he live? Answering this question as applied to my race, perhaps you expect me to confine my words of appreciation to the great boon that our martyred President conferred upon my race. My undying gratitude and that of ten millions of my race for that, and yet more. To have been the instrument which was used by Providence to confer freedom upon four millions of African slaves, now grown into ten millions of free American citizens, would within itself have brought eternal fame to any name. But, my friends, this is not the only claim that Lincoln has upon our sense of gratitude and our sense of appreciation. Today by the side of Gen. S. C. Armstrong, and by the side of William Lloyd Garrison, Lincoln lives. In the very highest sense he lives in the present more potently than fifty years ago. If that which is seen is temporal, that which is unseen is eternal. He lives in the thirty-two thousand young men and women of the Negro race learning trades and other useful occupations, in the two hundred thousand farms acquired by those that he freed, in the more than four hundred thousand homes built, in the forty-six banks established and ten thousand stores owned, in the five hundred and fifty millions of dollars' worth of taxable property in hand, in the twenty-eight thousand public schools with thirty thousand teachers, in the one hundred and seventy industrial schools, colleges, and universities, and in the twenty-three thousand churches and twenty-six thousand ministers. But, my friends, above and beyond all this he lives in the steady, unalterable determination of these millions of black citizens to continue to climb the ladder of the highest success, to perfect themselves in the highest usefulness and to perfect themselves year by year in strong, robust American characters. For making all this possible, Lincoln lives tonight. But again, for a higher reason, he lives tonight in every corner of the republic. To set the physical man free means much; to set the spiritual man free means more, for so often the keeper is on the inside of the prison bars and the prisoner on the outside. As an individual, as grateful as I am to Lincoln for freedom of body, my gratitude is still greater for freedom of soul, the liberty which permits one to live in that atmosphere where he refuses to permit sectional or racial hatred to drag down and warp and narrow his soul. The signing of the emancipation proclamation was a great event, and yet it was but the symbol of another still greater and more momentous. We who celebrate this anniversary should not forget that the same pen that gave freedom to four millions of African slaves at the same time struck the shackles of slavery from the souls of twenty-seven millions of American citizens of another color."

Booker T. Washington

This is one of those speeches which are impossible to criticise on a basis of speaking technique; the combination of man and matter and occasion possess such highly charged dramatic possibilities that the speech could not help being remembered. Here is a Negro, an ex-slave, speaking on Abraham Lincoln and the future of the black race. Fortunately, Washington was an intelligent speaker; realizing the potential power of his speech, he exaggerated nothing, but told his story so simply and directly that he might have modeled his speech on one of Lincoln's own. The result is a powerful and moving example of the speaker's art.—Comment by Martin Maloney of Northwestern university school of speech.

southern end of the lakes. On the 6th—the day that marked the beginning of the first battle of the Marne, in which the Germans were in sad need of the two corps that had been sent to East Prussia—François took Johannisburg and Nikolaiken, driving back the enemy. The next day the German 1st corps was beyond the lakes and had captured Bialla and Arya. On the 8th François swung north against the Russian left flank at the same time that Mackensen with his 17th corps began passing through the Lötzen gap.

François' corps struck the Russian flank at Soltmahnen on the morning of the 9th, taking it by surprise. Within a few hours the Russians opposing François were in hopeless disorder and many had fallen into the hands of the Germans.

Tannenberg!

The enveloping movement was a success, the whole left of Rennenkampf's army now being rendered vulnerable to the attack of five German divisions.

Simultaneously with François' attack from the south on the 9th, Ludendorff hurled his main army against the Russians. This attack was met with a determined counterattack that pushed the Germans back. For a brief time the German command was in a dilemma. Ludendorff implored his troops on the enemy flanks to close in quickly. He feared defeat.

But his fears, as it turned out, were ill founded, for Rennenkampf by this time (the night of Sept. 9) had had his fill of battle. He ordered a general retreat.

By Sept. 13 his army was far enough from the enemy to insure it against annihilation. On the 14th it surged, considerably disorganized, back across the border into Russia between the forest of Rominten and the Niemen river.

Though Rennenkampf's army had not been surrounded, as had Samsonov's, it suffered casualties almost as heavy, losing from Sept. 6 to 9 inclusive 125,000 men and 150 guns.

Thus the 1914 Russian menace to East Prussia was eliminated. In the whole twenty-eight days of the invasion the Russians lost more than 300,000 men—a terrible blow to their fighting power.

The battle in which Rennenkampf's army was so successfully outmaneuvered, defeated, and driven back into Russia has come to be known as the first battle of the Masurian lakes.

The Zalinski Dynamite Cannon

● This is the second of two articles on the guns and shells invented by Louis Gathmann and Capt. Edmund L. Zalinski in the latter part of the last century—armament that foreshadowed modern artillery. Last week was described the development of Gathmann's gun and its test in competition with a regular army 12-inch service rifle.

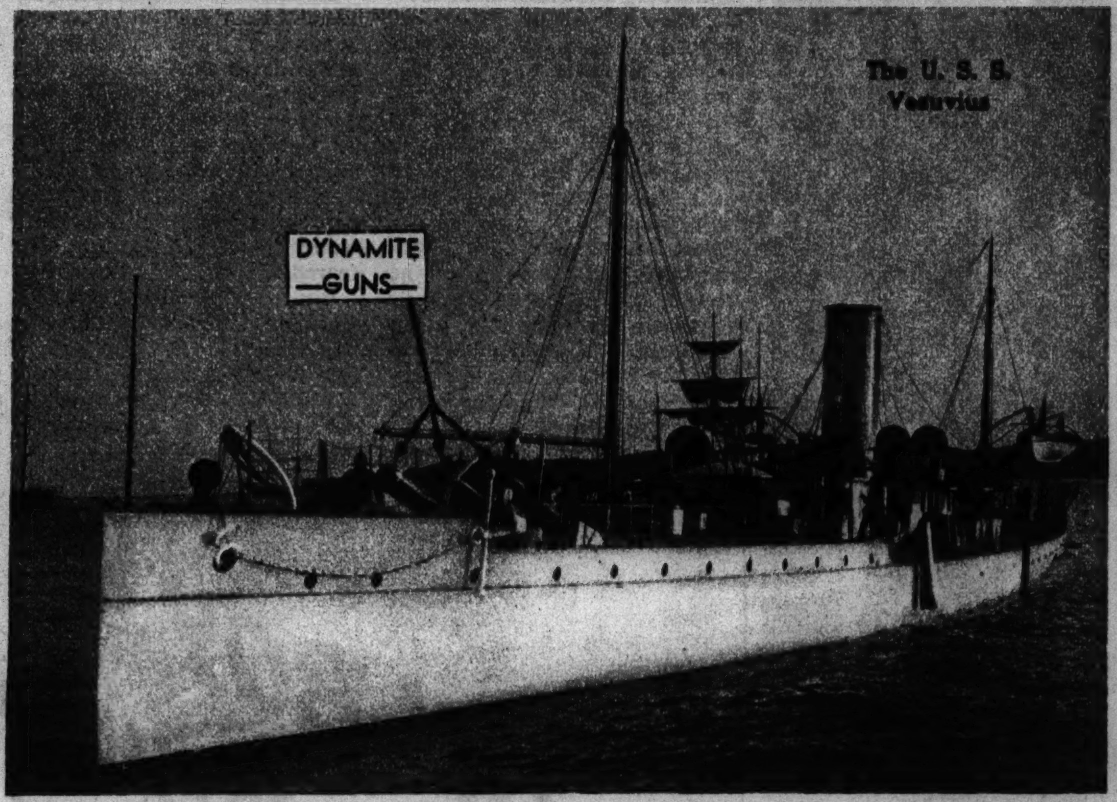
By JOHN A. MENAUGH



WHAT MIGHT have been the natural conclusion on that November day in 1901 when Louis Gathmann's 18-inch gun, firing high-explosive shells, seemed to be outperformed by the army's 12-inch piece — and the conclusion arrived at by the joint board conducting the test—was that the projectile fired by the Gathmann gun would not have seriously damaged the belt armor of a battleship or seriously menaced the buoyancy of such a vessel. The board wrote in its report:

"There is nothing in the Gathmann system to recommend its adoption in the public service of the United States or to warant further experiments."

The matter, however, was not permitted to rest here. The Gathmann Torpedo Gun company filed protests with the war department, charging that the tests were not fair to the Gathmann gun and that some of the findings of the joint board were misleading and incorrect. The controversy dragged on into May of the following year. Opinions of disinterested authorities and others were submitted to support the gun company's contentions that the damage done to the target by each of the Gathmann gun's shells would have been sufficient to cave in the armor plate of a warship and send the vessel to the bottom. No less an authority that Sir Hiram Maxim, inventor of the Maxim automatic gun, supported Gathmann's contentions in the main in a letter written from London on Feb. 20, 1902.

One important point made by the Gathmann company was that the visible backing of sand behind the target at which its gun fired was nearly twice as great as that behind the other target. The company insisted and reiterated throughout its protests that each of the Gathmann shots fired at the target would have destroyed a battleship.

It is not the purpose of this article to take sides in a controversy such as this. It must be assumed that the officers who conducted the test were acting in what they believed to be the best interests of their country. Gathmann the inventor, on the other hand, was confident that the principles on which he was working were right.

After high-explosive shells that he had invented had been used successfully in giant German howitzers and guns at the beginning of the World war he appeared before a minority of the committee of expenditures of the United States senate on Jan. 13, 1915, and told it that he had tried for many years to interest the ordnance officials of America in his inventions and had made no effort to give them to a foreign government until they had been repeatedly rejected by the Americans. He charged at this hearing that the facts had been suppressed by the ordnance bureau.

"The whole theory of shellfire," he said at the hearing, "has been so changed by the adoption of high-explosive shells in place of armor-piercing projectiles that the coast defenses of the United States virtually are useless because they still use the latter type of projectiles."

He also condemned the coast defense mortars on which the government, he said, had spent $100,000,000. These, he contended, had a range of only six miles and could not pierce armor at a mile. Equipped with high-explosive shells, he argued, their fire would be deadly. (This statement by the inventor is contrary to the belief held generally by ordnance officers today. They hold, and their opinion is based upon actual experiences, that the greater the range of an armor-piercing mortar shell the greater the penetration.)

All these assertions by Gathmann were made, it should be borne in mind, nearly twenty-five years ago. This was before America's latest modernization of its guns and projectiles, a modernization which provides a gun and a shell for every type of attack—high-explosive shells, armor-piercing shells, and a combination of the two.

The Scientific American of Oct. 24, 1914, in discussing the huge German weapons that knocked down the Belgian forts at Liége and Namur, stated in part:

"The 16-inch gun is probably a successful development of the Gathmann idea of firing a comparatively thin-walled shell containing a very large high-explosive filler. . . . A 16-inch shell of modified 'torpedo' type, with a large cavity carrying an enormous charge of explosive, could be formed with sufficient wall thickness to carry it intact deep into the mass of masonry surrounding and supporting a Gruson turret, or any other modern type of mount. The detonation of one such shell, provided with a delayed-action fuse, within the massive concrete of the heaviest fort in existence would account for . . . a complete wreck."

Closeup of the Vesuvius' dynamite guns.

Just such a shell as suggested in the foregoing paragraph is said to have been perfected for the present-day big guns.

Zalinski was brought to this country as a child by his parents in 1853. He entered the United States army in 1864 as a volunteer aid on the staff of Gen. Nelson A. Miles. In 1866 he was appointed a second lieutenant of the 5th United States artillery regiment, and he rose to a captaincy in 1887. He was professor of military science at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology from 1872 to 1876.

As an inventor his interests were almost wholly confined to military subjects. He invented an entrenching tool, a ramrod bayonet, a telescopic sight for artillery, and a system of range and position finding for seacoast and artillery firing.

The years between 1883 and 1889 were devoted by him to the perfection of a large-caliber gun firing a high-explosive shell. This weapon by 1888 was sufficiently developed to obtain excellent firing results.

Zalinski, like Gathmann, was completely convinced of the great destructiveness of high-explosive projectiles. But, unlike the other man, he proposed to attack warships not at their strongest points, their armor belts, but at their most vulnerable points, their decks and below their water lines. He held that an armored war craft could be sunk by an explosion of a heavy charge in the water within ten to forty feet of the vessel. This theory has been confirmed to a certain extent within recent times by tests made with airplane bombs, filled with high explosive, that have been dropped in close proximity to ships. The gun that Zalinski perfected, three of which subsequently were mounted upon the cruiser Vesuvius, was a pneumatic weapon, firing its shells by the propelling force of compressed air. He called the weapon a torpedo-throwing machine, and the shells, which were thin-walled projectiles filled with dynamite or other high explosive, he called torpedoes.

Compressed air was adopted as the propellant because of its comparatively gentle action in starting a projectile on its flight. The rapid combustion of an explosive as a propellant, he feared, might damage the thin walls of the projectile or set off the explosive charge within it.

The only record of the practical employment of Zalinski's gun afloat was in the case of the Vesuvius. This vessel had a displacement of 929 tons, was 252.3 feet long, 26.5 feet in the beam, and possessed a rated speed of 21.4 knots. It carried three 15-inch dynamite guns mounted in the bows, lengthy weapons whose breeches extended down into the lower decks of the ship. The guns were fired at a constant angle of elevation, and the range was regulated by an air valve, training being given by the helm.

The Vesuvius saw no action against Spanish war craft, having been absent at Guantanamo bay at the time of the naval engagement at Santiago. It was, however, employed on several successive nights in seeking to destroy the defenses of Santiago. Three projectiles were fired from its guns, but, because of the darkness, they did not hit their targets. The shell bursts of these three rounds made enormous craters, tending to prove the destructiveness claimed for the projectiles by Zalinski.

The dynamite gun in firing at visible targets was extremely accurate. In tests made with one of the weapons five shots out of six fired at a range of 3,500 yards dropped on a space no larger in extent than the top of a billiard table. The guns of the Vesuvius, being high-angle weapons, delivered a plunging fire. This, as Zalinski pointed out, meant extreme accuracy as compared with that of low-trajectory weapons.

Dynamite guns of the Zalinski type were experimented with for coast defense purposes. Such guns, as designed for New York and San Francisco harbors, had a range of 6,000 yards with 240-pound shells, or a range of 2,400 yards with 1,000-pound shells.

The small so-called dynamite guns employed by American forces in land operations in Cuba during the Spanish-American war were not of the Zalinski type. They were known as Sims-Dudley guns, were of 2½-inch caliber, and threw projectiles weighing 11⅛ pounds each. The explosive charge within one of these shells consisted of 3⅛ pounds of Nobel's gelatin, a much more powerful agent than dynamite. The projectile was propelled by a charge of 10 ounces of smokeless powder, and the range was approximately 3,000 yards.

Mostly About Dogs

Dogs' Gifts to Daily Speech

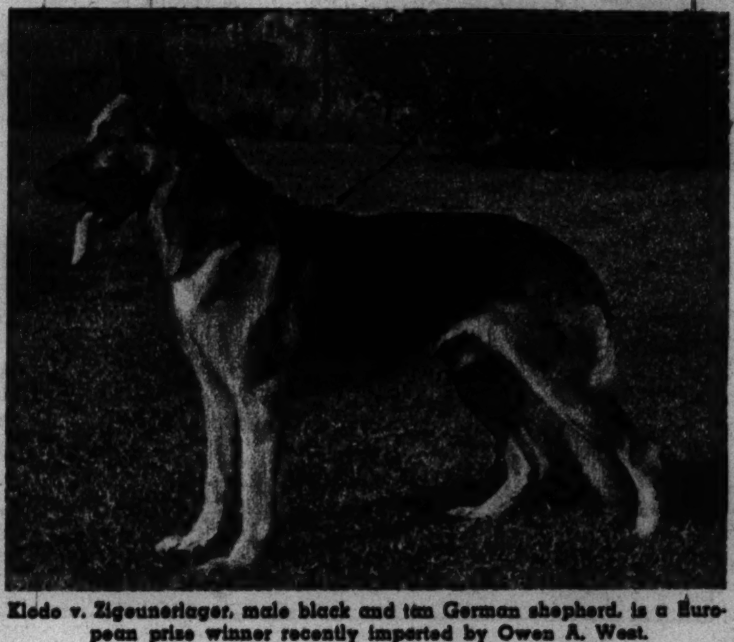
Two big dogs that have gone to a training school and learned all kinds of commands. At the left is a Newfoundland named King, owned by Mrs. Dan Davis, which has been trained to bring a drowning person to shore. At the right is a Great Pyrenees, owned by Jack Kimberly, which will haul a cart and perform other useful tasks.

NO ONE can say for sure when the first races of men brought wild dogs into their crude shelters, tamed them, and then used them in hunting wild game for food. But it must have been a long time ago.

Ever since that time dogs of many kinds and types have been useful to the human race as workers and as companions. We can get some appreciation of the partnership if we just look at our language and see how many contributions the dog has made to our speech. Only an animal that has become an important part of our civilization and has been closely linked with man's cultural development could make such an impression on our daily speech and lead us to use such descriptive phrases as "I'm tired as a dog" and "I'll dog your tracks."

A new American English dictionary being compiled at the University of Chicago reveals many of these doggy phrases. Here are some of the doggy expressions listed in the dictionary:

"Work like a dog." This has its foundation in the heavy work that dogs have done and still are doing. Hunting dogs, for example, are just about worn out after several days of hard work in the fields. Dogs haul carts in Europe, herd sheep, and do other fatiguing work. "Put on the dog" is another rather common slang expression and means to make a splurge or show. When one says, "Don't kill your dog," he is warning you not to become intoxicated!



Klodo v. Zigeunerlager, male black and tan German shepherd, is a European prize winner recently imported by Owen A. West.

"I'll die dog for that man" is a figure of speech in American literature expressing absolute loyalty, and to "stay until the last dog is hung" means to remain to the very end. How often have we heard the term, "It's a case of dog eat dog." And naturally we can't omit the picturesque expression "dog-gone it."

All of the above idioms add color to our speech, but aside from these there also are many descriptive phrases which utilize the word dog. A dog horn, for instance, is a horn used by hunters for calling in the hounds after a chase. The term "dog days" is so common that it is synonymous with the hot, sultry days of July and August. A dog tent or pup tent refers to a small shelter for one or two persons.

A number of plants have the word dog as part of their names. Among these are dogbane, dogberry, dogwood, dog button, dog fennel, dog laurel, dogtooth violet, and dog rose. In the animal world, too, the word dog has significance, referring to the male members of the fox, wolf, and coyote families. There also is a fresh water fish called the dogfish.

Doghouse has three meanings. It refers to the home of a dog, railroad men often use the term to describe the caboose of a freight train, and to be "in the doghouse" is a comparatively new slang expression which needs no explanation.

Dog-leg tobacco refers to a smoking mixture of inferior quality, and every golfer knows that a dog-leg hole on the course often means an extra stroke or two. The term "dog trot," referring to a slow jog, was used as early as 1843 in American literature. The word firedog refers to andirons for the fireplace and was used as early as 1641 in Connecticut. Loggers who work in lumber camps use a metal tool called a timber dog.

In the early 1800s one picturesque use of the word dog was in referring to promissory notes, and there were good and bad "dogs" of this type, according to the reputation of the person who owed the notes. A book published in 1848 contains the sentence, "I'll whip as much dog out of you as'll make a full pack of hounds." In this sentence the word dog signifies meanness.

Many old-timers used to ride in dog carts, which were light one-horse carriages.

DOG NOTES

The American Kennel club admitted forty-one breeds of dogs to the official stud book between 1885 and 1888. Only ten breeds were eligible for registration befor 1885.

"Are the men and women who are exhibiting dogs in the show ring the owners of the dogs?" That is a question often heard whenever dog shows are held. The answer is "no" in most cases. Many dog owners handle their own dogs in the show ring, but many others hire professional dog handlers to do the job. There are only 411 men and women in the United States, Canada, and England who are licensed by the American Kennel club to take dogs owned by others into the show rings of this country. Most of these professional handlers have their own trucks in which they transport dogs from one show to another. They feed and care for the dogs while they are on the show circuit, groom them before taking them into the ring, and then handle the dogs when the judging is done.

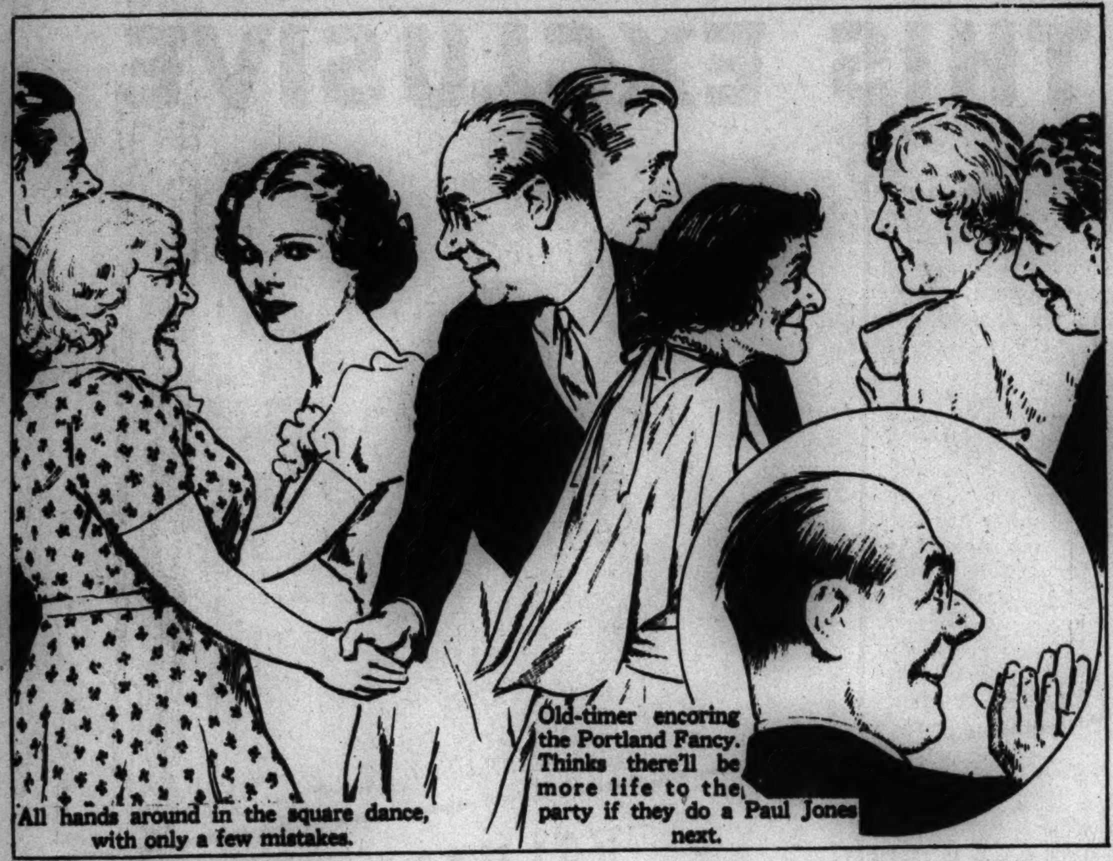
COUNTRY DANCE

By W. E. Hill

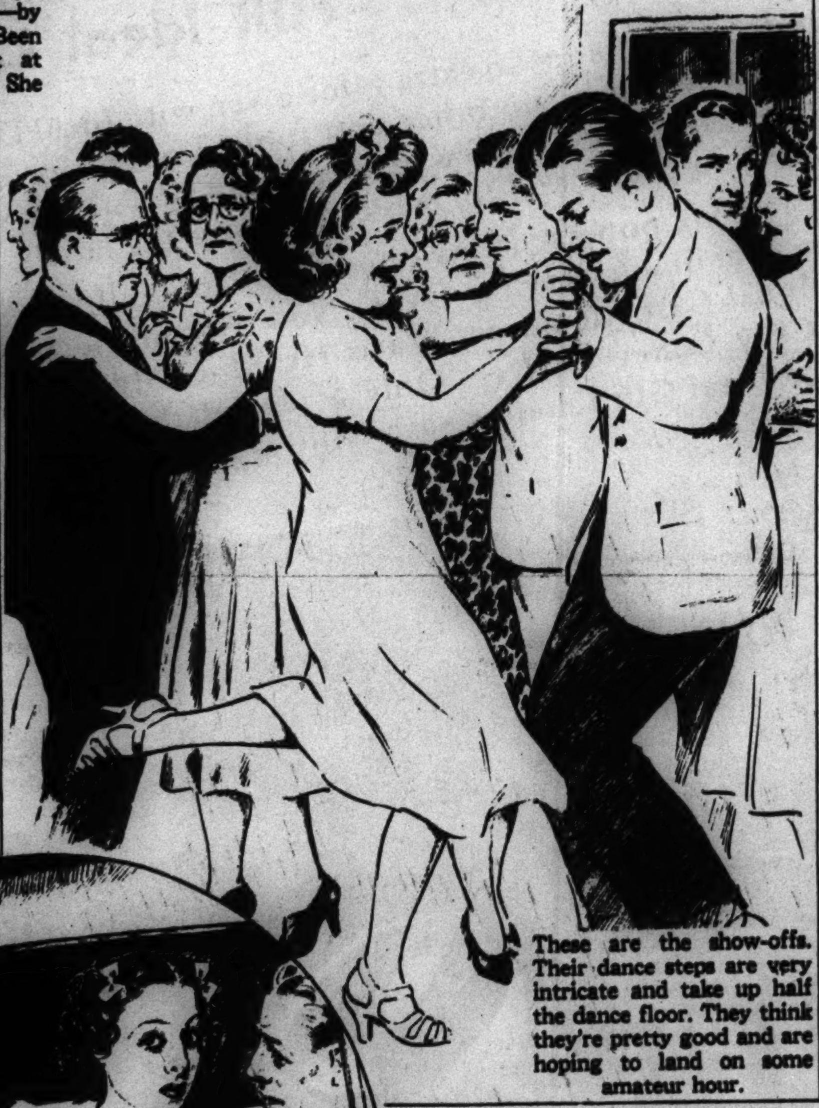
Copyright, 1939, by News Syndicate Co., Inc.



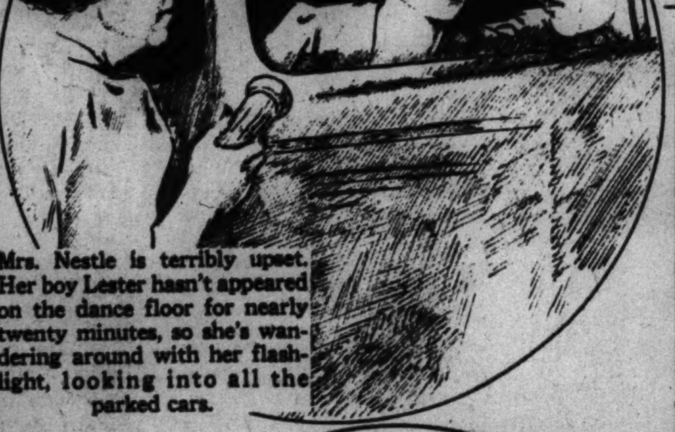
All hands around in the square dance, with only a few mistakes.

Old-timer encoring the Portland Fancy. Thinks there'll be more life to the party if they do a Paul Jones next.

Meet the soloist of Doc Dody's Rowdy Boys. He's crooning—by request—"You Must Have Been a Beautiful Baby," right at the Civic Club's president. She thinks she's in heaven.



These are the show-offs. Their dance steps are very intricate and take up half the dance floor. They think they're pretty good and are hoping to land on some amateur hour.



Mrs. Nestle is terribly upset. Her boy Lester hasn't appeared on the dance floor for nearly twenty minutes, so she's wandering around with her flashlight, looking into all the parked cars.

"Have YOU paid?" The lady ticket taker has a suspicious nature. She is dead sure you got in illegally. You'll have to prove your case.

These girls sitting on the side lines are looking for trouble. They'll make an awful fuss when the lights are dimmed and will march right over and switch them on again, because there's no telling what young people will do when lights are low. They tell each other how disgusting these modern dances are.

The boy who always finds something he likes better than what he took to the dance. (Arthur has just met this girl and the regard seems to be mutual. The girl he is supposed to be looking after is sitting by her lonesome somewhere, brooding.)

Small boy being very funny. Has a natural gift for making comic faces.

KNOW YOUR CAMERA

You Can Do Your Own Murals

● Questions of general interest to camera fans will be answered in this department. Lack of space makes it impossible to print replies to inquiries of a purely individual character. Address questions to "Know Your Camera," Chicago Tribune.

The large photomural gives this room its character. A snapshot of the owner's vacation lake supplied the theme for the mural.

PHOTOGRAPHIC murals are the last word in modern interior decoration, giving photography a break in a new field. Photographs replace paintings and in many cases are used in a novel decorative manner, giving the effect of windows which permit you to look at distant landscapes or other scenes of interest.

It is only natural that amateur photographers should want to know how photomurals are made. Most of them have pictures that could be blown up to mural size, and many own the necessary equipment, which consists mainly of an enlarger—practically any enlarger. Besides, it's decidedly worth knowing how to make photomurals, because you can decorate your home with murals for only five to ten dollars, while you would pay several hundred dollars to an interior decorator for the same job.

Photomurals are essentially nothing but oversize enlargements, even though several different methods can be employed in making them. Any good negative can be enlarged to mural size, and the choice of the subject is entirely up to you. Regarding the size of the mural, bear in mind that the spectator should be able to overlook the entire panel or its greater part from the point where he will be standing or sitting in your apartment. There is no sense to covering the wall of a narrow corridor with a huge mural—nobody will be able to see it.

The only indispensable equipment for making photomurals is an enlarger. Vertical enlargers must be raised for getting larger pictures, horizontal ones moved back from the projection surface. Most of them will give you large enough images for your purpose.

You can plan on making your mural either on a single sheet of paper or on several sheets, which, after development, are mounted side by side to form a single picture. If you prefer the single sheet method you need special mural paper which comes in 10-foot rolls 20 or 40 inches wide. This paper costs from $2 to $4.75 a roll, depending on width and weight.

Projecting the mural and mounting it are simpler if it is made on a single sheet, but the processing offers some difficulty. No amateur has trays large enough to accommodate murals. But he can easily build them by making a wooden frame, placing it on the floor, and lining it with oilcloth.

Wet the exposed paper with water, put it in the improvised tray, and pour about one-half gallon developer on it. Spread the developer evenly over the print with large wads of cotton. Remove developer from tray with the cotton, then pour a gallon of shortstop on the print to instantly arrest development. After this fix for ten minutes and wash in the bathtub for an hour in ten changes of water.

Another method is to cover an area the size of the projected mural with sheets of 8x10 or 11x14 projection paper. Overlap the sheets slightly and use small tacks to fasten them. The white marks of the tacks will have to be retouched on the finished mural. Project the mural on this "mosaic," then develop the sheets separately, each in a fresh batch of the same developer in order to get even tone.

Mounting can be done directly on the wall, or—if you are an apartment dweller—on portable panels. It is safest to use a special mounting paste, although starch or rubber cement will also do the job. If the mural consists of several large sheets, better call in a paperhanger. If you assemble the smaller sheets yourself, rub down some of the paper backing on the overlapping portions of the prints so that the double thickness of paper will not be visible.

Murals should be retouched both before and after mounting. To preserve the finished mural, spray it with lacquer. Put a molding around the mural whether it has been mounted directly on the wall or on portable panels.

It is not exactly easy to make a mural, but it is decidedly worth the try. You will be prouder of a photomural of your own than of any other picture you ever made, and justly so.

Photomurals mounted on portable panels can be easily removed from the wall to be set up in another place.

LENS NOTES

Don't push or jerk the release when shooting, or you will get blurred pictures, caused by camera motion. Press down gently on the release and remember to hold the camera steady.

Date your pictures. A simple method is to use a rubber date stamp. It is preferable to writing on the back of your print, for a sharp pencil can spoil the surface of the print.

To block reflections from brightly polished objects you can use a method applied by many commercial photographers. They gently rub with ordinary putty either the bright spot that causes the reflection or the entire object.

A practical way to label your darkroom bottles is to use waterproof adhesive plaster, obtainable in the dime store. Write with grease pencil or waterproof ink, and make the lettering heavy so you can read it in dim, safe light illumination.

One way of determining how to expose with any given filter is to place the filter in front of the photo-electric cell of the exposure meter and take a reading. You can also take a reading without the filter, subtract it from the longer reading with the filter, and thereby determine the "filter factor."

The needle on your photo-electric exposure meter may reach its limit in very strong light, leaving you without a reliable reading. Cover half of the cell opening with a cardboard mask, cutting down the amount of light reaching the meter. Set the film speed rating for double the regular rating and you can read the meter direct.

You can speed up the shutter on your box camera by making the slot on the moving shutter disk smaller. If the highest present speed is 1/25 second, and you cover half of the slot with Scotch tape, the film will get only a 1/50 second exposure, thus enabling you to snap faster action.

Miracle Modess is softer. Instead of papery layers found in most other napkins, Miracle Modess has a filler of downy-soft FLUFF. Modess starts softer, stays softer.

Miracle Modess is safer. It not only gives you greater absorbency—but the back of every Modess pad is moisture-resistant. It's doubly reassuring.

Get this napkin of Tomorrow, today. At any dealer's!

Only in Miracle Modess—all these grand new advantages!

"Moisture Zoning!" New! Amazing! Keeps edges dry, chafe-free, longer than ever before!

STOP Moisture-Resistant Backing guards the back of every pad. Think what this means to your poise!

Soft, FLUFF Filler! Starts softer, stays softer! Unlike the papery "layers" of most napkins!

A Blue Line marks the "Stop-back" of every Modess pad... the side to be worn away from the body!

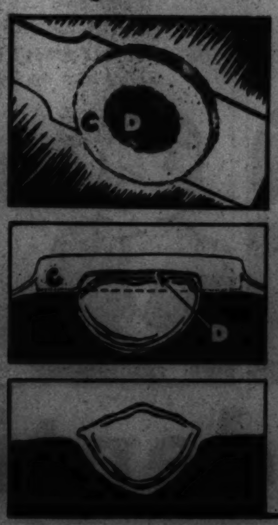
NOW YOU CAN "Uncork" your corn
—get rid of it Root* and All



● Corns are caused by pressure and friction and old-fashioned home paring only gives temporary relief because it only affects the surface—leaves the root imbedded in your toe.

Don't suffer needlessly. Now it's easy to remove corns quickly—without pain—without trouble. Just put a scientific Blue-Jay pad (C) neatly over the corn—it relieves pain quickly by removing pressure. The special Blue-Jay medicated formula (D) on the pad acts on the corn—gently loosens it so it can be lifted right out. Then simply by avoiding pressure and friction which caused your corns you can prevent their coming back!

Both thrilled over the NEW "SKIN-VITAMIN" care* they can give their skin today

Before Her Guests Arrive—Mrs. A. J. Drexel, III, busy member of Philadelphia's young married set, steals a moment for an interview.

QUESTION TO MRS. DREXEL:
Mrs. Drexel, how do you ever find time to keep your skin so smooth and glowing?

ANSWER:
"It takes no time at all. To get my skin really clean and fresh, I just cream it thoroughly with Pond's Cold Cream. Now that it contains Vitamin A, I have an added reason for using it! Then to smooth little roughnesses away, I pat on a light film of Pond's Vanishing Cream—one application does it."

QUESTION TO MISS BREWER:
Do you have to spend a lot of time and money on your complexion, Blanche?

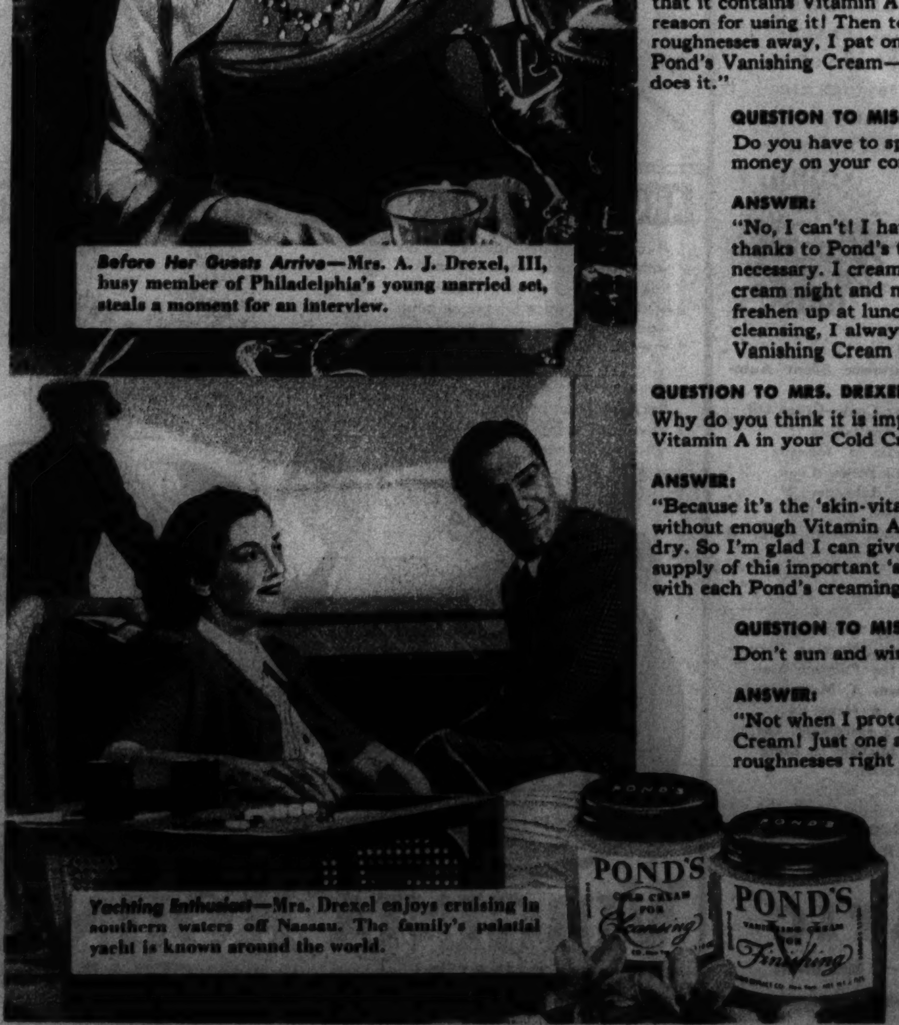
ANSWER:
"No, I can't! I haven't much of either. But, thanks to Pond's two creams, it isn't necessary. I cream my skin with their cold cream night and morning and when I freshen up at lunch hour. After this cleansing, I always smooth on Pond's Vanishing Cream for powder base."

QUESTION TO MRS. DREXEL:
Why do you think it is important to have Vitamin A in your Cold Cream?

ANSWER:
"Because it's the 'skin-vitamin'—skin without enough Vitamin A gets rough and dry. So I'm glad I can give my skin an extra supply of this important 'skin-vitamin' with each Pond's creaming."

QUESTION TO MISS BREWER:
Don't sun and wind roughen your skin?

ANSWER:
"Not when I protect it with Pond's Vanishing Cream! Just one application smooths little roughnesses right away."



Yachting Enthusiast—Mrs. Drexel enjoys cruising in southern waters off Nassau. The family's palatial yacht is known around the world.

*Statements about the "skin-vitamin" are based upon medical literature and tests on the skin of animals following accepted laboratory methods.
